Politics and Politicians

Edward N. Pearson, the present secretary of states of New Hampshire, is to be a candidate for the Republican nomination for the U. S. senatorship this year.

Candidates now in the field for the U. S. senator from California are S. M. Shortridge of San Francisco, Congressman J. R. Knowland of Oakland, and Albert E. Boynton, president protem of the state senate.

The present indications are that the contest of the Democratic nomination for United States senator from Ohio in succession to Snar Burton, whose term will expire next March, will be between Attorney General Timothy S. Hogan and John H. Clarke of Cleveland.

A number of proposed reform measures, such as a workman's compensation law, an anti-pass law, the initiative and referendum and an act to create a public utilities commission, are expected to figure as issues in the state campaign in Wyoming this year. It is said the adoption of these measures will be urged by the Republicans, Progressive and Independent.

Winslow Comes of Fighting Stock

Washington, D. C., May 2.—Of the many naval officers now serving in Mexican waters none is better known in Washington than Rear Admiral Cameron McRae Winslow, who has been assigned to the command of the Special Service Squadron. This squadron, which includes the battleships New York and Texas, the newest and most powerful dreadnaughts in the world, is to be used for blockading purposes, while the smaller vessels will be particularly useful for inshore work.

Admiral Winslow is one of the most popular officers in the navy. He is every inch a sailor, and he is known as the handsomest flag officer in the service. He is noted as a navigator, and knows the Atlantic fleet better perhaps than any officer in the navy, his service with the organization outdating that of any other flag officer now connected with it.

Admiral Winslow was born in the District of Columbia, and entered the naval service Sept. 20, 1876, being appointed at large to the Naval Academy, at Annapolis. He is not a son of the late Rear Admiral John A. Winslow, as has been erroneously stated, but a nephew of that well known officer who commanded the old Kearsage when she sank the Confederate monitor Alabama on the French coast in the civil war.

The first sea duty of Admiral Winslow after he graduated from the Annapolis Academy was in the big ship Tennessee on the Asiatic station, 1875-7. Other vessels he served on include the Constitution, Pennsylvania Kearsage, Alliance and Terror to 1885.

He was advanced several numbers for extraordinary heroism during the war with Spain. While a lieutenant in 1898 he most gallantly led a small party of volunteers to cut the Cuban cables off Cienfuegos, Cuba, in order that the Spanish forces may be cut off from communication with Spain. The cutting of the cables was accomplished in the face of a terrific fire from the Spaniards on shore, and by many has been termed the bravest act of the war. Leut. Winslow was the man in command of the gunboat Nashville, and the work of cutting the cables was directed from a launch. For three hours Winslow and his men worked over the waves while the bullets whizzed by their heads. Winslow was shot in the hand in that exploit, but he continued in command of the Nashville.

It was Admiral Winslow who several years ago startled the Sandy Hook pilots and New York harbor tug captains by taking the battleship New Hampshire up to the Brooklyn navy yard without the assistance of a pilot. While holding the rank of commander and in command of the Charleston he made a cruise from New York around the coast of South America with Secretary of State Root as a passenger. Before being assigned to the Charleston Commander Winslow was on duty in the Bureau of Navigation, and served as naval aid to President Roosevelt. He was the first officer to command the torpedo-boat Cushing, one of the first vessels of this type in the navy.

Commissioner of Corporations Finds Lumber Trust

Washington, D. C., April 30.—Nationwide price fixing in the lumber industry has never ceased, declared Joseph E. Davies, Commissioner of Corporations today in a report to President Wilson.

Before 1906 price fixing was open when it changed to more clandestine methods; first by publication of market reports or prevailing prices, and later, the employment of basis lists and discount of "concession" sheets.

Mr. Davies reported: "Price combinations among lumber manufacturers have usually been effected thru associations. There is no important region of production in which they do not have an association. Furthermore, they have an association which is composed of a number of the local associations. While some of the avowed purposes of the associations are to bring about and foster practices which are beneficial both to producers and consumers, the wholesale prices of lumber have been higher because of the associated activities of lumbermen.

"In the earlier years many of the associations openly attempted to curtail the output and to fix the whole price of lumber, later, because of fear of the law, they disavowed any such purpose but the practices they professed to abandon were continued by subterfuge and indirection by the same groups of men who had formerly done them in the associations.

"The National Lumber Manufacturers' Association has been active in its efforts to shape legislation. In 1909 it maintained an aggressive lobby in Washington to defeat a reduction of the tariff on lumber.

