Pays to Fatten Poultry
Many Nebraska farmers are learning that it pays to fatten poultry for the market, just as it pays to finish hogs and cattle. Heavy feeding and close confinement for two or three weeks adds finish and weight, thereby increasing the price per pound and the number of pounds. The state college of agriculture has found an excellent fattening ration to consist of two parts finely ground cornmeal and two parts wheat shorts, moistened with buttermilk or sour milk to a mortar-like consistency. All the birds will eat it fed three times daily. It is not uncommon for a good, husky bird weighing 1 1/2 to 2 pounds to add three-quarters of a pound, or 35% of its original weight, in two or three weeks. If the birds are thrifty, 3 1/2 pounds of this feed will add a pound of weight. The maximum gain can usually be obtained in 15 to 30 days. The bird should be marketed as soon as their appetite begins to wane. If the mixture is properly saturated with buttermilk or sour milk, no water need be given. With present feed prices, fattening young birds by intensive feeding should be profitable. Hereafter, the produce men have been finishing them after obtaining them from farmers. There is no reason why this cannot be done by the producer instead of the middleman.

See This Golden Range—It's the Latest!

Actually this new coal and wood range appears as if it were worth $10,000! For were it made of solid gold, you could scarcely detect the difference. Not only does the new metal—heavy, thick "copperoid"—which composes its outer walls and high closer, resemble gold in color, it retains this golden appearance despite heat; it cleans easily, does not chip, crack or break, and defies rust. So the range is as everlasting as it is beautiful to behold. Come, see, admire and wonder at it!

ROUND OAK COPPEROID CHIEF RANGE

The price is surprisingly moderate, due to immense production, and is guaranteed. Terms.
