Mrs. De Long Finds That the Inde-Be Cured Through the Blood.

Mrs. E. M. De Long, of No. 160 West Broadway, Council Bluffs, Iowa, found herself anddenly attacked by rucumntism in the winter of 1896. She gave the doctor a chance to help har, which he failed to improve, and thea she did some thinking and experimenting of her own. She was so successful that she deems it her duty to tell the story of her escape from auffering:

My brother-in law," she says, "was enthusiastic on the subject of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a purifier of the blood, and when I was suffering extreme pains in the joints of my anlites, knees, hips, wrists and elbows, and the doctor was giving me no relief. I began to reflect that rheumathen is a disease of the blood, and that if Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are so good for the blood they must be good for rheumatism and worth a trial

"I was in bed half the time, suffer Ing with pain that causot be described to one who has nover had the disease. It would concentrate sometimes in one set of joints. When it was in my feet I could not walk; when it was in my cipows and wrists I could not even draw the coverlets over my body. I had suffered in this way for weeks bofore I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, Two weeks after I heran with them I experienced relief and after I had taken six boses I was entirely well. To make sure I continued to use them about two weeks longer and then stopped altogether. For severaf years I have had no reason to use them for myself, but I have recoccusended them to others as an excollent remedy."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills furnish the blood with all the elements that are needed to build up healthy tissue, strong muscles and nerves, capable of bearing the strain that nature puts upon them. They really make new blood and cure all diseases arising from disorders of the blood or nerves. such as sciatics, neuralgia, partial pavalysis, locomotor ataxia, St. Vitus' dauce, nervous prostration, anemia and all forms of weakness in either mple or female. They are sold by all druggists.

"Give me a moment alone-give me time to think," she said.

Katherine eagerly, "It is, remember, to the effect the rescue of the young exile who snatched you from the jaws of death."

So saying, Katherine left the room. The girl rose to her feet. Her heaving bosom showed that she was under some intense strain. She walked up and down the room once or twice, her hands pressed to her throbbing temples. At the upper end of the room was a stack of arms. She cautiously approached it and examined the guns. They were of the old-fashioned percussion cap type. Taking the decanter of vodka which stood near, she gazed curiously around for a moment and then poured the liquor down the bar- of the courier. She stepped to his rels of the guns. Just as she had door on tintoe, finished this extraordinary act there was a sound at the outer door, and Karsicheff and Nicholas re-entered the room

They looked curiously at the girl. "The lady has gone," explained Caroline, "but she will return presently." "All right," said Nicholas, "we were afraid we might have interrupted your conversation." At this moment the courier's door opened slightly, "Are you there, commandant?" he inquired. "Yes," shortly answered Karsicheff.

"Those pardons for Alexis Nazimoff and Ivan Barosky are not to be forwarded to Chitka until I see you in the morning. I have other papers to send with them to the ispavnik at Chitka."

"Your orders will be obeyed." "Very well," and the courier closed his door. "You had better get the pardors from mother." said Nicholas, in case

"There is plenty of time. She has them in her bosom and to ask her for them now would excite her still more. How has she succeeded, I wonder, She had sunk into the chair, her head supported by her hand and her regular, heavy breathing showed that she was fast asleep. Karsicheff shrugged his shoulders. "Not a very presponse. "And now, madame, give me the file and an opportunity to get into the prison pen."

"Let the signal be a pistol shot," said Katherine, with feverish haste. "Here is a file; my husband has given orders to admit you to the kameras. Do not falter. Keep a brave heart,

"Do not fear, madame. My success

"Victory-revenge-oh, my plan is erine, as she went to the door and watched the girl enter the stockade. A moment later she saw a figure slink "I will awalt your answer," said along in the darkness. It was Nichoins and he was following Caroline. Even as she saw him disappear. Karsicheff approached, the guard following him from the guardhouse. Silently they entered the house and taking their arms from the rack were conducted behind a door opposite to that which the convicts were to enter Katherine gave a signal for profound silence as Karsicheff disappeared with his men.

Then, drawing a revolver, from her bosom, she examined it carefully and replaced it ready for use.

All was going well-everything was serfect, all but the pardon of Ilda Barosky, and that was in possession

But not softly enough.

"Who goes there!" said a gruff voice.

"The wife of the commandant, colonel. I was anxious about your in juries. Can I do anything for your comfort?"

"Thank you, no. I simply need real.

Katherine stepped back. "He is wide awake. The pardon can not be stolen while he sleeps." Then a thought occurred to her and she smiled. Evidently a happy thought It was this: If Caroline could succeed in the one task, why not try to make her attempt the other.

Every' minute seemed an hour as Katherine, her heart beating with anxlous throbs, waited the return of the girl. She peered out into the night, trying to pierce the gloom. It was not long until her patience was rewarded. With a light step and with an air that spoke of success, Caroline appeared on the outside of the stockade, ran across, and entered the house. "Have you succeeded," asked Kath-vrine, eagerly. "Better, madame, than I had dared o hope."

