NEW OCEAN TO OCEAN RECORD

Stories of marvelous flights in the air in which birdmen beat the fast mail are daily flashed over the wire. But there will have to be a tremendous evolution in sky flights before the aeroplane will endanger the marvelous coast-to-coast record recently made by rail.

Eighty-two and a quarter hours from Seattle to New York City, 3,178 miles, is the new world's mark just established by a train ladeq with two million dollars' worth of silk, via the Great Northern, the Burlington and the New York Central System.

This means that the train traveled at an average speed, counting stops, including a delay of more than two hours in switching at Chicago, of more than 38½ miles per hour all the way across the continent. When one reflects that two great mountain ranges were crossed and that frequent changes of engine and train crew were necessary the time made is nothing short of marvelous.

The special left Seattle on Friday, Oct. 13, at 4:45 a. m. The run to St. Paul clipped two hours off the best previous record. The flyer reached St. Paul at 4 a. m., Sunday. Twenty minutes later it was speeding to Chicago over the tracks of the Burlington, arriving there at 2:05 p. m., having traversed the intervening 431 miles in 9 hours and 45 minutes.

Leaving Chicago at 4:30 p. m. Sunday, via the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern, the special arrived at the delivery station in New York City at 6 p. m., Monday.

Deducting three hours for the difference in time between New York City and Seattle, the actual running time of the train was 82¼ hours. The best previous record by rail between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts was 97 hours and forty minutes. The new record of 82¼ hours is 8 hours and 25 minutes faster than the fastest regular passenger time that it is possible to make at this time between New York and San Francisco.
