

TOO MANY WIVES

Much-Married Man Explains His Position.

United States Citizen, in Zululand He Was Compelled by Custom to Wed Five Black Beauties.

Escaping in the middle of the night from his five obligatory "wives," in the forest fastnesses of Zululand, Farid Bey Derighan, otherwise Mr. Doughan, subject of the Egyptian sultanate, has arrived in New York. He is a former citizen of the United States, where he bore the more ordinary name of Doughan.

Farid Bey was born in 1808, in Sahag, 350 miles south of Cairo, on the Nile, under the shadows of the Sphinx and pyramids. His father at that time was director of irrigation projects under the ministry of the Sudanese government. His mother, also an American, died in Egypt when Farid Bey was a child. An older son, George, also was left in the father's care.

Te father returned to the States with his sons when Farid was seven, George, when seventeen, virtually kidnapped his younger brother and spirited him away. Some years later the father learned that the elder brother, George, was employed in the diamond mines of South Africa, while the younger Farid had been left in a French school in Cairo.

Farid became a diamond mine superintendent and was given the Turkish title of Effendi.

During the World War Farid Effendi was recruited by the British army and because of his knowledge of Oriental languages, assigned for duty with the Indian army, serving in Palestine as captain.

Although now only twenty-two years old, Farid Bey wears four British campaign medals.

"And how about your five wives?" "You see," the bey replied, "when I was in Zululand, directing natives working in the diamond mines, I had allotted to me a number of native servants, including young girls—all very dark."

"One of the tribal requirements, in order that a white man might live there, is that he take at least five of these belles as 'wives.' Otherwise, serious difficulties and even death might ensue."

"Some months ago I determined to return to the United States. The problem of how to get away from my black beauties loomed up fearfully before me. They had become very attached and I feared for the worst if I let them know I planned to leave."

"I chose an exceptionally dark night, four months ago, to make my escape. When I felt certain that all my wives were asleep, I sneaked out of the place and worked my way past the native guards, and then made a dash for Pretoria."

"Once there it was only a question of taking a train to Cape Town and boarding a steamer for Marseilles."

Joker 'Pays' Fares.

The practical joker has found a new way to make himself unpopular. He tried it out last night at the Brooklyn bridge subway station. He was accompanied by two of his office mates, but he raced ahead of them to the ticket booth, calling for "Three" in a generous tone. As he passed the ticket box they saw him drop something in and then rush for the express train. They started after him.

"Hey!" called the ticket chopper. "Whatamatter?" they asked. "Don't try to pull that stuff. Drop yer tickets in the box."

"Why, he put in three for —," began one of the halted ones, but he stopped as he saw the joker, giggling, start down the stairs to the platform. He had dropped only one of the three tickets in the box.—New York Sun.

Canton Abolishes Gambling.

Petitioned by more than 50,000 members of the Anti-Gambling society, headed by religious leaders, asking for the abolition of gambling in Canton, China, the governor of Kwangtung province has prohibited gambling there. The official order was given following a great demonstration of over 15,000 citizens of Canton in a parade several miles long, lasting six hours, when the petition was presented. In this great Christian parade, one of the largest in China in many years, representatives from all the Christian colleges participated. Lee Mink Tak and Tse Ya Luk were the marshals of the parade, with volunteers from the Canton Christian college and secretaries of the Y. M. C. A. as their aides.

Go Slow in Rejuvenation.

There was a discussion of Dr. Eugen Steinach's "rejuvenation" operation, about which so much has been published, at a meeting of psychiatrists and neurologists in Vienna recently, and the consensus of opinion was that Steinach's discovery is a real step forward but that it is too early to introduce it into general practice, and its use must be confined for the present to clinics.

Asking Too Much.

"For goodness sake, Mary! What is all that noise in the kitchen?" "What you'll expect, Mum? You'll think I kin break three dishes an' a plattab widout makin' a noise, huh?" —Richmond Times-Dispatch.

JUST FUN

Redeeming Trait.

"I know I'm old, but I'm crazy about you," stated Mr. Moneybags. "When I go I'll leave all my fortune to you if you'll have me."

"Have you any bad habits?" asked Miss Goldlocks, thoughtfully.

"Only that I walk in my sleep, if you could call that a bad habit."

"You dear old thing. Of course I'll marry you. And we'll have our honeymoon on the top floor of some tall hotel, won't we?"—American Legion Weekly.

Surgeon's Job.

Collectors of customs, being constantly on the watch for smugglers, have certain demands which they repeat almost unconsciously. Not long ago a tourist came ashore with a badly swollen cheek.

"What have you there?" asked the customs officer, pointing to the swelling.

"An abscess, sir," was the reply.

"Well," said the officer, impatiently, "open it, please."—Boston Transcript.

A Specialist.

"Will you do a little work around the place if I give you your breakfast?" asked the farmer's wife.

"Yes, ma'am," replied the tattered stranger, "if it's the kind of work for which I am best fitted."

"What kind is that?"

"I'm an expert repairer of pipe organs."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Expectancies.

"Your constituents expect a great deal of you."

"Yes," replied Senator Sorghum.

"Expectation properly managed is an asset. My success in politics is due to the fact that while I was often compelled to disappoint my friends I always managed to keep 'em hopeful."

Significant Brevities.

"I suppose you are prepared to deliver some great speeches."

"Not long ones," replied Senator Sorghum. "One word may decide the future of a man in my position. Everything depends on whether you know just when to say 'Aye' and when to say 'No.'"

THE?

