GERMANY HAS CATTLE CURE

Cattle Raisers in Germany Glad to Know of Cure for Foot and Mouth Disease

Berlin, Germany, March 17—Cattle raisers in Germany are eagerly awaiting a decision by the government as to the merits of the cure for foot and mouth disease announced recently by Prof. Ludwig Brieger, a distinguished German scientist, and his assistant, Dr. H. Krause. The remedy is called typosafrol, and is a derivative of saffron.

It is administered easily by mixture with the water which the cattle drink. The formula has not been made public, however and there is a division of opinion as to whether an effective check has been discovered for this cattle plague, which costs stockmen all over the world millions of dollars annually.

As previously reported, it is claimed that 290 head of cattle were successfully treated and members of the reichstag have asked the government to investigate the remedy, with a view to acquiring control of it if effective and furnishing it to cattle raisers at cost.

Professor Brieger, who also recently announced a new method of treating sleeping sickness, is one of a large band of investigators who have been giving their attention to the foot and mouth disease germ, whose identity was only recently established by a Swiss scientist. Dr. Brieger believes that his discovery may not only be effective against the foot and mouth disease, but against other germs, to which the blood of cattle is subject. If only his claims as to the former are borne out, however, that cure alone will be sufficient to confer a real boon to humanity for the disease has been one of the great factors in the high prices for meat.

A widespread epidemic of the disease occurred in 1890; 4,000,000 cattle were affected in 1899 and 1,000,000 in 1900, notwithstanding the most rigid quarantine measures and the slaughter of whole herds of animals. And three years ago the pest again swept through the empire. Great numbers of farms are still infected.

The disease has even become a factor in politics, furnishing the basis for a great conflict between the government and the agrarians on the one hand and the Socialists, Radicals and other representatives of the middle and industrial classes on the other. The latter assert that the regulations closing the frontier to all foreign livestock are absurd, in view of the fact that the herds of Germany are more extensively affected than those of most of the countries from which importation is possible, and that the bars are kept up merely to let the landowners get high prices for their meat.
