After a pleasant visit of three weeks in Alliance, C. E. May returned to his home at New Windsor, Colo., this morning. THE HERALD will try to keep him posted on the news at the old home.

A. D. McCandless and wife spent a few hours last Sunday in the city, on their way to Berea, where they will remain at the bedside of Mrs. S. A. McCandless, who is now slowly recovering from a severe illness.

John Lawrence came in from the McLain ranch, in Dawes county, yesterday and attended the ball given by the railway conductors. Mr. Lawrence is an old-time Northwestern railway employe from Boone, Iowa.

H. H. Hobart came up from the Ankeny ranch Tuesday to have some dental work done which was made necessary by a fractious steer "getting him under the jaw." Mr. Hobart has been visiting Mr. Ankeny for a couple of months. His home here is at Clifton, Iowa.

The Conductors Entertain Royally.

The grand ball given by the Order of Railway Conductors at the Zbinden-Miller hall last night was an interesting social affair. An event that brought together a large audience among whom were numbered many from abroad. The ball decorations were artistic and the colors of the order—red, green and white—found pleasing contrast in the graceful ornamental decorations. The greeting, "Welcome" was neatly designed and the expression made all feel glad that they were present to accept the hospitality of the gallant pastebored punchers. Every committee paid strict attention to business and hence the grand success attained.

The famous Tenth U. S. Cavalry orchestra, under the directorship of Prof. Geo. H. Kelly, provided the music and kept the dancers in high spirits from the time of the grand march till the close of the program.

Light refreshments were served during the evening, and the guests departed after a night of much joy, declaring the second annual ball of the Order of Railway Conductors a grand success.

Firemen's Ball.

The Alert Fire department has perfected arrangements for a grand ball to be given March 17, (St. Patrick's night) and have engaged the Zbinden-Miller hall for the event. There are many reasons why the citizens of Alliance should assist in every way to make this affair a most successful one. It will be remembered that the fire boys gave up the opera house, which they had engaged for a ball July 4th, for the benefit of Alliance citizens and visitors.

Following are the committees: General arrangements—F. H. Pardey, L. A. Suprise, O. Owens.

Floor—Dr. Koons, Wm. Moulton, James Keeler, R. C. Wells, Wayne D. Zediker, Fred Hoyt, Marcus Colburn.

Reception—W. O. Barnes, G. G. Hampton, Ed Reardon, J. A. Reardon, H. T. Lunn, L. A. Suprise, W. W. Norton, H. C. Derolf.

Vaughn-Hashman.

A pretty wedding was solemnized Wednesday, January 13, 1904, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Hashman, eight miles northwest of Alliance, when their daughter Bessie Ethel was married to Frank Vaughn. The ceremony was performed by Judge D. K. Spacht in the presence of a large number of friends. The contracting parties are well known and popular young people of that vicinity and start out on their voyage under favorable circumstances. Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn will take a wedding trip to Colorado. THE HERALD joins their friends in extending congratulations. Following are some of the presents received: Cow and horse, Mr. Hashman; table cloths and napkins, Mrs. Hashman; rocking chair, Joe Kroll; sugar shell, G. W. Young; napkins and table cloth, Mrs. Claud May; New Windsor, Colo.; pie plates, Mrs. Alvin Riley; set table spoons, Mrs. Warner; set tea spoons, Mrs. Elmer Vaughn; set knives and forks, Mrs. Ellsworth Vaughn; broom and water set, Elmer Vaughn.

The Mammoth Edition.

THE HERALD's mammoth edition is progressing finely and with the general response from the public in Box Butte county we feel confident that the edition is going to be appreciated by everyone. A. B. Evans, who has the matter in hand to solicit material and views for the edition, has met with general success in every part of the county he has visited. He has returned from the eastern part of the county, where he secured many orders for excellent write ups and views of ranches, dwellings etc. Mr. Evans is at Hemingford and Marsland this week and the same generous patronage has been accorded him. Photographer Fuller went up today to assist Mr. Evans in securing good views for half-tone productions and many ranches and other views from that section of the county will adorn the mammoth edition. There's lots of work compiling the reading matter and securing views for such work, but THE HERALD will spare no pains in making the project a complete success. We have a personal pride in presenting our readers with something in the printing line which they will appreciate and with the facilities and workmen employed feel confident we can do it.

Taken to Reform School.