"From 1897 to 1907 there was a remarkable advance in lumber prices. This advance ranged from 80 to 200 per cent, depending upon the kind of wood and the grade of lumber. While a large part of this advance was due to conditions of supply and demand and to general causes that affected the prices of all commodities, a part of it was undoubtedly due to the concerted efforts of lumber manufacturers. During this period, and since, the lumber man thru their associations as part of the official work, and instances of agreements—written or oral—to maintain uniformity a certain list, or to strict output, were common.

"Since 1906 the method of combining to fix prices have been shaped in some cases the price list which was formerly the basis of the agreement was continued under such associations from reports sent to them. In other cases they were issued nominally as a private business enterprise by some friendly printing firm, and purported to be compiled by the printer. In both cases there is evidence to show that the lists in question by whatever name called or by whomever published, served, and intended to serve, the same purpose as the former official association lists; and that the determination of the prices printed in the later lists was the work of the same group of men who had previously openly determined the prices of the official lists. This holds true when the market reports or prevailing prices in turn were supplanted by a system of basis lists showing fictitiously high prices, which were intended to be used in connection with discount or concession sheets. The basis lists were officially adopted by the association. The discount or concession sheets were sometimes compiled and issued by the secretary from what information he could gather about market conditions, while at other times, they were issued by printing concerns or trade papers closely identified with the association. Here, in the case of the price lists, the discount and consequently the prices really intended to be observed by the members were determined by the same group of men who previously determined the official prices.

"The changes in the methods by which these price activities have been carried on since 1906 were admitted due to fear of the enforcement of federal and state anti-trust laws.

"The evidence clearly shows not only combinations intended to increase the market price of lumber, but there is abundant evidence to warrant the conclusion that, as a result of attempts at artificial control, prices have been higher than they would otherwise have been. Indeed this was asserted by officers of some associations prior to 1906 and used as an inducement for their support and for increasing their membership.

"The National Lumber Manufacturers' Association has generally directed its efforts toward those things that affect lumber producers in common. Some of its activities, such as efforts to secure just and fair treatment from the railroads with respect to freight rates and other matters, are undoubtedly proper. Its actions inlaying its views from legislative bodies in an open and straightforward way may not be objectionable, but it has stopped there. When in 1909 congress was revising the tariff law this association was not content to present its case in the form of proper argument. It resorted to political intrigues in its attempts to influence Congress. It tried to pack committees; it attempted to secure the influence of Cabinet officers, federal and state forestry officials, and others high in authority; its chief representative in Washington freely wrote letters about the services he rendered to certain senators and certain representatives, and pointed out that friends of a day of lumber traded with other friends of protected interests; and officers of the association claimed a large credit for the election of two United States senators, one of whom was subsequently unseated by the senate of the United States.

"The problem is how shall associations such as these be permitted to exercise functions that are legal and proper without perverting them into instruments of wrong or usurping wrongful functions? It may be both proper and desirable for producers in any line of business to establish standard grades, to collect and publish information as to output and current prices, and to cooperate in various proper ways for the common advantage; but it should be pointed out that the standardization of grades is the first step of price fixing, that the collection of information as to output facilities the curtailment of production, and the cooperation for harmless purposes affords a convenient basis for combination in restraint of trade.

"These associations are included in the so-called 'associations not for profit.' It has been sometimes proposed to exempt such associations from the prohibitions of the Sherman law. The serious consequences which might result from exempting them are obvious."

Mrs. J. E. Whaley, 422 E. Oregon St., Alliance, Neb., says: "I have had no reason to change my high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills since I publicly recommended them in May 1907. Over three years ago my kidneys became badly disordered and the kidney secretions were unnatural. Whenever I stooped, sharp pains darted thru my loins and it was difficult for me to straighten. I tried many remedies but all failed to help me until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Holsten's Drug Store. They brought relief in a short time and I continued using them until I was free from kidney complaint."

IT BACK HURTS USE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Eat less meat if Kidneys feel like lead or Bladder bothers you—Meat forms uric acid.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, use a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he has sold lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in preventing kidney trouble while it is only a twinge.

Lice by no means uncommon. No one would expect to fatten a steer with that number of "ticks" sucking his blood, but many expect the old hen to go ahead shelling out eggs while lice and mites are sapping her very life. We have counted over 2000 dead lice under a row of ten hens, on a roost. Lice, mites and ticks are the most common and most dangerous pests of the poultry. They kill the chickens sitting over them.
