Institute Notes in Wisner Chronicle: "The Spirit of the School," the address given by Supt. H. M. Eaton of Dakota City, proved to all who heard it that Supt. Eaton is alive to the school questions of the day. He did not try to solve all the problems, but enough to impress each teacher with the truths that to be cheerful and joyous in her work, to think of it as "the biggest job in the world," to be in sympathy with her pupils, to take pride in the fact that she is a teacher, is the secret of successful teaching.

Mr. Thacker is the senior member of the firm of Thacker Bros., proprietors of the Ford Garage at Homer, and Mr. Kautz is one of Homer's recognized progressive business men, and a booster "from who loved the chunk."

Hartington Herald: Mrs. R. W. Wallace, an old and highly esteemed resident of this city, who had been in the hospital suffering from a broken hip for the past two weeks, died Tuesday morning and the funeral was held from the home today.

Marie Plant Wallace was born in Indiana eighty-four years ago. At an early age she came with her parents to Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and spent her girlhood there. Later the family moved to Dakota county and it was there she met Robert W. Wallace to whom she was married Dec. 15, 1875. They made their home at St. James for three years and came to Hartington where they continued to live until Mr. Wallace passed away April 13, 1918.

The late Mr. and Mrs. Wallace had no children, but raised two nephews, Walter Cramer, Sioux City, and Bruce Allingham, as though they were sons. The boys were both at the bedside of their foster mother when she passed away. She is also survived by one sister, Mrs. Barbara Hepker of Cedar Rapids, Ia., and a nephew, Dr. D. J. Van Velson, of Pittsburg, Pa.

The late Mrs. Wallace was an excellent Christian woman, beloved by all who knew her, and was an active member of the Presbyterian church until it was merged into the Congregational church a few years ago. She became a member of the latter church a year ago last Easter.

The funeral occurred from the house at 2 o'clock this afternoon, Rev. S. A. Willard being the officiating minister. Mrs. F. O. Robinson and Mrs. Lester Samuelson sang.

Interment was made in the Hartington cemetery.

Farm Bureau Field Notes
C. R. Young, County Agent

Ninety-eight persons sat at the banquet given at the McDonald Hotel in Emerson last Tuesday evening by members of the Community club of that place, to members and their wives of the Northeast Nebraska Pure-Bred Livestock Breeders' association. This was the first event of the kind held by this new organization, which had its birth on August 27th, last.

It proved to be a very pleasant and profitable occasion. Mayor John M. Leaver of Emerson, made the address of welcome, which was responded to by Harry L. Keefe of Walthill. Mr. Keefe took an optimistic view of things and showed his anticipation of better times in the near future.

Director W. H. Brokaw of the State Extension Service told how livestock improvement may be spread through Boys and Girls Pure-breed clubs. Club work means good citizenship," declared Mr. Brokaw. The need of breeding good draft horses for the immediate future was emphasized in this talk.

Tuberculosis eradication in Nebraska was the subject discussed by Dr. C. H. Hays, of the U. S. Bureau of Animal Industry. This was taken up from both the effect to the human family and the economic features. That it is transmissible from animal to animal, and where found in other than cattle can generally be traced directly to them as its source of origin was set forth in Dr. Hays' talk. The splendid work being done in the counties where an organized effort is made against the disease showed how possible it is to, in a few years, wipe out this menace.

Chester Griff of Bancroft, a breeder of Red Polled cattle, urged the small breeders to join the organization, that they may enjoy the advantages of large breeders in sales and advertising. "Every member get a member" was the slogan suggested by this speaker.

Mrs. E. D. Frederickson of South Sioux City discussed advertising in its various forms, setting forth the advantage of both the local and larger publications.

Dr. W. S. Woodring, acting State veterinarian, told of the work done by his department in animal disease control over the state. He told of how fifteen state and twenty federal veterinarians cover the state in their campaign.

Hon. J. J. McCarthy of Ponca told of the rotten market conditions and how unjust the controlling interests have been in allowing other business to continue their profiteering. As a specific instance, he mentioned corn as selling at 23 cents per bushel and corn flakes at 7 1/2 cents per ounce or $1.20 per pound. Closer organization was given as the way out.

Mr. Don Cunningham of Wayne, in a short talk brought the good will of the breeders of his county and stated that they were ready to join the other counties in the Northeast Nebraska association, although they had a county organization.

During the afternoon, preceding the banquet, a round table was held at the City Hall. Advertising, extending the pure-bred industry and disease control were freely discussed by all members.

Mr. Dan F. Sheehan, of Dakota county, and one of the best Poland China hog breeders of the state, as president of the association, presided at both meetings.

Hog cholera is prevalent in the eastern and southern parts of the county. This is perhaps the worst outbreak in recent years.

Owners of herds of swine should use every precaution to prevent the disease. Those who have already vaccinated, should give their herds the best of care to keep them healthy, as the lowering of the animal's resistance might even go to the point where they would contract the disease.

Construct or Remodel Your Poultry House Now.
An inadequate or poorly constructed house is one of the important factors in keeping Nebraska egg production down to 70 eggs per hen. It is not always necessary to build a new house; the old one can be remodeled to meet the requirements of a good poultry house.

