Presence of Fish a Puzzle. A Saltcoats (Sask.) reader says, and the statement is made on that authority only, that after some heavy rains, of which there was a plentiful supply during the month, he saw thousands of small fish in the hay meadows where hay had been cut in the fall; the hollows made by the horses feet were literally alive with them. There are no lakes, rivers or creeks near where they were. About three miles farther north, some men raking hay that had been cut and put in bunches previous to the rain, and who were putting it on a higher ground to dry, pulled out along with the hay quite a considerable number of pike, about eight and ten inches long. As in the first case, there is no running water or lakes in the vicinity. Where did the fish come
