BOX BUTTE COUNTY EXHIBIT AT THE NEBRASKA STATE FAIR

MANY of The Herald readers will be interested in the picture of the Box Butte county exhibit at the State Fair this year, which we present herewith.

This was the most popular exhibit at the Fair this year, and an immense amount of good advertising was done for this county and surrounding country. Many people could not believe that the products shown in this exhibit were grown without irrigation and the name "Box Butte" was confused with "Scotts Bluff" a great deal.

Over twenty thousand pieces of advertising matter were distributed, including the extra copies of the special edition of The Herald, which were eagerly read. The potato exhibit at right of the picture was the most interesting part, and it kept the special policemen busy keeping the crowd on the move. The only disagreeable experience was the trouble caused by some of the neighboring exhibitors who were jealous of the attention Box Butte county was receiving, and attempted to stop the distribution of advertising matter.

Supt. James of Dorchester, who had charge of the Agricultural building, is a man well fitted for this place. He used good judgment and kept things running smoothly.

COUNTRY CORRESPONDENCE

STRASBURGER

(Our Strasburger correspondent's communications are among the most highly appreciated items that we receive for publication and we feel that the same apology made to our Hope correspondent in this issue of The Herald is due "Goodeolde Boy" of Strasburger.)—Editor.

Rev. McLaughlin preached at the Spade school house Oct. 16th.

Don't ever think it is smart to be mean. Cunning is not wisdom.

Industry, cleanliness and moderation is a good combination for health and happiness.

About a dozen or more settlers sold the grass on their Kinkaid to another settler, Wm Strasburger.

Applications were received by the director for the Strasburger school from Texas, Harrison, Nebr., and other points in Nebraska. May the best win.

Our octogenarian settler, Moses Lamberson, fled on a Kinkaid a few miles south of Strasburger. Good luck, good health and prosperity for our friend, Mr. Lamberson.

Rev. Washburn of the Methodist church preached in the Strasburger school house Sunday, Oct. 2nd. All who heard Dr. Washburn would like to hear him again.

Fred Berndt and Julius Eckerle have been making hay for John B. Strasburger. These young men not only know how to work, but they do the work cheerfully and well.

"So many Gods, so many creeds. So many paths that wind and wind; When just the art of being kind Is what this old world needs."

"When you see a man in woe, Walk right up and say hello; Say hello and howdy'do, And how's the world a usin' you!"

—Goodeolde Boy.

Kills a Murderer

A merciless murderer is Appendicitis with many victims. But Dr. King's New Life Pills kill it by prevention. They gently stimulate stomach, liver and bowels, preventing that clogging that invites appendicitis, curing Constipation, Headache, Bilioussness, Chills, 25c at F. J. Brennan's.

Musical Entertainment

Miss Swan's "Mendelssohn-Grieg" recital at the M. E. church last Saturday night was attended by a fairly large and appreciative audience. Those participating were Miss Beulah Smith, Miss Hattie Renswold, Miss Clarabel Dietlein, Mr. Norman McCorkle and Mr. Paul Thomas, pupils of Miss Swan, assisted by Mrs. G. I. Rousseau, mezzo soprano. The piano selections by Miss Swan's pupils were well rendered, and were a credit to both pupils and instructor. Alliance audiences have learned to expect something splendid in vocal music when Mrs. Rousseau is on the program, and her part in this recital was no disappointment to the audience who showed their appreciation by enthusiastic applause.

L. Sampsy, the account of the death of whose wife appeared in the Hemingford department of The Herald a few weeks since, was in Alliance the first of the week. He informs us that he is planning to make an extended visit to Ireland, his native land which he left when a young man some forty odd years ago. He feels greatly the bereavement occasioned by the departure of his life companion, and will try to find comfort in visiting the scenes of their childhood days.
