LOCAL PARAGRAPHS

The Fair Store pays highest price for butter and eggs.

J. L. George of Longlake was in Alliance Saturday, returning home via Reno on No. 44.

Better dig those "taters" pretty soon. Liable to be a freeze most any time now.

The race meet at Mitchell last week was a big event and well attended, if people went from other places as well as they did from Alliance.

The Lewellen Gazette reports the corn festival and fair held in that town last week a great success both in attendance and the quality of the exhibits and entertainments.

Garden county, the youngest county in the state, is rapidly forging its way to the front educationally. It already has fifty-one schools.

L. H. Jay has sold his place near Letan to Robert Clark of the south part of Dawes county, the deal being made through the Northwestern Nebraska Land Company. Jay intends to move on to a hay ranch forty miles north of Whitman, but will remain where he is until next spring. Mr. Clark will take possession of the Jay farm March 1st.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Britton came up to Alliance the latter part of last week from Broken Box. Mr. Britton is auditor for the Dierck's Lumber Company, and Mrs. Britton is a sister of Mrs. H. A. Copey, so that they combine a business trip with a visit in this city.

Times should be good in Box Butte and adjoining counties this fall. It is generally conceded that the amount of money that will come into this part of the state this year for live stock and farm products will be considerably above the average year.

Take your butter and eggs to the Fair Store for highest market prices.

T. H. Barnes accompanied his daughter, Miss Mae, to Denver last Monday evening, where she will have the opportunity of cultivating the talents with which she is so richly gifted.

R. M. Hampton, president of the First National bank of Alliance and a leading stockman of western Nebraska, had eight loads of very good bay fed steers on the market that averaged around 1,375 pounds and sold to a local packer for $6.15. Western Nebraska stockmen have fully demonstrated this season that choice beef as well as choice feeders can be produced in that section.—South Omaha Drivers Journal.

Farmers are invited to visit the Fair Store when in Alliance. Highest market prices paid for butter and eggs.

Rev. Harvey O. Cooper, pastor of the M. E. church at Bayard two years ago, passed through Alliance last Friday enroute to Garland, Wyo., where he goes to assume the pastorate to which he was recently appointed. Last year he attended Nebraska Wesleyan University. His western Nebraska acquaintances as well as other friends will wish him well in his new field of labor.

Mrs. Nona Meyer of Sutherland was the inspiration for a theatre party given by her sister, Mrs. U. N. Hoskins, to eight of her friends on Monday evening. An oyster supper served in Thiele's inimitable style was the enjoyable close of the evening's entertainment.

Misses Dorothy Hoag and Bernice Kridlebaugh went to Mullen last Sunday to assist with the singing at the dedication of the new Episcopal church at that place. The beautiful voices of these young ladies make them an invaluable addition to all choral work, both at home and abroad.

Arthur Pickett was in the train master's office Sunday morning making a request for a punch, the one usually in service having been confiscated by the young conductor who arrived via the stork line on Saturday, September 23rd. Mother and son are doing well, and Conductor Pickett is the happiest man in Alliance.

On Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Emery Corneau opened her beautiful new bungalow on Emerson Avenue to her friends. Music, select readings and Kensington were enjoyed until five o'clock, when the guests were invited into the dining room and seated at a table resplendent with cut glass and china. A five course dinner was served. Mrs. Corneau was assisted by Miss Waudum and Miss Putnum. A very enjoyable novelty in the way of a hunt was introduced. When the guests were all seated the hostess announced that in one of the light rolls a silver thimble had been baked. The lady finding the thimble would be given a prize, a picture painted by the hostess. Needless to say, the delicious light rolls faded away rapidly. Mrs. Corneau's mother, Mrs. Ackerman, was the lucky one. She presented the picture to Mrs. Frankie. Such a party was a lovely and fitting way to introduce this new home.