He: Don't you think we could marry on my salary?

She: Yes, but could we stay married?

The Law of Compensation.

My son, beware the cares that lurk in a dishonest flurry.

A grafter doesn't do much work—But how he has to worry!

Economy.

"You favor strict economy, of course."

"Yes," replied Senator Sorghum. "But my attitude toward economy is a good deal the same as my attitude toward the violin. I want the other fellow to do the practicing and let me do the applauding."

Support.

"Why do you have those rails there? Is it to prevent people from stealing your goods?"

"No. They are for people to catch hold of when they hear of our prices."—Copenhagen Raven.

Can't Get Away From It.

"This book tells you how to economize."

"Do I need a book to tell me that?"

"Huh?"

"Economy is forced on me. I can't get away from it."

Probably That's It.

"Your new maid is very pretty."

"My husband doesn't think so."

"You mean he's wise enough to say he doesn't think so."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Far From the Madding Crowd.

"Where are those who once drew my carriage?" demanded Yorick Hamn.

"What now?"

"We're out of gasoline."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Right!

Young Miltrox—I'll never forget the time I proposed to you.

Miss Mainchance—Right, old dear! I don't intend to let you forget it.

Literally So.

Edith—You say his attentions to you have been marked.

Maud—Yes; he has never taken the price tag off his presents.

LAKE OF IMMENSE DEPTH

Atitlan, in Guatemala, is One of the World's Most Remarkable Bodies of Water.

Below lay cities with their public squares and white churches, fields of yellow grain like golden patches of light in the crystal-clear atmosphere of the Guatemala highlands, huge dark masses of forest, and beyond, extending their thousands of spurs and flanks, rose the prodigious Cordilleras. To the left the peaks of Atitlan towered to the heavens, majestic, symmetrical, recalling in their perfect contour the famed Fujiyama of Japan.

It was more than a half day's ride from this point before we came to Godines crest and beheld, 3,000 feet below us, the deep blue waters of Lake Atitlan, and on its opposite shores, rising sheer a mile to a mile and a half above the surface of the lake, seven great volcanoes, of which the two known as Atitlan are the most wonderful. Lake Atitlan, itself a crater lake 27 miles in greatest length and 12 miles wide, is a remarkable body of water. The Rev. Father Garcia of Nanguia, a graduate of the University of Rome, and one who has given enthusiastic study to the meteorology of the region, informed me that official soundings of this lake gave an extreme depth of more than 1,000 feet.

Its surface is 5,000 feet below the level of the sea. Its waters teem with trout with which it has been stocked, and while walking upon its sandy beach near Panajachel we saw great schools of smaller fish and not a few of the larger. Into its shore plunge the volcanic hills, often in precipitous, forested hogbacks, often in steeply sloping wheat fields, or again ending in mile high cliffs of bright red sandstone or perpendicular walls marked by the slate grays and purplish hues of volcanic ash. Such are the walls of Lake Atitlan, often called Lake Panajachel, painted by nature in her most glorious, riotous colors, and rivaling even the famed hues of the Grand Canyon of Arizona.

From the shores of the lake, as we first looked down upon it, arose great clouds of steam, as if the beach were saturated with boiling water. But, in this case, it was merely the afternoon sun beating upon the wet sands, for the waters of Atitlan are cool and crystal clear. Billows of mist, too, arose from the surface of the lake, only to be caught and dissipated by the sudden squalls that come almost vertically from the mountain passes, and always there were rainbows to be seen in the ascending mists. Whether one looked a half mile down upon the mirrored surface of the lake or whether he gazed at the volcanoes towering a mile above and wreathed in their streaming feather bows of shifting vapors, he felt as though great phenomena of nature were being staged for his benefit.—Hamilton M. Wright in Bulletin of the Pan-American Union.

Has Many Famous Pictures.

In the low, old-fashioned colonial home in Cincinnati of Charles P. Taft, brother of the former President, is to be found one of the finest private collections of the old masters in this country. Little known to the public at large, the paintings that Mr. and Mrs. Taft have acquired in the last twenty years are noted in the small circle of the artistic. The collection is built around the Dutch, English and French schools. In some cases the Taft pictures are the finest examples of their authors to be seen in the United States. This is notably true, according to the late Frank Duveneck, of Frans Hals, and two of his portraits to be found there. "The Young Man of Harlem" and "The Young Woman of Harlem." There was no better judge of Hals in America than Duveneck. In the judgment of friends of the noted Cincinnati artist.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Out of the Ordinary.

Sir Auckland Geddes, the British ambassador, recently told an amusing story of a hunt in the Canadian wilds, of the wolf packs that howled around the cabin at night, of going forth, a torch in one hand and a revolver in the other, of seeing two bright eyes in the darkness and firing. The next morning it was discovered that he had killed a rabbit.

Mr. Jussurand, the French ambassador and dean of the corps, later spoofed the Britisher a bit on his story. "It was an excellent story," said the Frenchman. "Quite remarkable in some respects. It was particularly remarkable, it seems to me, because it was a shooting story told by an Englishman and there was no tiger in it."—Philadelphia Evening Public Ledger.

Secret of Sealed Chamber.

A bequest to Londoners of 3,000 years hence, has been buried beneath the foundations of the giant Bus Terminal building at Aldwych, London, England. This consists of a secret chamber in which Mr. Bush proposes to place some of our present day implements, which may show posterity what kind of occupations we followed. The problem at present is what to conceal. Shall it be a bottle of pickles, a Bradshaw, a razor, or a reel of cotton?
