Whose Resolution For Money Trust Inquiry Goes Before Congress.

INQUIRY FOR MONEY TRUST

House Committee Will Report Resolution Favorably.

The money trust, headed by J. P. Morgan and the most gigantic combination of capital in the world, is to be investigated by congress.

After a hearing the rules committee of the house of representatives decided to report favorably the resolution of Representative Lindbergh, Republican of Minnesota, providing for a thoroughgoing examination into the affairs of the monopoly.

SIX MORE ARE FINED

Members of Three Companies Plead Guilty to Violating Sherman Law.

Phillip S. Dyer, treasurer of the American Horseshoe company, who was indicted for being a member of the "pool" known as the Horseshoe Manufacturers' association, described as an illegal combination and conspiracy in restraint of trade and commerce, appeared before Judge Archbald in the United States circuit court, and, withdrawing his original plea of not guilty, entered a plea of nolle contendere. Dyer was fined $1,000.

The fines thus far imposed on thirty-eight defendants who have made their pleas total $43,900.

Pleas of nolle contendere were accepted by Judge Archbald from Dana R. Bullan, head of the supply department of the General Electric company, and Wallace S. Clark, his assistant, and from Henry A. Reed and Henry D. Reed of the Bishop Gutta-percha company. These men were fine $1,000 each.

A similar plea, by means of power of attorney, was received from Richard W. Comstock, vice president of the Rhode Island-Parkins Horseshoe company. A fine of $1,000 was imposed.

Tobacco Trust Obeys Mandate.

Action in the way of readjusting the business of the American Tobacco company in conformity with the decision of the United States supreme court was taken in the appointment of committees to represent the holders of the senior securities and co-operate with the management in the work of reorganization.

Pellagra at Oswego, Kan.

Two well developed cases of pellagra were found at Oswego, Kan., by the secretary of the state board of health. The affected persons are a mother and her five-year old daughter, who moved there from Manhattan two years ago.

NO OPPOSITION

Judge Westover enters the campaign this fall for reelection without any opposition on either ticket. The Judge has served for sixteen years on the bench and at each election proved of greater strength than in the previous campaign.

His standing as a judge has become so favorable that other aspirants seem to realize the futility of trying to slide in on the judicial bench. There is only one other judge of the district court in the state who has a like record, and that is Judge Grimes of the North Platte district. His record is similar to that of Judge Westover, he having also served on the bench for sixteen years and enters the roll this fall without competition.—Rushville Standard.

Doc Bixby, "Daily Drift" editor of the Nebraska State Journal, puts it a little strong but doesn't miss it far in saying: "What we call 'practical politics' is, in the last analysis, nothing more or less than a confidence game played on the general public by a parcel of grafters who play the game for 'what there is in it.'"

UNION REVIVAL MEETINGS

The union evangelistic meetings that were commenced Sunday evening, July 23, still continue each evening in the airdome tabernacle on the north side of the Charters Hotel building. The first two evenings the meetings were held in the Methodist church on account of the weather being too cold to hold meetings out of doors. A good interest has been manifested from the first and usually there has been a good attendance. Revs. A. L. Godfrey, Franklin McNeill, J. B. Brown and J. L. B. Jones have favored their audiences with interesting sermons, and quite a number of conversions have resulted. The meetings will continue until further notice.

POODLE DOGS AND BABIES

Congressman Norris Slams Washington Snobocracy

In debating the question of the tariff on American cotton, the discussion was so broadened out in the remarks of representative Roddenbery of Georgia, as to include poodle dogs in the classification. Mr. Norris of Nebraska said that when it came to the dealing with the question of poodle dogs, he was interested. He said that he had learned from some of his colleagues that if the legislation under discussion was enacted, it would enable the owners of poodle dogs and other pet creatures to bring their favorites back into the country after they had taken them out for temporary social purposes. He referred to his experience of last winter which attracted considerable attention in the Washington press by reason of the fact that his remarks at that time were vigorously resented by some of the leading society ladies of the Capital. Mr. Norris said that he had received the condemnations and the censure of society—the society for the protection of poodle dogs in the District of Columbia. He went on to say: "Some time ago I was invited by the young men of this city to deliver an address at a meeting in the building of the Young Men's Christian Association. The notice came by telephone, so that I ought not perhaps to have been held strictly accountable for anything I said on that occasion." Continuing his remarks, the Nebraskan said: "My audience, however, was composed entirely of men—of young men—and I tried to say something to them that would be of benefit to them in the strife that comes to every man in his life. They were unmarried men, and, among other things, I advised them that they ought to get married, and that to be a husband and a father was the noblest ambition of every male human being. I told them why I believed it was necessary for young men who wanted to be patriotic and do good to their country and to humanity to be married and raise children. I called attention to the fact that many wealthy people were raising more poodle dogs than children, and I told them of an incident that came under my observation when walking down Connecticut Ave. one day, when I saw the door of a residence open—a residence that had cost perhaps a couple of million dollars—and a well dressed woman came out and there drove up in front of it a carriage with two men in uniform sitting up in front and one man in uniform sitting on the seat in the rear, and as the woman came down the walk those men got down, took off their silk hats and bowed almost to the sidewalk as they opened the carriage door and put her into the carriage. She carried in her arms a beautiful poodle dog, all decked out in ribbons, trinkets and flowers. I watched her as they drove down the avenue, and my heart bled in pity for this woman of wealth, who I supposed was childless and who was therefore compelled to waste her affections on a poodle dog. They had not gone far, however, until the door of that mansion opened again and a colored woman came out, wheeling a little baby carriage. I crossed the street in order to ascertain exactly how the baby was dressed, and from the way it was dressed and the expensive trinkets and playthings that were around it I came to the conclusion that it was the child of the woman who had gone away caressing the poodle dog while her own flesh and blood was left in the care of a colored servant; and as the colored woman pushed the baby across into the park I felt, for a while, sorry for the little baby. But I told the young men that, after thinking it over, my sorrow went out to the poodle dog, because I believed, under all the circumstances, the baby was in the best company. I had no intention, Mr. Speaker, of telling who the family was, but, since I told the young men that it was on Connecticut Avenue, I learned that I had come very nearly identifying the family, because, as I was told afterwards, it was the only baby in that part of Connecticut Avenue, and it was an unwelcome accident. But I told the young men that I believed that it was better to live in a sod house, where God's sunshine might come through the windows and shine on the dimpled face of your own little baby that was held in the arms of your own wife, than to live in the lazy luxury of marble halls that never resounded to the rippling laughter of innocent childhood."—Washington Correspondent.

