THE YELLOW PERIL.

It may be that the American people do not view with alarm an encroachment of the Mongolian race but present indications point strongly to a new order of things in the racial make up of the people of the United States in the next few years. The triumph of Japan over the Russian government in the war in the east would tend to increase the danger of the yellow peril and in such an event the prophecy historians would not doubt be fulfilled, that the people of Japan and China would overrun the western hemisphere. But the principal cause in giving about this condition will result from the social and business characteristics of the classes and corporations. This is plain to be seen in the ole sale employment of Japanese and Chinese labor throughout the west which is already spreading eastward. On railroads, farms, ranches and in shops the little yellow man is evidence. The Union Pacific and the Union roads have found him reliable, industrious and energetic. He is able to do a good day's work and he shirks his duty. These corporations have thousands of Japs in their employ and right here in Alliance little men from the orient are as much a sight as the native. Last week the packers in Omaha secured the services of several hundred Japanese men to take the places of the white men and it is said they proved so able and competent that the heads of the meat concerns at once announced that the labor problem had been solved, for they would be able to get all the help necessary through a Chinese labor agency in Denver. It is said that the Jap emigrant is different than that of the Chinese in as much as they do not return to their land when once they secure a competence, but readily mingle with whites and assimilate. This is a greater part of the danger of the yellow peril, for with an influx of labor and with Japan assuming the role of one of the leading nations situated directly at our rear door, the question of the peril to be shoved aside as merely an

A SPY'S CLOSE CALL.

Rescued From Impending Death by a Clever Newspaper Dealer.

On the battlefield of Antietam Mr. McClure met General William J. Palmer, then a captain, and strongly urged him not to continue his movements as a spy after Lee had crossed into Virginia, but the gallant young soldier gave no promise as to what he would be likely to do, and the very first night after Lee crossed the Potomac he was again in Lee's camp and brought back important information to General McClellan.

Again he returned and entered the Confederate lines, and when he did not report after a week it was assumed that he had been captured and would probably be executed as a spy. He had been captured, was tried and condemned as a spy and sentenced to be executed, but he was saved by a clever newspaper dealer determined upon after a conference in Philadelphia between President J. Edgar Thomson of the Pennsylvania railroad, Colonel Scott and Mr. McClure. Thomson took special interest in Palmer, as he had been his secretary, and was much attached to him.

It was decided that Washington dispatches should be prepared for all of the Philadelphia morning papers announcing the arrival at the capital of Captain William J. Palmer, stating in what particular lines of the enemy he had operated, and adding that he had brought much important information that could not be given to the public at that time. These dispatches appeared next morning in all the Philadelphia papers, prominently displayed, and of course reached the southern lines within forty-eight hours.

The result was that Captain Palmer's identity was never established in Richmond, and his execution was thus suspended. In a little while, when some prisoners had been exchanged, there was a vacancy made in the list of the exchanged men by death. Palmer's friends had him take the place and name of the dead soldier, and he thus escaped and returned to the service.
