

A Christmas Heart

THE finest thoughts and the noblest acts are born of the Christmas spirit. The Christmas spirit is the kind of philosophy, the kind of morality, the kind of religion that the whole wide world knows, understands and believes. It is the sum total of all the kindness, the humanity and the affection that the Creator implanted in the heart of mankind.

There will be many in our city who will have no real Christmas. They will not all be poor in material things. Many will be among surroundings of luxury. As a matter of fact, the most of those who fall outside the pale of the Christmas idea have plenty and to spare of things to eat and to wear and all the physical comforts.

You may not know many, we may not know many who won't have a Christmas, but we all know some whose lives can be made brighter. Then, because it is not always possible to see the heavy heart, if we lose no opportunity to carry this Christmas spirit into the lives of all we come in touch with, there will be few who will not have the joy of the Christmas time.

You may have thought you would not give anything to this one or that one. Are you sure there may not be a heartache there that your thoughtfulness might take away? You may have said, "I'm going to be more economical this year and not do as much as I did last year." Is that real economy? When you think that economy really means getting the most possible out of everything, including your life, would that be real economy?

The time is short till the great day, but there is remaining enough time so that if all of us will do our part there will not be a sore spot anywhere on Christmas morning.

Let's all have the Christmas heart.
