No wonder the fat man chuckled

I SWELLED with pride. THE FAT man next to me. WAS READING one. OF MY cigarette ads. AND I felt him chuckle. NOW NO one had ever. PRAISED THAT ad. SO I had to ask. IF HE liked it. AND HE said, "Sure." AND LAUGHED some more. THEN HE said. "LOOK HERE" and pointed. AND WHERE I'd written. "PURE TOBACCO." THE PRINTER had set. "PURE TABASCO." AND THAT'S why the man. THOUGHT MY ad.

WAS HOT stuff. BUT THEN he said. "FORGET THE ads. I NEVER read 'em. BUT LEMME tell you. SOMETHING DIFFERENT. THEY OUGHT to say. ABOUT THAT cigarette. AND THAT is this. THEY SATISFY." AND DARNED if I don't think. HE REALLY believed. HE WAS giving me. SOMETHING NEW!

YOU can blame it on the printer if you don't see "They Satisfy" in a Chesterfield advertisement. But be sure of this—you'll find it in the cigarette every time. Wonderful Turkish and Domestic tobacco, wonderfully blended—it sounds easy. But you'll find nothing else like Chesterfields. That blend can't be copied.

Saving Baby Chicks

It is one job to obtain a good hatch and another task to save the baby chicks after they have been taken from the incubator. Only proper brooding plus good feeding will start the baby chicks on the road to maturity. The most essential of a good brooder is that it supplies the proper temperature, says a College of Agriculture circular called "Baby Chicks—Their Care and Feed." The brooder should be operated for two or three days before the chicks are placed under the brover, so that it will be warmed up and properly regulated. The heat should be uniform day and night. If it is allowed to go down during the night the chicks will pile up and crowd and some be killed. Where hens are used to brood chicks they should be confined until the chicks are strong enough to follow and until they will not become chilled, tired and exhausted. Many of the most successful poultry raisers do not feed chicks until they are at least 40 hours old, and then give buttermilk or skimmilk for the first feeds. Detailed suggestions are contained in the circular, which may be obtained at any county farm bureau office or from the College of Agriculture.