"GREATEST WOMAN ORATOR"

Many People Listen to Mary Harris Armor's Temperance Lecture

As previously advertised in The Herald, America's greatest woman orator, Mrs. Mary Harris Armor of Georgia, gave an address at the Phelan opera house last Thursday night under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. One of the largest audiences that has attended a temperance lecture in Alliance during the past few years filled the opera house, and still the audience was not nearly as large as many of the audiences to which she is accustomed to speak. However she did not seem to lack enthusiasm.

Mrs. Armor spoke on the subject from the standpoint of science, common sense and religion. Her discussion of the subject from the standpoint of science was one of the best, if not the best, that we have ever heard, considered from a view point of convincing argument. An array of facts was presented showing the effects of alcohol upon the human system that was most convincing. We believe that if temperance speakers and workers generally, while they may not imitate Mrs. Armor's particular style of presenting the subject, would follow her example in presenting to the public facts such as she presented rather than indulge in vituperation, as is sometimes done, a great deal more would be accomplished in the cause of temperance. We believe that a large majority of people would be in favor of moderation in the use of alcohol beverages, or total abstinence therefrom, if they were informed properly in regard to the true nature and effect of alcohol upon the human system.

The Herald would be pleased to give a synopsis of Mrs. Armor's lecture if space would permit. We hope, however, in the future to give to our readers some of the facts presented along the line of the scientific discussion of the subject, perhaps through the W. C. T. U. department of the paper.

OSTEOPATHS' CONVENTION

The growth of osteopathy in Nebraska is indicated by the state convention which was held at Omaha commencing last Friday morning. About thirty practicing osteopaths of the state were present, and judging from the reports in the daily papers they made a very good impression on those who had the opportunity of meeting them. The practice of osteopathy has grown in public favor very much during the last few years, as is shown by the reception given the osteopaths in Omaha.

LINGLE LEADS IN BEETS

Beet Harvest Begins, with Yield Starting at Twenty-four Tons per Acre

BEET GROWERS MAKE MONEY

Readers of The Herald, especially those who are directly interested in seeing Alliance become more and more a center of trade and manufactures, are interested in the development of the country and smaller towns in this part of the west. For this reason many of our readers will enjoy reading the following in regard to the sugar beet industry in the North Platte valley, taken from the Lingle Herald of September 27th, which is published at Lingle, Wyo., a new town on the Guernsey branch of the Burlington railroad, about seventy-five miles west of Alliance: The Lingle Herald stated some time ago, before the present beet crop had time to mature, that the yield would be very large. But the immense yield now being harvested was not expected. Our confidence in the North Platte Valley and scientific beet growing has been greatly strengthened by the record breaking yield now being put on the cars.

There are nearly a thousand acres of beets at Lingle. Most of these are on the famous "P. F." ranch, on which the townsite is located. The land this year was sub-leased to beet growers who planted in fields of from two hundred acres, one firm of Japanese having nearly three hundred acres.

On Saturday, in accordance with the direction of the Scottsbluff Sugar Company, to whom the beets are shipped, digging was commenced on the land purchased northeast of the townsite by Wm. Connelly last spring for $125 per acre.

In order to have positive figures as to the yield, a tract of land one acre in extent was measured off and the beets from this particular tract weighed. This tract was on the edge of the field, and the beets were no better, if as good, as those further out in the field. The weights of the sugar company weigh man at the beet dump were taken and they prove that the yield was twenty-four tons per acre.

Many people have very little confidence in the money-making properties of sugar beets. In order to get the best results it is absolutely necessary that strict rules be followed with regard to planting and watering, as well as caring for the beets by hoeing and weed pulling. Mr. Dei Skinner, of Torrington, had charge of this end of the Valley for the sugar company this season and he has done his work well, giving his entire time and attention to the beet growers, assisting them in every way possible. Many of them have to thank him and his superiors for their success this season.

It Pays to Raise Sugar Beets

In order to prove absolutely that it does pay to raise sugar beets at Lingle the land purchased by Wm. Connelly will be taken as an example. Mr. Connelly purchased forty acres of land this spring from the Letter estate for $125 per acre. This was planted to sugar beets from which he received the usual rental of one-fifth of the crop and the tops, less $1.50 per acre paid to the beet growers for their share of tops.