Correspondents at Nation's Capital Get Interesting Inside Information

PROSPECTS FOR PROGRESSIVES

The Herald's Washington correspondents send us unusually interesting letters this week, all of which is not practical for us to print in this issue, but we would do our readers an injustice to not give at least some extracts from the important information which they contain. The comments made in these letters is not, on the whole, partisan, but is from a progressive view point.

Hoke Smith and the Senate

The election of Hoke Smith, of Georgia, to the U. S. Senate has elicited a great deal of comment in Washington. It is generally expected that when he takes his seat on the democratic side of the senate, his colleagues will realize that a giant in honesty, ability, and patriotism has come among them, and that he will show the same leadership in the senate that has characterized all his political activity.

The Same Old Cradle Howl

That "the reduction of sugar duties would ruin the domestic production of cane sugar and that free sugar would annihilate both the cane and beet sugar industries of the country" is the cry from that lusty lunged infant—the Sugar Trust.

In the name of the small growers and producers, the trust is whining and pulling for a high tariff—for protection. With protection, the small, independent interest has the happy prospect of being absorbed, annihilated, wiped out, as soon as the tariff-succored infant is ready to smite its go-between.

Easy Money for Steel Trust

That the United States Steel Corporation forces independent steel concerns to pay exorbitant prices for hauling ore over its roads is a point that the Steel Trust Committee of Inquiry will investigate. The committee is informed that the trust roads charge enough for hauling one load of ore for an independent company to pay for transporting two loads of its own.

Another Alaskan Explosion

The public was wondering all along during the time charges were pending against Secretary Ballinger, why Taft persisted in keeping such a man in his cabinet.

It has now leaked out, that when Ballinger was trying to slip the valuable mineral lands of Alaska to the Guggenheim-Morgan crowd that Chas. P. Taft, a millionaire brother to the president, was also interested in the fraud that was about to be perpetrated on Uncle Sam. It is generally believed among the politicians that the government at Washington is now the rottenest in political corruption that has ever been known in the history of this country.

Taft Against Wiley

Since Taft has been in the White House he has invariably opposed Dr. Wiley, instead of having co-operated with him, in the interests of pure food.

In his decision against Dr. Wiley, in the interests of adulterated whisky, the President reversed the findings of Ex-President Roosevelt, former Attorney General Bonaparte, Chief Government Chemist Dr. H. W. Wiley, Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, the Remsen board, the United States Pharmacopoeia, the internal revenue bureau of the treasury, the standards adopted by twenty six states, fifteen of the United States courts, and President Taft's father, the former attorney general of the United States.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When the tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; since cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

SAVE THE FEED

Shortage of Hay Crop will Make Feed High

It is now evident that the hay crop of northwestern Nebraska this year will not be up to the average in quantity. In other parts of the country the shortage is even worse. The South Omaha Daily Drivers Journal-Stockman says:

"Hay is selling at record prices and will undoubtedly become very scarce before next spring. During the corn shortage two or three years ago the farmers learned to economize on grain in their feeding operations. It looks as if they would have to learn to economize on hay. Corn fodder makes a pretty good substitute for hay and there is plenty of corn that is destined to never get beyond the fodder stage this year."

While there may not be a great deal of corn in this part of the state to cut up for feed, there are other ways of saving feed in this country and making it go farther. Always when there is an abundant hay crop, there is a large amount of it wasted. Not only are wasteful methods of feeding used, but many tons of hay that could be mowed are left uncut. There are some other things in this country, as well as farther east, that can be used for forage. Russian chisties, cut at the right time, make splendid feed. Some who have never seen them so used may smile at this proposition, but we can find many farmers who will tell you that cattle eat them, when properly put up, in preference to alfalfa and other hay.

THIRTY YEARS TOGETHER

Thirty years of association—think of it. How the merit of a good thing stands out in that time—or the worthlessness of a bad one. So there's no guesswork in this evidence of Thos. Ariss, Concord, Mich., who writes: "I have used Dr. King's New Discovery for 30 years, and it is the best cough and cold cure I ever used." Once it finds entrance in a home, you can't pry it out. Many families have used it forty years. It's the most infallible throat and lung medicine on earth. Unequaled for legrippe, asthma, hay-fever, croup, quinsy or sore lungs. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by F. J. Brennan.

Hay will be scarce in these parts this year.

Mrs. Jones and son, Worth, from Indianola, Iowa, have moved on their kinkaid.

Frank Johnson has returned from Ohio, where he attended the funeral of his father.

Misses Dortha and Angie Howe, two Warren county, Iowa teachers, are visiting with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Howe.

While Wm. Howe was driving to Reno last Friday, the tongue of his buggy came down, breaking it and frightening the horses and overturning the buggy. Neva Howe received slight injuries about the shoulder. It is remarkable that no one else was hurt as there were several children with him.
