The citizens' caucus held at the court house last Monday night for the purpose of placing in nomination candidates for city offices was an important affair, in which the voters of Alliance took deep interest, This was proven by the large gathering; in fact the largest that ever participated at a municipal caucus since the town was organized. The spacious court room was packed to the doors, and the gathering comprised citizens from every walk in life who were present with a hearty interest in the affairs of the town and to assist in continuing the good government that has prevailed during the past year. It was the most expressive testimonial of Mayor Buechsenstein's administration of affairs Specialties in lace curtains, portieres and and showed that the same should be not only endorsed but continued another year. The caucus was called to order by udge Berry who outlined the purpose of he gathering. On motion D. W. Butler was elected chairman of the caucus and Judge Jas. H. H. Hewett secretary. Mr. Butler

For mayor the name of Louis Buechsenstein was presented by R. M. Hampton. In referring to this well known and popular candidate the speaker reviewed the city's administration, stating that it was one that has proved most successful in every sense. Both the financial and moral welfare were benefited materially and this fact could not be contradicted. Public improvements were noted on every hand and the name of Alliance had advanced in the estimation of all, taking her place among the leading towns of the state. In presenting the name of the man under whose administration four miles east of Bridgeport. For par- such progress occurred, Mr. Hampton conticulars see M. H. Hagerty, Alliance, or tinued: "I wish to place in nomination a man who has filled the office without fear or favor, seeking always to promote the interests of the city, to place her finances on a firm basis, a man of unimpeached integrity and sterling worth, and to this end I present the name of Louis Buchenstein for mayor." Hardly had Mr. Hampton concluded when there followed from all parts of the room hearty seconds to the nomination and amid the deafening aplion, four years old next June; weight plause of the crowd Mr. Buechsenstein was by accalamation renominated for mayor. The gentleman thus honored thanked the caucus for the recognition and in the event of his election hoped to pursue the same course that characterized the past, thus appreciating the confidence reposed in him by his fellow citizens. Hardly had the echo of enthusiasm died away when there was another outburst of cheering. This time it was over the nomination of Judge Jas. H. H. Hewett for city clerk to succeed himself. Judge Berry hardly had time to place Mr. Hewett in nomination when Chairman Butler was urged to act at once and Mr. Hewett was nominated by a volley of "I's." In the person of Mr. Hewett, Alliance has an unusually well qualified clerk who is familiar with the details of the office and in his work is painstaking and accurate, his books being models of neatness and something the city can be proud of.

Mr. Hewett begged the consideration of the caucus in presenting the name of Dr. F. M. Hnight as a candidate for city treasurer. The speaker was fully endorsed by the house and Mr. Knight was renominated, thus again endorsing the city's administration of the past year. The finances of the municipality are in reliable hands and this well known fact demonstrated itself at the caucus.

shot by a hunter. Mr. Bauer passed the same complete work and high grade goods Stevens home a short time after on his way from town and the same story was told him. But when he reached home the husband soon learned the awful deed that Bertron had committed. Mrs. Bauer and the children had the doors locked and their fears that they would again be attacked by this demon of lust was pitible.

Bertron was soon in the clutches of the aw, Sheriff Reed going after him Saturday morning, when he was placed in the county jail.

At a preliminary hearing held before Judge Spacht yesterday Bertron well attended. was bound over to the district court in the sum of $3,000, the prisoner pleading innocent. Mrs. Bauer was able to be present and her testimony was of such strong nature as to lay the deed directly to Bertron and makes of him a devil in human form.

While this outrage is of such detestible and revolting nature as to call forth the condemnation of the community almost to violence let us remember that it is the hand of the law that must deal with this man, and let all confide our faith in this tribunal where Bertron will surely receive the sentence he deserves. There are men fully as deep in the vice of lust who would cry out day mob violence against Bertron, but heed them not. Respect the law which they themselves have violated and justice will prevail,

While we do not wish to Jestroy the designer's effect by word illustration of what he has in store we will take the liberty to state that the scene, which is of a typical western character, is simply grand. The western, wild life that is fast disappearing, stand out in bold relief, and the advance of civilization is so delicately yet vividly portrayed that the eyes are at once riveted on the scene while history of this interesting land passes through the mind. It is not exaggeration to say that this beautifully colored illustration is alone worth the price asked for a copy of the entire edition. No where in the state, including Omaha and Lincoln, has a

Now as to the price, per copy, for the special edition, it has been placed at 25 cents. It is the desire of the publisher to make the price as reasonable as consistent with the great expense in getting out the edition. Even at this nominal price there will be little or no profit and the publication as a whole will not be a profitable investment.

As complimentary to THE HERALD Wednesday for a week's visit with friends readers we have decided to present a copy of the illustrated edition to every PAID-UP subscriber and also to new subscribers.
