The Trusts Desire "Publicity."
The New York Commercial, which is a staunch Republican and protectionist journal, assures us, in its issue of Sept. 9, 1902, that:

"Notwithstanding reports to the contrary, corporation lawyers and representatives of the big combines are not all offended by the attitude of President Roosevelt toward the industrial combinations. They claim that so far as they know no steps have been taken nor will be taken in the matter of influencing the president to desist from forcing the issue to the front. They argue that the president is advocating publicity in its connection with combinations is voicing the sentiments of organizers as well as owners of combinations that have been created on legitimate lines. Said a corporation attorney: "Publicity is what we desire."

Certainly the trusts desire anything that will throw dust in the eyes of the people, so that they cannot clearly see the tariff and other special privileges that foster and protect the trusts and enable them to fleece the public. The assurance of the Commercial that the trusts are not offended by the attitude of the president was not necessary. He never, by any chance, mentions the tariff in connection with trusts, and is very particular in many other respects not to offend them. If he can, by refusing to discuss the tariff, postpone the evil days for trusts he will be their best friend. He is doing his part ably. Will they show their appreciation in 1904? Of course!

A Few Trust Items.
Almost every trade paper of to-day is full of information about the trusts and advancing prices. Thus, taking up the Iron Age of Sept. 4, 1902, we find on page 47, that manufacturers of iron ware have revised their prices, and as a result rails are quoted $1 per gross higher and wash-tubs 25 cents to 50 cents higher per dozen. "The manufacturers of scythes, who have been working in harmony for some time, have agreed upon a uniform schedule of prices for next season, which may be in a general way referred to as about 50 cents in advance of the price for that season just closed. It is thought probable that prices will be well maintained and perhaps advanced, especially if the plans that are under consideration looking to the consolidation of the edge tool interests are effected."

It is stated that the American Fork and Hoe company, which includes the principal manufacturers of steel goods, has not yet announced its prices.
"An advance of twenty cents per hundred pound has recently been made in the price of wrought iron washers."

An advance of $2 a ton has been made in the price of sash weight in the New York market, making the present price $25.
"Further steps are being taken with a view to the harmonizing of our window glass interests with a possibility of success."

These are only a few items on one page of the Iron Age.

Process of Welding Aluminum.
A firm of Hanau, Germany, has succeeded in welding aluminum about the use of any metal, solder or acid. No seam can be detected, and the welded pieces can resist blows and temperature variations as well as if there were no joint. The process is a secret one.

Yellowstone Bears Are Tame.
Numbers of bears congregate around the dump back of the Canyon hotel in the grand canyon of the Yellowstone. They are tamed and are fairly tame, although they retreat when any one offers to handle them. One bear carried a tin can from the dump of his foot for over two months. There are probably thousands of bears in Yellowstone park, as the government prohibits hunting.

Kaiser is a Mighty Hunter.
The German emperor has just celebrated the thirtieth anniversary of his career as a sportsman. Germany being the cradle land of statistics, it is scarcely surprising that an exact record should have been kept of his majesty's "bags." It is announced, on the basis of official figures, that since he started shooting and hunting thirty years ago the emperor has accounted for no less than 44,443 head of game.

Invitation From Dead Man.
A resident of Waltham, Essex, England, had rather a bad shock the other evening. He received a letter the address of which was in the handwriting of a friend who had been dead six months. Upon opening the missive he found it to be an invitation to lunch. The letter had been nearly a year in transit.

More Arbitration.
The world's arbitration tribunal, which has just settled a dispute between the United States and Mexico, has another question to arbitrate, this time between Japan and England, Germany and France, over the rights of foreigners to hold property in Japan. It's arbitration the world over.

Last Shakespeare Descendant.
A memorial stone, commemorative of Shakespeare's granddaughter, Elizabeth Barnard, wife of Sir John Barnard, has recently been placed in the church at Abington, Berkshire, where she was buried. She was the last direct descendant of the poet. Her death occurred in 1769.

Possibility of Error.
On one occasion Voltaire spoke highly of Haller and then he told he was very inagnuminous. So do so, as Haller had spoken in quite the contrary way of him. "Perhaps," remarked Voltaire, reflectively, and after a pause, "perhaps, we are both mistaken."

Where He Slept.
Hoax—Sunday's such a slow day. Why, I was in bed and asleep by 9 o'clock last Sunday night. Joax—Huh! I was asleep at 7:45. "Come off! You never went to bed that early." "Oh, no; but I was in church at that time."—Philadelphia Record.

Much Campaign Literature.
Postmaster Hubbard of Boston furnishes good evidence that the recent political campaign aroused considerable interest in Massachusetts. Nearly twice as much campaign literature was handled as was ever before known in his office.

He Meant Well.
"This bell," said a well-meaning sexton when showing the belfry of an interesting village church to a party of visitors, "is only rung in case of a fire, a flood, a visit from the lord bishop of the diocese, or any such calamities."

Possibilities in Advertising.
The man who thinks satisfactory ads can be dashed off in a few minutes at any time thereby proves that he has no comprehension of the immense possibilities of good advertising.—Advertising Experience.
