Miss Josie Katen returned from Omaha where she has been receiving treatment from Dr. Gifford for her eyes. She has been much benefited by the treatment.
In pursuance to the published notice the trustees of the Hemingford Telephone met to consider bids for the operation of central for the ensuing year on August 25, 1905. Only one bid was in, that of E. D. Piper. This was not technically correct and the board adjourned until the following day. At that time there were bids of E. D. Piper, Miss Bertha Burleigh, C. J. Wildy and Brown Church. After consideration the board awarded the contract to Miss Burleigh. While her bid was not the lowest it appears to have been the most satisfactory to the board. The choice is said to have been unanimous.

Bids for Central Operator.
Bids will be received up to August 25, at noon, to operate central for one year, from September 1, 1905 to August 31, 1906. The operator is to furnish room, heat and light. It is conditioned that if central is moved from present location it shall be at the expense of the bidder.
A. M. Miller,
H. R. Green,
Orville Kidwell,
Trustees.
By Chas. H. Burleigh, Secretary.

Miss Grant arrived in town Monday and school will begin September 4. Parents are requested to have their children enroll on first day of the term.
A. E. Byers was a Hot Springs visitor Sunday. While there he saw Charley Moreen who has been taking treatment at the cancer sanitarium and who is getting along nicely.
We voice the sentiment of the Pioneer Grip when it says that "it would be a mighty mean man who would run against Mrs. Rustin for the office of county superintendent." There being more than one reason, the principal one of which is that she deserves the office and is capable of filling it.

Great Writers Not Correct Writers.
There is not a single great author in our literature in whose works numerous errors have not been pointed out or thought to be pointed out. They are charged with violating rules involving the purity if not the permanence of the language. A somewhat depressing inference follows from the situation thus revealed. The ability to write English correctly does not belong to the great masters of our speech. It is limited to the obscure men who have devoted themselves to the task of showing how far these vaunted writers have fallen short of the ideals of linguistic propriety entertained by their unrecognized betters. As a result of these critical crusades there is no escape from the dismal conclusion that the correct use of the language is not to be found in the authors whom every one reads with pleasure, but is an accomplishment reserved exclusively for those whom nobody can succeed in reading at all.—Professor Thomas H. Lounsbury in Harper's Magazine.

Squirrels Are "Handy."
The handiness of the squirrel is something extraordinary in the animal world. He sits up on his hind paws and uses the fore paws in many ways just as a man does. He strikes with it and wards off a blow from another, and squirrel quarrels rarely go further than attempts to cuff each other like children. A lady who lives in our county and who is the protector of squirrels in that region told me that she had contrived a little rack to be filled with nuts, so that they came to the opening singly, one dropping into the place as another was taken out, and this was fixed by her window so that she could watch the squirrels come. One day a squirrel took the last nut and was quietly eating it on the window bench when another came and, finding none in the rack, went up to the eating squirrel and gave him a deliberate box on the ear and went away.—W. J. Stillman in Century.

Eyeglasses and Romance.
It is curious to observe that even the greatest realists do not venture to bestow eyeglasses on their heroines. It is rather odd, too, seeing how many charming women do in real life wear them and are not deterred by them from the most poignant emotions, but while the modern novelist has bestowed eyeglasses on everybody else he has not yet had the hardihood to put them on the nose of his heroine. Why?—Mrs. John Lane in London Outlook.

Incaruate Umbrellas.
We English, of course, get what we call hardened to horrible climatic changes. Nevertheless I am convinced that our solemnity of demeanor is generated by our gray skies, our piercing east winds, our heavy, yellow fogs and our slushy roads and pavements. The waterproof face is the direct result of a firmament of lead. Many of us English people look like incarnate umbrellas.—London Queen.

Good Reason.
Marie, who never knew her lessons, was speaking of one of her little schoolmates, who always stood at the head of her classes. "I should like to be the father of such a little girl," said Marie's papa, wishing to point a moral. "No, you wouldn't, papa," said Marie. "Why not?" asked papa. "Because her father has been dead two years," said Marie.

One Sided.
Mr. T.—I think I shall give up my business, my dear. I might as well have some enjoyment out of my money. Mrs. T.—Oh, not yet, Samuel! But when one of us dies I intend to give up housekeeping and see a little of the world.—Illustrated Bits.

A Reflection.
Daisy—Why was Maude Oldgirl so angry about her photographs? Didn't they flatter her? Maude—Oh, they were as pretty as the artist could make them, but on the back of each one it said, "The original of this picture is carefully preserved."

Strategy.
The minister who had difficulty in keeping his parishioners' eyes fixed on him during the sermon solved the difficulty by placing a large clock directly behind him.—Liverpool Mercury.
