The City of Alliance.

Alliance is a thriving, pushing, growing little city of 3500 souls, with a future full of promise—indeed, so bright is the outlook, it is freely predicted that within five years it will have a population of from 5000 to 6000. In all of Northwest Nebraska there is no town, in point of population and volume of business, that can approach it.

WHEN nature manufactured Froot, it was a work distressing; she emptied the gray matter out, and put in salad dressing.

DEMOCRATIC effort, aided by the efforts of populists, secured the passage of the irrigation law and of the anti-oleomargarine law. These laws were opposed only by republicans.

REPUBLICANS are always prating about their love for the farmer. But it took democratic effort to secure the passage of the irrigation law. The opposition came from the republican side of the house.

What About Mickey?

A MAN cannot serve two masters. Mercer's first allegiance is to the corporations, and as between the corporations and the common people he will always be for the corporations.—Omaha Bee.

But what about Mr. Mickey, Mr. Rosewater? Can he serve two masters any more acceptably or with any more success than Mr. Mercer? Ten days before the republican state convention met your paper reported John N. Baldwin, general solicitor of the Union Pacific, as saying—and Mr. Baldwin has never denied that he said it—"We have held a consultation and have decided on Mickey as our man." Now who are "We?" Do you imagine for a moment that Mr. Baldwin was consulting with the patrons of the Union Pacific and other railroads in the state? Not on your life! He was consulting with other railroad attorneys, political fixers, corporation republicans and party managers. Mickey is just as much the tool of the corporations as Mercer—and even more so if such a thing is possible. Mickey is not so omnipotent that he can serve two masters any better than Mercer can serve two masters. Owing his nomination to John N. Baldwin and his associates in railroad and political manipulation, Mickey's first allegiance will be to the corporations. You know it, Mr. Rosewater. Why not admit the truth? Every argument you have used against David H. Mercer applies with equal force to John H. Mickey, and you know it, Mr. Rosewater. You have often prated about your love for the taxpayers and your wonderful political honesty, Mr. Rosewater. Now prove it by opposing Mickey—"Our man Mickey." Jump, Mr. Rosewater, Jump!

UNDER fusion management the floating debt of the state was reduced $300,000. Under two years of republican management the floating indebtedness of the state has been increased much more than $300,000.

If the protective tariff does not enable the manufacturer to secure a higher price for his wares the tariff is of no avail. If it does enable the manufacturer to secure a higher price for his wares it is a legalized robbery of the consumers.

REPUBLICANS favor a tariff on manufactured goods because they insist that it increases competition and results in decreased prices. Then they favor a tariff on wheat because, as they claim, it increases the price the farmer receives for his wheat. Republican logic is an almighty queer thing.

"Look here, did you say in a public speech that I was a thief, a liar, a hypocrit and a scoundrel?" "O, dear me, no. I said nothing of the kind. I remarked that you were a resourceful captain of industry, a man of many expedients, a man who could adapt himself to any environment and capable of managing a business of any description." And that's the way President Roosevelt is explaining to the trusts just what he means by his public utterances on the trust question.

The Fowler Bill.

The Lincoln Journal is guilty either of inexcusable ignorance or unblushing mendacity. Seeking to belittle the issue presented by the Fowler banking currency bill the Lincoln Journal declares: "But the Fowler bill is dead. It expired by limitation with the congress that did not consider it." If the Lincoln Journal knew better it is guilty of mendacity; if it does not know better it is guilty of inexcusable ignorance. The Lincoln Journal and its ilk may take either horn of the dilemma. The Fowler bill is not dead for the very good and simple reason that the congress in which it was introduced is not dead. The Fowler bill was not introduced into the last congress, but into the present congress, the second session of which begins next December. The Fowler bill is on the house calendar with the recommendation of the republican majority of the committee on banking and currency that it do pass. It comes up for consideration at the next session of the present congress—the congress in which it was introduced. Every congress has at least two sessions—and more if called together in extraordinary session. The first session of the present congress met last December and adjourned for the summer recess about the first of July. In that session the Fowler bill was introduced and recommended for passage. It was on the calendar when recess was taken, and is among the first of the bills to come up for consideration when the second session convenes next December. The ship subsidy bill was introduced at the first session and passed the senate. It, too, is to come up in the house at the next session. The State Journal need not think it can deceive the people in this matter—not thinking people, at any rate. And the republican organ that quotes with approval the Journal's editorial on the Fowler bill simply convicts its editor of woeful ignorance or a desire to deceive. The Fowler bill provides for:

Branch banks, which is a revival of the old United States bank that was destroyed by Andrew Jackson.

