The Farmer Thinks of Advertising.

This Fillmore county farmer's view of it is worth something to every business man, says the Fremont Tribune. 14 Here is a bit of wisdom from him that 15 will do any merchant good:

"The grass-hopper eats the farmer's 19 Orah Clayton, Canton. grain, The hobo steels his honey, The bed bug bites his juicy back 22 And Sears & Roebuck get his money.' Why do they get his money? Simply because they advertise in an intelligent, up-to-date manner. They go into detail. They describe everything. They tell you what the article is for, how to use it and show you how it would be profitable for you to own it. . And last, but not least, they name the 35 price. How many merchants do this? They are mighty few, Most all of them are content, if they advertise at all, to say 'John Jones, Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes Etc., and then wind up with a notice that their establishment is located four doors south of Funk's livery stable. If the merchant 46 in our home town doesn't know enough 47 to advertise and price his wares in 49 Hazel Beck, Alliance. such a manner that a white man can make out something more than his location and that he sells boots and shoes, we don't want to bear him bellyache because the farmer has sent off to Sears & Roebuck," " If the local mer- 57 chant wants the farmer's trade let him use the local papers, tell us what his stuff is like, name the price, and then see that his goods are just as he ad-

The Fifth grade in the Central school also deserves special and honorable mention in that the grade has a record of perfect punctuality for the nine months of school the past year, and those who are unaccustomed to school work it would not on first thought occur to them that to attain such a record requires great vigilance and interest on the part of the teacher, and also of each of the pupils in that grade to accomplish such result.

Respectfully, W. H. BARTZ, Superintendent.
