FARM STOCK

WINTER FEEDING OF STOCK

Under Any and All Circumstances It is False Economy to Permit Farm Animals to Lose Flesh.

It will be profitable to remember that every shock of corn fodder, every ton of hay or straw, fed to a steer or other growing animal that is allowed to run down in the winter is a dead loss, while if there is added an equal amount in value of more nutritious food the growth of the animal will pay a fair price for the whole. A pig weighing say, 50 pounds in the fall fed five or six bushels of corn to keep it through winter, will be as light in the spring as when the winter feeding began, and so the corn consumed is a clear loss, and worse, because the pig has perhaps got into an unthrifty condition that renders it absolutely of less value at the end of this winter's feeding than it was when feeding began.

But double the feed would have trebled its weight and given a thrifty pig to turn onto clover, or perhaps a fat one for the spring market, making a satisfactory profit for the feed and care.

So also with a steer or other young cattle, and as to sheep, as the bad keep gives diminished quantity and inferior quality of wool, it is under any circumstances the worst possible economy to let them get thin in the winter. Indeed, this rule holds good as to all sorts and all ages of live stock.

The colts should be kept growing throughout the year. Then, aged horses, if allowed to lose flesh, will not be in proper condition for work in the spring, and it is much cheaper to keep on the flesh they now carry than to put it on anew when the work begins.

Indeed, there is not among the various animals used on a farm one that can be named that will make a better return for ample and generous feeding than the milch cow, and yet there is none, we regret to say, that is more generally neglected and cut short in her rations.

WAY OF SELLING LIVE STOCK

Best Method is to Dispose of Animals in Small Bunches to Buyers Who Make Their Selections.

(By W. M. KELLY.)

The simplest method of selling live stock in small bunches is to sell to buyers who visit your farm and make their selections. Men who buy in this way do not pay quite as high prices as you would be likely to get by shipping the same stock direct in carload lots to a large market, but it is many times advisable to sell less than a car of stock in this way. In dealing with these country buyers a man has an opportunity to exercise his talent as a salesman for they are very shrewd business men and are out to drive the best bargain they know how with men who do not understand market conditions and classes. In livestock feeding sections there are some feeders who sell their stock to the same buyers regularly, a plan which has many advantages to both buyer and feeder. If a buyer feels certain of obtaining well-finished stock which he can use to advantage, he is willing to make liberal concessions, and the feeder finds it greatly to his advantage to sell to a man with whom he is acquainted, in whom he has confidence and to whom he can sell whenever his stock is in condition to market. I have always made it a point to keep in close touch with the leading buyer in my section and have always been able to get as good prices for my stock as farmers who have done their own shipping at a far greater expense.

Sealing the Silo.

After the silo is filled run through eight or ten inches of moistened straw and sow half a bushel of oats on top. This keeps it air-tight and the roots form a matwork which acts as a seal to keep out the air.

Box for Odds and Ends.

Have a box or two nailed up in the stable to catch odds and ends—straps and buckles and bits of ironware. It may save you expensive repairs somewhere.

LOOK OUT FOR THE CARS

DO YOU know of anyone who is old enough to read, who has not seen that sign at a railroad crossing?

If everyone has seen it at some time or other, then why doesn't the railroad let the sign rot away? Why does the railroad company continue to keep those signs at every crossing? Maybe you think, Mr. Merchant, "Most everybody knows my store, I don't have to advertise." Your store and your goods need more advertising than the railroads need to warn people to "Look Out for the Cars." Nothing is ever completed in the advertising world.

The Department Stores are a very good example—they are continually advertising—and they are continually doing a good business.

If it pays to run a few ads 'round about Christmas time, it certainly will pay you to run advertisements about all the time.

It's just business, that's all, to ADVERTISE in THIS PAPER