For an asset currency, which is a revival of the old wild cat money that wrought such ruin, and means simply that the money of the depositors is used as security for the currency and will be used to redeem that currency in case the bank fails.

The redemption of silver dollars in gold at the option of the holder of the silver, thus providing another endless chain whereby gold gamblers can raid the gold reserve and force more bond issues.

The retirement of the greenbacks, thus securing the hold of the bankers upon the paper currency of the government, and the formation of a banking trust that will hold the government and the people at its mercy insofar as the finances of the country are concerned.

Of course the Lincoln Journal and its echoes throughout the state would dearly love to have the people believe that the Fowler bill is dead.

THERE appears to be more kinds of republicans in Iowa than there are democrats in Nebraska.

THE other day a private citizen, an editor, went back to his boyhood's home to attend a country fair. He had been asked to make an address to his old neighbors and agreed to do so. He held no political office, he was not a candidate for any office—in fact he had been defeated for office—but he spoke to 15,000 people who gathered from far and near to hear him. Who was it? He is a man whose home is Lincoln, Nebraska, where there is a daily newspaper that thinks it good politics, good judgment and good taste to copy every ill-natured snarl at him it sees in republican papers; that never loses an opportunity to sneer at him, and fills its columns with the libelous, scurrilous and nasty flings that hide-bound republican organs fairly reek with every day. Is there any need to mention the name of the man or the name of the paper?

A VOTE for the fusion state ticket is a vote for equal taxation and just enforcement of the laws.

AFTER a decade of sobriety, during which time he denounced the liquor traffic, Rev. Sam Small fell by the wayside. And now every cheap skate in the country is denouncing him. When you hear a man denouncing Sam Small for hypocrisy, you can bet that the man's breath smells like a distillery, that he is the bond slave of whiskey and the possessor of a head so little that his eyes could be covered by a copper cent and a brain so little that a score like it would not grease the front bearings of a bicycle. The true christian has charity for Small's weakness, and the genuine man who has fallen under the blight of rum knows what a battle a man like Small must wage to remain sober a month.

THE farmer is assessed at one-fifth. The railroad is assessed at one-seventh. This is republican discrimination. The farmer's property is returned at 20 per cent of its value. The railroad's property is returned at 14 per cent. Why? The railroads own the republican administration. Now can you see why the railroad attorneys and political manipulators are so anxious to have the republican ticket elected.

DR. J. N. LYMAN, fusion candidate for auditor, is a veteran of the civil war. He has a splendid record as a public official. There is no taint of corporation control on that record. As treasurer he would not be the willing tool of the railroad attorneys. He would deal out evenhanded and exact justice to every class of Nebraska's citizenship. He will make the best treasurer Nebraska ever had. A vote for Lyman is a vote for a man who has the interests of the whole people at heart.

It will take something more than a bronco buster and rough rider to convince thinking Nebraskans that there are no bad trusts, no inequalities in the revenue laws, no need of thorough tariff revision and no wrong in the g. o. p.

LET'S see, a few years ago republicans declared that it was undignified for a presidential candidate to tour the country making campaign speeches. And now those same republicans are complimenting Roosevelt for doing what they denounced a democrat for doing. Republican logic is full of crimps as a republican platform is full of evasions.

Perfection

IS ONLY ATTAINED in another sphere. We do not live there, hence errors sometimes occur. We are not only WILLING but ANXIOUS to make them right.

We want your trade. Patterns and prices which we willingly submit should secure it. Always a little more than your money's worth, should retain it.