Mr. Connelly's income from this forty acres will be as follows: The beets sell for $5.25 per ton, of which he receives $1.05 per ton, which gives him $25.20 per acre at the average yield of twenty-four tons. The tops have been sold for $4.40 per acre, out of which he gets $2.90 per acre, making a total income of $28.10 per acre for his rental. This is at the rate of five per cent on a valuation of $562 per acre, or more than twenty-two and one-half per cent (22 1/2 0/0) on his investment. Certainly looks good. This shows that it pays the land owner.

Now as to the grower. The yield of 24 tons to the acre will give the grower $126 from his beets. He gets $1.50 from his tops, making a total income per acre of $127.50. Out of this he pays $25.20 to the land owner, leaving a balance of $102.30, from which expenses must be paid. Any beet grower can pay all expenses, including seed, pay for his own time and all incidental expenses, for $40 per acre if he uses any judgment at all. Many of the Lingle growers are getting out for much less. $40 out of $102.30 leaves a balance of $62.30 per acre net profit. An eighty acre field will pay a total profit of $4,984. These figures are taken from actual facts and the proof is at Lingle. See for yourself and then judge whether or not land at Lingle is a good investment. Where else can you make as much clear money on so small investment. Suppose Mr. Connelly had done the managing of his forty acre field and taken the profits himself. What would have been his total income from the forty acres which cost him $5,000? Let us see.

From his beets he would receive $126 per acre and $4.40 for his tops, making a total income per acre of $130.40. Out of this he would have to pay $40 for seed, labor, etc., leaving him a new profit of $90.40 per acre, or $3616 as the profit for his work on only a forty acre tract, the hard work being done by cheap labor.

We predict that there will be many thousands of acres put in sugar beets next year. Good profit can be made on a yield of twelve to fifteen tons of beets per acre. With the proper attention and care there is no reason why the yield of this year cannot be duplicated and even beaten by the use of fertilizers. The soil and climate of the North Platte Valley are particularly adapted to the growing of sugar beets.

We have been assured that Lingle can have a sugar factory if the necessary acreage is planted. No other town has as much irrigable land tributary to it in the entire Valley, over 178,000 acres of irrigable land being tributary to the town. A factory at Lingle would mean that a great amount of money would be paid out here in wages to sugar factory hands each season. The shorter the haul and the less handling, the more profit there is in beets.

BLOCKADED

Every Household in Alliance Should Know How to Resist it

The back aches because the kidneys are blockaded.

Help the kidneys with their work. The back will ache no more.

Lots of proof that Doan's Kidney Pills do this.

It's the best proof, for it comes from this vicinity.

John J. Lingle, Wayside, near Chadron, Nebr., says: "I first used Doan's Kidney Pills while living in Iowa several years ago. At that time I was having a great deal of trouble from backache and an almost constant soreness across my kidneys. If I caught cold, the complaint was aggravated and I was unable to work. I took several remedies but was not benefitted until a friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills. They cured me and I had no trouble until I came here about a year ago. Doan's Kidney Pills also benefitted me then."

For sale by all dealers. Price 5¢ cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

The pleasant home of Mrs. Geo. Davis on Laramie Avenue was last Saturday the scene of one of the most enjoyable entertainments of the season. Sixteen ladies who had passed the age of three score years were invited to meet Mr. Davis' mother, Mrs. John Davis of University Place, who is stopping here on her way home from Sheridan, where she has been spending the summer with a son. The afternoon was spent with needle work and reminiscences. At 5:30 an elaborate dinner was served, proving Mrs. Davis to be a cook with skill to please even those who were past mistresses of the art of well prepared and well served meals. Table decorations and place cards were of sweet peas. The invited guests were Mesdames Baumgardner, Kelley, Willis, Martin, T. H. Barnes, Carlson, Hoffman, Mollring, Joder, Trey, Ackerman, Corneau, Walmer, Grebe, Elias Miller and Mrs. Miller, mother of Mrs. Jeffries.
