Ex-Saloon Keeper's Backward Look

Ben Parker, at one time the owner of many saloons in Des Moines, backed heavily by the brewing interests, who afterwards gave up the business, says of his former experience:

"I defy any man to present one single argument that will stand the acid of criticism in favor of the liquor game. I have witnessed the working man spend for drink the money that ought to have bought shoes for his children; have watched the business man spend money over the saloon bar that belonged to other people, and I have been particeps criminis to more woe than the bubonic plague ever spread in its most aggressive form. I tell you that the drunkard is more to be pitied than censured. He is a helpless, weak-brained idiot, and is fostered in his prostration by the evils of his surroundings. If all men were strong minded, the saloon would soon go out of business, but unfortunately most men are weaker than their environment and fall before the allurements of vice. It is the absolute removal of these surroundings that will assure the betterment of society, and the way to do it is to stamp out the saloon, the brewery and the distillery. It will require the united effort of the strong to bring about the desired end."

An Investment Problem for Votes

Rev. John A. Earl

Silver and gold in uncounted millions have been delivered to King Alcohol, and in return for our good money he has given us the poorhouse, the penitentiary, and the insane asylum. The economic waste of the saloon is so axiomatic that it leaves no room for argument. I have sometimes thought that if there were more chance for an argument, more agitation against the frightful waste could be developed. It is generally conceded that in this country alone our annual drink bill is between one and two billions. That is simply the direct cost of the liquor consumed. But if we add to that the indirect cost in loss of labor, increase of crime, disease, poverty and insanity we have no figures adequately to estimate the economic waste of the saloon.

Perhaps we can see it more clearly if we take a concrete instance and apply the waste caused by the saloon to legitimate trade. The Chicago Record-Herald made the following comparison some time ago. If the 7,000 saloons of Chicago take in $30 each per day, the total amount for all would be approximately $67,000,000 a year. Apply this in legitimate channels of trade and you will have this result:

Employ 10,000 men cleaning streets and doing other public work at $1.50 a day; employ 2,000 teams and men cleaning alleys and streets at $4.00 a day; give each of 60,000 poor families $1.00 a day; buy a $25 suit for the father of each of these 60,000 families; buy one $10 dress and one $3 pair of shoes for the mother; buy two tons of hard coal and one barrel of flour for each poor family; buy one $20 suit and $4 pair of shoes for 250,000 working men, and pay carfare and lunch of the same number; buy one $4 suit of clothes for every boy and girl in the public schools (180,891 enrolled); establish one free library and museum in each division of the city at $1,000,000 each; build 30 new schoolhouses at $100,000 each; build 35 churches at $50,000 each; give to fresh air fund for poor children $75,000; give to the various hospitals of the city $100,000; and have a balance left of over $10,000. And yet all this money is going for waste and worse than waste.

Will it Pay?

Out from the hearthstone the children go,
Fair as the sunshine, pure as the snow—
A licensed wrong on the crowded street
Waits for the coming of guileless feet—
Child of the rich, and child of the poor
Pass to their wreck thru the dram-shop's door.
Oh, say, will they ever come back as they go,
Fair as the sunshine, pure as the snow?
Out from the hearthstone the children fair
Pass from the breath of a mother's prayer.
Shall a father's vote on the crowded street
Consent to the snare for the thoughtless feet?
Ah! Fathers, your finest gold grows dim;
Black with the rust of such nameless sin!
You may have the street with your children slain,
And light four ways with the price of shame—
But, say, will your dearest come back as they go,
Fair as the sunshine, pure as the snow?
—Mary T. Lathrap.

Frances E. Willard

Gives to us a suggestive lesson as she tells us how she applied to her own life the thought, which all at once was deeply impressed upon her, that "just where one is" is the place to start in the work which God has for each to do in life's battlefield. It is time no one failed to recognize the fact that it is impossible to escape from occupying some place upon that battlefield. Our Lord tells us emphatically that "he that is not with Me is against Me" and all who work for Him again and again prove it true that the cause of righteousness is hindered but little more by direct opposition than by indifference.—by standing "on the fence." A most pertinent question, then, to ask, is "On which side are you? Where are you working? Where do you 'count one'?" There was never a period in the history of our cause of greater moment—one in which the faithfulness and devotion of the humblest worker meant so much. Let us, then, like our great leader, start "just where we are" to do all we can and step by step we shall be led to greater achievement. Let us make no excuse for half-heartedness now that we shall not be willing to meet in the "By and by", when we must "account for the deeds done in the body."—Wisconsin Motor, March, 1912.

CURE YOUR KIDNEYS

Alliance Sufferers Should Take No Further Risk

Why will people continue to suffer the agonies of kidney complaint, backache, urinary disorders, lameness, headaches, languor, why allow themselves to become chronic invalids, when a tested remedy is offered them?

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use, because it gives to the kidneys the help they need to perform their work.

If you have any, even one, of the symptoms of kidney disease, cure yourself now, before gravel, dropsy or Bright's disease sets in. Can Alliance residents demand more convincing proof than the following?

James A. Kerey, S. Main St., Chadron, Neb., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills on several occasions and I am sure they are a remedy well worth recommending. I had slight symptoms of disordered kidneys for some time and as there has been a trace of Bright's disease in my family for several generations, I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills. This remedy soon completely cured me. I believe Doan's Kidney Pills to be unequalled for kidney disorders."