First—plenty of fresh air should be present in every house, at least one-third of the front should be open. Cover the opening with a muslin frame when there is a wind from the south bearing a cold rain, snow or a freezing temperature.

Second—sunlight should fall upon every square foot of floor space some time during the day. Arrange windows accordingly.

Third—keep the house dry with a good roof and floor. Wet straw on the floor means poor ventilation or a leak.

Fourth—be sure that the hens are not compelled to roost in cross drafts. Colds and roup are present too frequently in a drafty house.

Fifth—the cost should be as low as possible to keep down the overhead expense. A cheap house of proper construction is just as good as a more expensive one.

Sixth—Build for permanence. Use concrete foundations and flooring and cover the house with a good durable roof and keep the outside well painted. A low depreciation is an economic necessity.

Seventh—the house must be roomy enough for all the fowls which are kept there. For the medium breeds, such as the Rocks and Wyandottes, provide four square feet of floor space for each hen, and they should not be crowded on the roosts.

Home Emergencies.

Every woman at some time in her life is called upon to nurse the sick or attend emergency accidents. Many women are interested in learning all they can of the nursing care for the sick. The sick may be made more comfortable and the duration of the illness shortened by the women of the home having a knowledge of simple methods of nursing. First aid supplies in the home often prevent unnecessary infection. Simple equipment in the sick room will make home nursing easier and more efficient.

Miss Louise H. Murphy, State Home Health specialist, will be in our county October 18, 19 and 20. She will demonstrate and lecture on "Home Emergencies." Miss Murphy will have a home-made emergency cabinet and supplies.

Meetings will be held in the following precincts on Home Emergencies:

Oct. 18th—Fire Hall, at Emerson.
Oct. 20th—Court Room, Dakota City.

Judging Sheep.

Improvement of the sheep industry depends to a great extent upon a more general understanding of what constitutes a good or inferior animal and a broader appreciation of judging individuals by a study of their external parts, according to an illustrated bulletin now being printed by the U. S. department of Agriculture and soon to be distributed free upon request to the Nebraska Agricultural college or any of its county extension agents. The success or failure of a breeder likewise depends largely upon his ability to place the proper weight on the various points which must be considered in selecting foundation stock. This ability can be gained only through a careful, systematic study, coupled with a great deal of practice in judging and handling of sheep.

COUNTY SCHOOL NOTES

W. E. VOSS, Superintendent

A number of parents have called at the office recently to see whether they could keep their children out of school to husk corn and still comply with the compulsory education law of 1921. In nearly all cases no arrangements could be made, for this law requires regular attendance until 120 days have been attended. This means about 18 days out of every school month for the first seven months in most instances.

The conditions under which a permit may be obtained to stay out of school to work are where the labor of the child is necessary for his own support or for the support of those actually dependent upon him. This, however, is further modified by the law: A child cannot be given a permit to stay out of school when he has not reached the age of 14; but after this age and before he is 16 years of age he may receive such permit under the above conditions when he has completed the eighth grade and when higher grades are offered in the district of his residence. It follows, therefore, that a pupil past the age of 14 residing in a district that does not offer high school course and holding an eighth grade diploma is exempt from further school attendance.

If these conditions cannot be met, it will do no good to see me, for I am to follow the law and let all parents or patrons look alike to me. However, I want all to feel free to present their cases to me whenever they seem to possess the merits to gain the object or end sought. Under these conditions, there will be no trouble or misunderstanding; I am sure. It is only when a person seeks to farm out his acquaintance, friendship or prestige with me that things become unpleasant and unsettled.

For those who figure that they need the help of their children at this time, there seems to be but one proper way to get material help from their children who cannot stay out of school under this law; and that is, substitute one or two weeks of vacation that are usually allowed for the holidays during the winter for a vacation set during the corn husking season. Personally, I think this a good plan, and one that works no lasting harm to any one. It may also be a cherished custom in this county for schools to spend more holiday time than any other business institution, but that should not stand in the way of utility at this time.

You can have the Lincoln Evening Journal mailed to you anywhere in Nebraska or adjoining states until January 1st for only 75 cents or including the big Sunday Journal for $1.00. It costs more to produce a morning paper, therefore the price for the Morning Journal to January 1st is $1.00, with the Sunday $1.25. Take your choice. They are both complete twenty-four hour papers and the biggest bargains offered. The Evening is $4 a year or $5 with Sunday, and the Morning is $5 a year or $6 with Sunday. The Journal is the only morning paper printed in Lincoln and on rural routes is a full day ahead of many other papers with the news.

Ever Seen a Range Built as of Solid Gold?

We invite you to admire this new, practically everlasting coal and wood range with its outer walls and high closet built of a golden metal that makes it the counterpart in appearance of a range built of solid gold! Its beauty is indescribable—it must be seen. Nothing like it has you ever witnessed. And the new metal—heavy, thick "copperoid"—retains its golden color, is not discolored by heat, cleans easily, defies rust, does not chink, crack or break. See it and marvel!

ROUND OAK COPPEROID CHIEF RANGE
Great production has priced this new beauty surprisingly low. And the price is guaranteed. Terms arranged.
