has tried to outdo the other in effective productions, and as a result, cottons compete with silks for highest honors. Colors were never so perfectly woven into fabric, mercerizing never so cleverly accomplished, in fact, looms never created such idealistic materials as are now here awaiting your criticism—and ultimate choosing. This week we give additional zest to the display by offering at special prices some of the most popular weaves.

STRASBURGER

Julius Eckerle is hauling for Fred Berndt. J. H. Strasburger spent Saturday with Irby Hall. Mr. Jeff. Orr is out looking up his cattle this week. Mr. and Mrs. Sam Spear drove to the Spade store Tuesday. The oat and wheat crop in this section is showing up well. Mr. Byers stopped at Eckerle's Thursday to grain his horses. Fred Berndt is hauling posts and wire from Hays Springs this week. Workmen are busily engaged in finishing Mrs. Pool's house on her claim north of Strasburger. We have had an abundance of rain during the past several days and the grass is growing beautifully. Mr. Tallon, who has a claim several miles north of Strasburger, was a visitor at J. B. Strasburger's last week. John Cox is developing into a first-class fence builder. Digging post holes and putting in "dead men" are his specialties. Mr. Hardison hauled a big load from Ellsworth Saturday, but had some trouble finding the gates going through Hall's claim. Mr. Green and Mrs. Pool made a business trip to Alliance last week. Mr. Green brought back a big load of groceries for the Square Deal store. We notice in this week's Rushville Standard that Floyd Counts is moving to his claim near Weiter's Lake. We regret to lose Mr. Counts from this vicinity. Mr. Forney was hauling wire and posts last week from Rushville. This material will be used to fence the Pinkham claim, which Mr. Forney has leased. Mrs. John Strasburger was bitten by a savage dog belonging to Mr. Fred McMillan a few days ago but we are glad to say she has almost entirely recovered. The dog, by the way, has gone to the happy hunting grounds, influenced by a well directed shot from Mr. McMillan's gun.

QUAKER VALLEY

Willie Vantress is not so well again. This seems rather cold for the middle of May. Mrs. Owen has some fine Rhode Island Red chickens. Robert Shoffner and family came home from Indiana last Saturday. Sunday school and church at Allen Jamison's next Sunday. Would like to see everybody there that can come. Rex Hawthorn and Miss Lulu Jones of Indianola, Iowa, were married May 10, at Alliance, Nebraska. They immediately went to housekeeping on their claim in Quaker Valley. May prosperity and happiness follow this worthy young couple.

New Hay Stacker.

There is no end to new inventions, some of them useful and some destined to soon fall into disuse and to be forgotten. Judge H. M. Bullock and Otto P. Kaldal are the inventors and patentees of a hay stacker that promises to be a bonanza for them. Demonstrations made with the first machine manufactured proves that it will do the work right, and already about eighty advance orders for it have been received. It will be manufactured for Bullock & Kaldal by the Forest Lumber Co., at Alliance.

A Farm Mansion.

Mrs. Fred H. Kauffold drove to Alliance Monday, bringing Mrs. Ida M. Ross, who had spent Sunday with her. While in town Mrs. Kauffold called at The Herald office to renew her subscription, and informed us that she and Mr. Kauffold had moved into their new house, the interior of which is completed, although there is still some work to be done on the outside. This residence, we are informed, is a veritable mansion. It is eleven miles northwest of Alliance, and is indeed an ornament to that part of the country. It contains sixteen rooms, modern throughout, and is furnished with $2,000 worth of furniture. This was sufficient to thoroughly equip the residence, except a piano, and to supply this deficiency Mrs. Kauffold on Monday ordered a magnificent $550 Haynes Bros. upright mahogany piano of Mrs. Ross, the Alliance representative of the Crancer Piano Co.
