The crop report assures us that there is "more to eat for every person in America." But it fails to point out how we are going to raise the money to buy the additional goodies.

In the renewal of the attack upon Secretary of the Interior Ballinger, friends of that gentleman profess to see clear evidences of a plot by Roosevelt adherents in and out of office to discredit the Taft administration and to pave the way for the nomination of Roosevelt for president in 1912. This theory may be far-fetched but there is little doubt that the Roosevelt worshippers are dissatisfied with Taft, notwithstanding the president's recent attempts to conciliate them by laudations of his predecessor and renewed expressions of his intention to "clinch" the "Roosevelt policies." The Rooseveltians feel that at heart Taft has little sympathy with the ideas of their idol, and the republican breach shows signs of wider disruption rather than healing.

The death of a hypnotic subject, while being exhibited by a "professor" of hypnotism for the amusement of a theatre audience, should and will stimulate opposition to such experiments and exhibitions. Hypnotism is a force that can, when properly practiced, be put to useful purposes. But it is a process for the physician and scientist, not for traveling mountebanks and the silly amusement of curious crowds. It doubtless will be difficult to prove that the "professor" was responsible for his unfortunate subject's death. But the outcome of his experiments ought to create a sentiment against public exhibitions of this nature. Hypnotism is as a two-edged sword. Its practice should be confined to circumstances which arise from some urgent medical or surgical need, and then only under the direction and supervision of a reputable physician.

There is no stauncher Republican organ than the Altoona, Pa., Tribune, and even it sees the injustice and fraud in the protective tariff as administered in recent years. Says the Tribune: "We do not forget that Pennsylvania is specially interested in the maintenance of the protective principle nor do we quarrel with that principle. At the same time we are not blind to the growing sentiment among the people that the protective system is rather one-sided and that the recent revision was upward instead of downward. The protection of infant industries is all right; when they become giants they no longer need more than a moderate degree of protection. And the protection which multiplies millionaires should throw its sheltering hand over the laborer and mechanic also and shield them from the competition of the cheap workmen of Europe who are coming here at the rate of a million a year. All of which the present protective law fails to do, and thus condemns itself."

Restore the Rights of Jurors.

The American Federation of Labor do well in declaring for a restoration of the rights and duties of jurors. The battle fought and won in England in the eighteenth century must be fought over in the western hemisphere.

We care nothing for Debs as a politician; but, on the other hand, we may doubt that he deserved the quasi martyrdom which the outrageous ruling of Justice Woods gave to him. But he showed no gratitude for the condemnation of government by injunction uttered by the democratic national convention in 1896. Yet the principle involved in the tyranny of the bench, which deprived an American citizen of his liberty, at the caprice of one man wearing a judicial robe, concerns the rights guaranteed by the constitution of the United States to every man in this country. Justice Woods assumed the powers belonging to a jury, and for this offense he ought to have been impeached and deprived of his ermine.

When haled before Justice Woods, and confronted with the accusation that he had disobeyed the order of that judge issued to him, forbidding him to do any act which obstructed the carrying of the mail, Debs pleaded not guilty, and followed the plea by asserting that he had done all in his power toward obedience of the order of the court—that he had, as president of the American Railway union, issued to the members of that association an order commanding them to abstain from all acts which should in any manner interfere with the transportation of the mails. And further, he believed that his order had been strictly obeyed by the men under him. He declared that he strongly suspected that those who stopped the running of the mail trains had been hired to do it by the railway managers themselves, for the purpose of creating a prejudice against his men. Justice Woods had no more authority for declaring that Debs lied than the president judge of the Paris court has for screaming out that Madame Steinheil is a liar. It was solely a question of fact for a jury to decide.

T. H. Barnes and family left Tuesday for Los Angeles.

Alliance is sportsy, all right, but public Sunday amusements have not fared well lately. The horse race that was advertised to be pulled off on a recent Sunday failed to materialize. The officers of the fair association stopped it by ruling that it should be held on a week day or not at all, and the Alliance-Mitchell foot ball game, advertised for last Sunday at Alliance, was stopped by Providence, the snow making it impossible to play.
