CONDEMN HIGH PRICED STOCK FOODS

Prominent Hog Raiser Says Prices Charged Are Unwarranted—Makes His Own Hog Food, With Better Results.

"That he is all through paying fancy prices for stock foods and hog remedies and that he is raising some of the best hogs ever placed on the market," was the statement made recently by E. H. Beckstead, well-known hog raiser and authority on live stock.

Mr. Beckstead's hogs are the envy of his neighbors, and have "topped the market" for several years in Iowa. He states that for years he bought high-priced hog foods and hog remedies, but he is all through paying extravagant prices for what he can make himself. He states that what the hogs need are minerals, and tells the secret of his wonderful success by explaining that he takes about five pounds of ordinary mineraline (which is pure concentrated minerals and cost only a couple of dollars) and mixes same with enough bran or filler to make a hundred pounds. All hogs, and especially brood sows require minerals as they keep them free from worms, and in the pink of condition, and are essential to the hogs growth and a well balanced ration. This inexpensive mixture placed in a sheltered box where the hogs can get at it as they need it, will produce far better results than any high priced so-called stock foods.

Send two dollars to The Mineraline Chemical Co., 1638 North Wells St., Chicago, Ill., and they will forward you by prepaid parcel post, enough mineraline to make a full hundred pounds.

FOR SALE DUROC JERSEY BROOD SOWS.

Having decided not to hold a bred sow sale this winter, I will sell 30 good, purebred sows at private treaty, all bred to one of the best big type boars of the breed. Farm Bureau Field Notes C. R. Young, County Agent REPAIR WEEK

A short time ago the morning issue of one of Sioux City's papers contained, on its front page, two articles that were so in contrast with the feeling of business men of the times as to at once arrest the attention of their readers. One of these bore a caption calling attention to the optimism of the steel corporation, and the other to the optimism of the manufacturers of farming implements.

Especially when we read the second head-lines, we were forced to wonder who would not feel satisfied, if he was not yet feeling the pinch of the times and was holding his patrons at his mercy. However, as unjust as "big business" has often been in the past there has always been a way to side-step them or to take and enforce laws for their control.

Knowing of the vast amount of machinery that each year lies idle because it is out of repair or is not strictly modern, the Dakota County Farm Bureau is urging the use of his and of as little new machinery as possible. Not only should secondhand machinery be brought into use, but neighborhoods should cooperate in the exchange of implements. The Farm Bureau has therefore, set aside the week beginning February 20th, to be known as Farm Machinery Repair Week. Where parts are to be ordered this should be done at once as much time is often consumed in getting them. Nothing helps to cut prices like reduced buying. They stopped buying the farmers' produce and prices dropped. If this policy is continued it will do the same with the other fellow's business. We only ask for justice. Let us stick until we get it. Remember, neither you nor your blacksmith can do all that is necessary during a few days just before spring work begins. February 20th will be full late to begin this work.

TO REMOVE TATTOO MARKS

Process is by No Means Easy, Though Modern Science Has Shown It to Be Practicable.

Tattooing is the mechanical introduction of pigments under the skin and a very well-known process. The pigments employed are carbon, cinnabar, carmine and indigo.

Most methods employed to remove these marks, says Science and Invention, are by a reactive and a destructive inflammation which will result in the formation of a crust, later cast off together with tattooed markings. One method is to retattoo the marks with a solution of 30 parts of zinc chloride and 40 parts of water. A mild inflammation will result; a crust forms and about a week later this falls off, leaving a scar which gradually heals. Later a repetition of this may be necessary. This may be done by the professional tattooer.

The second method is to tattoo again, making the punctures close together after the design has been drawn over with a concentrated solution of tannin. A stick of silver nitrate is then firmly drawn over the surface and after a period of several minutes it is then wiped off. This is far more effective than the first and less scar forms. Two other substances, perhaps more efficient than either of the above, and applied in the same manner as the first, are carbol and glycerole of apofid.

St. Mark's Church, New York.

The site of St. Mark's church is the oldest church site in New York and has been consecrated to religious service for 200 years. Peter Stuyvesant, the Dutch governor of New Netherlands, erected the first little private chapel in 1600. He and his wife, Judith, were buried underneath the chapel. In her will she left the church to the Dutch Reformed Church of New York, providing that the tomb be preserved. The building was allowed to fall into decay until 1703, when Petrus Stuyvesant, a great-grandson, proposed to the vestry of Trinity church that an Episcopal church be erected on the site, the cornerstone of which was laid in 1705 and the church completed May 9, 1709. The steeple was added in 1829 and the porch a few years later. Since 1850 no material changes in the present appearance of the church have been made, and the church proper is identically the same as it was one hundred years ago. Peter Stuyvesant and his wife are buried in the vault beneath the porch of the church.

The Right Way to Read.

The only way to read with any efficiency is to read so heartily that dinner time comes two hours before you expected it. To sit with your liver before you and hear the geese cackling that save the capital, and to see with your own eyes the Carthaginian sutlers gathering up the rings of the Roman knights after the battle of Cannae and heaping them into bushels; and to be so intimately present at the actions you are reading of that when anyone knocks at the door it will take you two or three seconds to determine whether you are in your own study or in the plains of Lombardy looking at Hannibal's weather-beaten face—that is the only kind of study that is not tiresome, almost the only kind that is not useless.—Sydney Smith.

Amber as Medicine.

The medicinal uses of amber have recently been discussed, and it is somewhat curious to find the belief in the curative virtue of amber necklaces, in cases of cold in the head, still seriously held in China. One correspondent reports such a cure in a case that had refused to yield to any other treatment, and attributes it to the action of amber so worn on the mucous membrane. Another goes only so far as to suggest that since amber had apparently a curative value as used internally by the old physicians, its use in necklaces had a rational basis "according to the views once in vogue," which is reasonable enough.
