TWO BRIDGES BURN
 Burlington Trains Delayed by Fires West

The Burlington suffered the loss of two bridges by fire Monday, delaying one train (No. 44 from the west) over twelve hours and causing the transfer of passengers on the Deadwood line.

The bridge on the main line is located over a dry creek five miles west of Ardmore. It was 84 feet long and 18 feet high at the highest point. This caused the delay of No. 44, which should have been in Alliance at 11:20 a. m., so that it arrived at 11:40 p. m. A stub train was made up here and left on the time of the regular 44.

The larger bridge is located three miles east of Hill, on the Deadwood line. It is 112 feet long and 21 feet high. No. 141 was stopped on side and No. 142 on the other side of the fire. It was necessary to transfer passengers from one train to the other. This delayed No. 42, which should have reached Alliance at 12:30 Monday night, for a few hours.

No. 43, which arrived in Alliance at 12:30 Monday noon, was held until six o'clock that evening.

Mrs. Tom Spencer for the past two weeks a guest of her mother, Mrs. L. S. Snow of Marsland, returned home Friday.

George Dennis of Sutton, Nebraska, came to Alliance Saturday with the intention of remaining for the winter.

BARBERS RUN BIG RISK; WILD DUCKS MADE VICTIMS
 "I'm going forth and kill me a barber," was an expression to be heard on every hand in Alliance Monday, Labor Day, as unshorn and unshorn Alliance looked itself over and failed to see the joke of wearing a two days growth of stubble while bent on business. In fact much business was neglected because of the holiday taken by the tonsorial artists.

While prospective patrons cursed inwardly and outwardly, many of the barbers were out among the sandhill lakes making war on the wild ducks, it being the first day of the hunting season. Many good bags were reported later in the evening.