Joe Price and Ed Slaughter, aged ten years, were caught by the section boss in the act of placing spikes and other obstructions on the railroad track Wednesday. They had a hearing before County Judge Spacht and were deemed fit subjects for the reform school, where they were taken by Sheriff Reed yesterday.

Official County Paper for 1904.

At the meeting of the Board of Commissioners today, THE HERALD was designated as the official paper for this year and was awarded the contract for furnishing stationery and supplies.

Mrs. E. C. Anderson and daughter, Mrs. F. E. Holsten and children took their departure Sunday for Louisiana, where they will visit relatives a few weeks.

E. B. Fritis came down from Crawford to attend the O. R. C. ball last night.

Mrs. C. Hameister of Deadwood is visiting her friend, Mrs. Burris, of this city.

Geo. W. Young was drawn as a Federal juror at the next term of court to be held at Lincoln.

L. Butler of Minatare arrived in the city last night for a brief visit with his brother D. W. and sister, Mrs. W. W. Norton.

Miss Beulah Corneal, accompanied by her sister, departed last Friday for Western University, Olatado, Kans., where she will perfect her studies.

Fred Brennan and H. T. Carey, successors to C. A. Newberry in the plumbing business, have opened up in the Bell building where they have a nice line of goods displayed. Their ad appears in this issue.

At the meeting of the Cheese and Cracker club Wednesday afternoon a pearl ring was presented to Mrs. W. G. Simonson and a diamond pin to Mrs. Dorrington, as a token of esteem from the ladies of the club. Mesdames Simonson and Dorrington have been active and interesting members of the club and their withdrawal will, as a result, be regretted by the members.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Record visited Mrs. Dorrington in this city the latter part of last week leaving Saturday for Everett, Wash., their new home. Mrs. Dorrington expects to join them there in a couple of weeks. She will probably leave for Chicago tomorrow but will stop in Alliance on her return trip to say good bye to her many friends before leaving for her western home.

W. J. Johnson, better known as "Bill" Johnson the sheepman, was in from the ranch a couple of days this week and expected to meet the sheep inspector but the gentleman did not arrive. This matter of inspection is often very annoying to shippers. Mr. Johnson has about one thousand sheep in feeding which he will ship this month. A view of his ranch will appear in THE HERALD's souvenir edition.

The Alliance Typographical Union received its charter and other documents from the secretary of the International Union last week, and the local organization is now in working order. THE HERALD, which is always abreast of the times and the champion of organized labor, is the first to place the union label at the head of its column. As the saying goes among printers, THE HERALD shop wants to be "on the square" in all matters, and hence its lead in this matter.

The Women's Guild of the Episcopal church met with Mrs. E. C. Anderson last Tuesday. A large number were present, and the lunch provided was very nice. As it was the last meeting before the departure of Mrs. W. G. Simonson for Denver, the rector, who was present, took this opportunity in behalf of the Guild to wish her much happiness in her new home and church affiliations and also expressed the appreciation of the Guild for her interest in its welfare during the several years of her membership, most of the time as president. The next meeting of the Guild will be with Mrs. J. Armour.

Moving a Print Shop.

There's no fun and a whole lot of work in moving a print shop. And that's the muss we are in this week. With three presses and a bulky paper cutter and dray loads of type and paper to move from a second story to the ground floor, through a narrow stairway, takes lots of patience and sweet oil. Still, with a good system laid out by the workmen, the feat of moving THE HERALD office from over the postoffice to its own building just north of the Zbinden-Miller block was accomplished with little or no friction, pried type or upset cases. Of course, at times there was a pinched finger or stub that brought forth expressions not exactly appropriate in print, but they weren't so bad. The big Babcock printing press was moved by John Rudowsky, an expert machinist from the Great Western Type foundry at Omaha, who is a genius in his line. The monster machine was taken apart and readjusted as if it was a mere toy. John came a long ways to do the work, but it required a man of his ability to fill the bill. The draymen also handled their part of the work skillfully.

While we are about all moved and partially arranged in our new home, THE HERALD desires to state that it is "at home" to its patrons and friends and you will find the latchstring hanging out for a hearty welcome to all.

If this issue of the paper does not come up to the standard of excellence, our readers will bear with us, understanding that the task of moving THE HERALD plant consumed a great deal of time—hence our shortcoming for this week will be overlooked.

Notice.

All dogs caught running at large in the city, without a tag on, after next Monday, January 18, 1904, will be put in pound and if not redeemed will be killed. Persons not having secured tags may get them of the city marshal.
