Don't Say, "I Want a Box of Matches"

Would you go into a grocery store and say, "Give me a cake of soap?"

No! You would ask—by name—for the kind of soap that is best adapted to your needs.

So with breakfast foods. You would ask—by name—for the kind that has the pleasantest taste or is most nourishing.

Follow this rule with matches. Tell the grocer you want Safe Home Matches.

If you ask for "matches," goodness knows what you may get.

5c. All grocers. Ask for them by name.

The Diamond Match Company

Ask for Safe Home Matches and you will get the very best matches that money will buy.

Non-poisonous—don't spark—don't sputter—don't break—a real safety strike-anywhere match. Inspected and labeled by the Underwriters' Laboratories.

Lloyd's Column

Alice had been to Sunday school for the first time and had come home filled with information. She was overheard to say to her six-year-old sister, as she laid a wee hand over her heart. "When you hear something write here, you know it is conscience whispering to you."

"No such thing," responded the six-year-old, "it's just wind in your tummy."—Lippincott's.

A tramp called at Mr. Cobb's house. "I've walked many miles to see you, sir," he said, "because people told me you were very kind."

"Why, Willie," said the Sunday school teacher in a pained voice, "have you been fighting again? Didn't you learn in last Sunday's lesson that when you are struck on one cheek you ought to turn the other one to the striker?"

"Doolan and Rafferty were examining the fine big library. "Doolan," said Rafferty, pointing to an inscription, "phwat does thim letters, 'MDCCCXCVII' mean?"

The college professor, greatly beloved because of his kind heart, but very absent-minded, visited his married niece and listened to her praise of her first-born. When she paused for breath the professor felt that he must say something.

"Walk?" cried the mother indignantly. "Why, he's been walking now for five months."

"Oh, Mamma!" exclaimed Isabelle one night when she came home from school. "I saw a girl across the street I thought I knew, so I crossed over to speak to her; she thought she knew me, but when we got near together, what do you think, it wasn't either of us."

Rudely awakened from sleep, at about 2:30 a. m., by his doorbell, the peaceable resident stuck his head out of the window and in no very pleasant manner demanded to know what was wanted.

"Seuse me, sir," answered a muddled voice. "Does Jones live here?" "Jones? Of course not. What the devil do you mean by ringing people's bells at this time of the morning? Who are you, anyway?"

"That's lovely, Sammy!" exclaimed his proud mother, and she kissed him tenderly. "What was it in?"

Sammy never overexerted in the classroom. His mother was delighted when he came home one noon with the announcement, "I got 100 this morning."

"Fifty in reading and fifty in arithmetic."

Wife's Mistake Husband—Did that dress suit case come? Wife—The one full of dreadful clothes from the office? Yes, and they came just in time to give away to the missionary society.

Some of Our Famous Criminals Following are a few excerpts from petty-court dockets in various parts of Alabama: George Washington—Vagrancy, sixty days. Andrew Jackson—Drunk, five and costs.

U. S. Grant—Stealing cow, bound over.
Hans Wagner—Violating meat ordinance.
Jim Jeffries—Carrying concealed weapons.
Theodore Roosevelt Jones—Disorderly conduct.
Abraham Lincoln—Larceny, ten and costs.
William Taft—Speeding.
—Montgomery Advertiser.

Professional Pride The other passengers in the sleeping car had gathered by common consent in the smoking room.

"Which berth is he in?" asked one. "Lower eight, right across from me," said a still sadder looking man.

"What can we do? the whole night ahead of us," they cried in one voice—in at least not over a voice and a half.

At last one man who had dealt much in politics and was strong for concerted committee action, said:

"We should wait on him in a body and wake him up and present our case."

This plan met with everybody's approval, and the suggestor was appointed chairman without contest.

Together they moved down the aisle till they were opposite lower eight. The chairman reached in and bravely shook the sleeping man, who awoke with the conventional snort.

"What was the snore I was doing that you objected to?" asked the man interestedly. "Was it a noise like dragging a log chain through a section of stovepipe followed by a brief imitation of a fast leak in an inner tube?"

"Described to the life!" exclaimed all.

"Oh, that's just my warming up work-out snore. Wait till I get to doing the giant strangle and the leviathan snorts and the 36x5 blow-out—then you may say I have snored."

If you gentlemen will kindly withdraw to the smoking room and wait till I get well asleep again, I'll show you what I consider snoring as it is. Good night, gentlemen, and thank you for your interest and courtesy."

And the committee softly withdrew, running into each other frequently in their tear-blinded condition.—Denver News.

SERIOUS FIRE DARLING BARN

Two Residences Saved from Destruction by Fire Friday Afternoon by Quick Work of Firemen

The residences of George Darling and Pat Nolan, on the east side of Laramie avenue, were saved from destruction by fire Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock by the quick work of the fire department. The fire presumably started from the usually disastrous combination of matches and small boys.

Barns and sheds on the rear of the lots were destroyed and a telephone cable, which was carried on poles along the alley, was melted in two by the fire and dropped to the ground, putting over three hundred telephones on Laramie and Cheyenne avenues out of commission.

Just one little nip o' politics seems t' destroy some fellers fer all further usefulness. I'd hate t' be a girl an' have t' remodel ever' spring an' fall.

It's th' trifling transactions o' life that show a feller up. You kin alius tell a dry town by th' sugar barrels around th' depot.

No "Water" in Bell Telephone Stock

Even the most radical enemies of "big business" admit that there is no "water" in Bell Telephone stock. The Bell organization last year paid less than a 6% dividend on actual physical valuation of the property.

In a recent speech in New York, Congressman Lewis, of Maryland, in advocating government ownership of telephones, said:

"Be it said for the Bell System, that it is the one great corporation in our country that has not issued tons of counterfeit capital. Its stock and bonds today represent the actual contributions of its shareholders in money to a great common enterprise, and we will not have that unfortunate circumstance to deal with in the valuation of their properties."

Private enterprise and initiative have made American telephone service the cheapest and most efficient service in the world.
