Is Mr. Smith a polygamist? That's the question.

And still they (the trust) insist that there is no trust.

It may be that the members of congress are strenuously opposed to Mormonism, but of course that's not admitting that some of them have not " got the habit."

The gathering of Democratic newspaper men at Lincoln last week was an interesting event. There were many papers and speeches on vital questions that proved intensely interesting.

Verily strange things are happening in the republican camp these days. The congressional committee for this district met at Grand Island on the 25th of last month and attempted to eliminate the common herd as a factor in the republican councils. This congressional committee recommended that the central committee of each county appoint delegates to the congressional convention. Just how they expect the rank and file of the republican party to feel bound to support a candidate in whom they have had no voice in choosing is difficult to understand. Moses P. Kinkaid must have been afraid either that he would make some bad break or that some stronger man would come out as a candidate to induce him and his friends to resort to such trickery to secure his nomination, and that nearly eight months before election. If he hasn't the backbone to stand on his merits he is not fit for congressman, and we predict that if his nomination is secured, that by the time election is over Moses will have that "gone feeling" and his henchmenwill be heard moaning incoherently: 'O where was Moses And what was he about?

O where was Moses when the light went out?"