"They will attempt to storm the house."

"They are getting ready now." "Brave girl. Oh, had I now but pos ession of the pardon of Ilda Barosky hy triumph would be complete. "Ilda Barosky," said Caroline, "an absent friend?"

"No," responded Katherine, "she is my bitterest enemy, and in three days she will be free. The courier lies asleep in that room with her pardon in his possession. Could you but secure that pardon I would give you any reward you could ask in my power. "He is asleep, you say?" asked Caroline.

pardoned by the czar. Their pardons ire here," and she waved the papers high above her head.

Katherine sprang at her, but recolled at the cocked revolver leveled at her head. "Woman, devil, serpent, spy," she screamed, "who are you?" Tearing off the blonde wig which had so effectually disguised her, the girl with flashing eyes confronted the maddened woman as she exclaimed: "I am IIda Barosky! and the courier has my pardon! I too am free!" A great cheer went up from the exfles, while the soldiers looked on in helpless wonderment. As the cheer died away there came to the ears of all the sound of galloping horses, the jingle of sleigh bells, and a moment later the voice of Septimus Cobb, who burst through the crowd with a paper held in his hand; "It is here, colonel," he said. "I have kept my word!"

"Down with them all!" yelled Karlebeff in a very paroxysm of baffled rage.

The largest tree in the world is to be seen at Mascali, near the foot of Mount Etna, and is called "The Chestnut Tree of a Hundred Horses." Its name rose from the report that Queen Jane of Aragon, with her principal nobility, took refuge from a violent storm under its branches. The trunk is 204 feet in circumference.

SAFEST FOOD

In Any Time of Trouble Is Grape-Nuts.

food to rebuild the strength and that is pre-digested must be selected when one is convalescent. At this time there is nothing so valuable as Grape-Nuts, for the reason that this food is all nourishment and is also all digestible nourishment. A woman who used it says:

Some time ago I was very ill with typhoid fever, so ill everyone thought I would die, even myself. It left me so weak I could not properly digest food of any kind and I also had much bowel trouble which left me a weak, hetoless wreck "! needed nourishment as badly as aavone could, but none of the tonics beloed me until I finally tried Grape-Nuts food morning and evening. This not only supplied food that I thought delicious as could be, but it also made me perfectly well and strong again so I can do all my housework, sleep well, can eat anything without any trace of bowel trouble and for that reason alone Grape-Nuts food is worth its weight in gold." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Typhoid fever, like some other discases, atteks the bowels and frequently sets up bleeding and makes them for months incapable of digesting the starches and therefore pre-digested Grape-Nuls is invaluable for the wellknown reason that in Grape-Nuts all the starches have been transformed into grape sugar. This means that the field stage of digestion has been me--basically accomplished in Grape-Nuts food at the factories and therefore unyone, no matter how weak the stomach, can handle it and grow strong, for all the nourishment is still there.

There's a sound reason and 10 days' trust proves.

Karsicheff's eyes sparkled. "Excellent," he said.

Nicholas was doubtful. "She has not the nerve to carry it out."

"Leave me-we shall see. Go and instruct the guard to give her free entrance to the kamera, and to leave the gate open if you should desire. Then get your guards ready. If I can bring her to nerve herself to act all will go well and Alexis Nazimoff | and Ivan Barosky will trouble us no more," and Katherine Karsicheff fairly gloated over the prospect.

"There must be no mistake," said Nicholas. "I will get a convict's suit and go into the kameras where I can overhear and see what she does,

"You are fatigued." kindly said Katherine, "Perhaps, after all, what I suggested was too much for your strength, and we must abandon the poor fellow to his fate."

"No, I will try to do as you desire, madame."

"Brave, noble girl, you will not fail, and we shall have the happiness of seeing your preserver on the road to freedom.

"Yes, I think so. Will you try?" "I will try."

No sound broke the silence save the hard breathing of the two women. Caroline went softly to the door opened it, and disappeared in the hall within. Katherine ran to her husband's greatcoat and secured another revolver. Then she waited.

Another moment and the girl entered the room.

"Have you succeeded," asked Kath erine with feverish anxiety. 'Ay, madame, but you have failed.'

"Failed!" gasped Katherine. "Yes, the pardons you have in your

With a cry of rage, Katherine tore open the bosom of her dress and nulled forth the envelope. Taking out the pardons she exclaimed: "No, they are genuine. See the great seal," and she pointed to the paper.

The girl grasped the document with a grip of iron. "Yes, they are genuine, thank God.'

"Yes, yes! give them to me now, said Katherine.

"Never," should the girl in a loud solee. "These pardons that make Alexis Nazimoff and Ivan Barosky free are mine!"
