Alliance Commission Co. HORSE SALE

THURSDAY AND FRIDAY
SEPTEMBER 24-25

At this sale it will be a good time to dispose of your Broke Horses. We have set the date on Sept. 24 and 25, which will give you time to finish haying and rest your horses for the sale. The feeder buyer will be out, also the southern market will be in full blast; we look for the best sale of the season.

Our July sale was better than we expected. Alliance is the place to sell your horses. REMEMBER, it is your MARKET.

Commission: $2.00 per head, singles and pairs. Bunches of 5 head or more, $1.00 per head. Yardage, 10c per head on horses not sold. NO SALE, no commission. Let us know what you will bring in.

Oscar Braman, Mgr.

A Good Trading Point
Twenty-two miles from Alliance and fifteen from Bridgeport, on the Denver-Alliance branch of the C. B. & Q. railroad, is located Angora. Owing to its favorable situation and the enterprise of business men who are interested in the town, it is destined to become one of the good trading points of western Nebraska. It already has a good business which will no doubt continue to increase.

An Up-to-date Lumber Yard
The largest mercantile establishment in Angora, and one of the largest in the county, is that of the R. S. Proudfit Lumber Co., of which R. T. Ely is local manager. Besides carrying a large stock of lumber and building material, such as is usually found in a first-class lumber yard, this company recently erected a commodious store room at Angora and have now a fine stock of paint, hardware, stoves, ranges, furniture, room rugs, etc.

As the town grows and the trade of the surrounding country increases, his business will naturally become greater.

Angora Real Estate Company
C. L. McDaniel, who with his wife moved from Alliance to Angora, and A. G. Stoner, well known in Morrill county, constitute the above named company. They have listed a fine lot of farms and ranches and can sell a customer any quantity of land desired, from a 160 acre farm to a 10,000 acre ranch.

These gentlemen do not confine themselves to the real estate business.

one that will give to the enterprising business men of the town a good trade. While a considerable distance from the nearest towns north and south, as above mentioned, it has a still larger territory from which to draw trade east and west.

The original townsite was laid out on a part of the homestead of Frank Crouch, on the west side of the railroad track, where the main part of the town is located, although quite a number of buildings are on an addition on the east side. Unlike many western towns, it had no "boom" to start with. For a number of years its fine location was not generally appreciated, but within the last year or two it has taken on new life, with the result that more and better business houses have been constructed than during all of its previous history.

Some Lines of Business Needed
We want to give a brief sketch of the business houses of the town, but first will state that there is a good opening here for a few lines not yet represented. First, they need a physician and drug store. This is a healthful country, to be sure, but people some times get sick and accidents happen, calling into requisition the services of a doctor. The Herald suggests to any good physician who desires a location, that this is a fine place for him to open an office in connection with a drug store. Mr. Crouch carries a stock of proprietary medicines, etc., in a small building which he uses for that purpose, but would like for some one to locate here who can do prescription work.

A Sketch of the Town
In giving a sketch of the town, we will begin where we get off the train, at the railroad station, where R. K. Maybelle holds forth as the efficient agent. Besides looking after the business of the company and serving its patrons in a very acceptable manner, he is interested in raising poultry and gives attention to other matters for the welfare of the community. During parts of the year when a night operator is needed, Mrs. Maybelle very ably assists her husband, acting in the capacity of assistant agent.

surrounding country and the town as a trading point. They have made it unnecessary for the people of the surrounding country to drive long distances to secure the above mentioned goods and other things which they handle. The statement in the advertisement on this page, "Everything to build and furnish the home" is literally true.

General Merchandise Stores
G. A. Dove is a native of Ohio. He moved from the "Buckeye" state to Illinois, thence to Hall county, Nebr., and from there to Morrill county, where he engaged in ranching several years. About a year and a half ago he turned the ranch over to his sons who, in addition to conducting a successful ranch business, have charge of the post office and a store at Lynn, ten miles southeast of Angora. After being relieved of the care of the ranch, Mr. Dove, Sr., opened a general merchandise store in ness. They run an up-to-date livery barn and are proprietors of a pool hall. Mr. Stoner is also proprietor of the Angora hotel, where travelers can secure comfortable lodging at a reasonable price.

Angora State Bank
One of the leading business enterprises of the town is the Angora State Bank, in charge of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Lovenburg, as cashier and assistant cashier. They came from Madrid, Nebr., where he was in mercantile business and she was assistant cashier of the Madrid Exchange Bank. The Angora State Bank was opened for business June 24, 1914, with a capital stock of $10,000. The names of the officers are given in the advertisement. The bank did not have to wait for business but was at once accorded a liberal patronage. Already deposits are nearing the $10,000 mark, and there is

Catholic Church of Angora

Henry J. Walsworth, postmaster, was appointed to the office last February under civil service rules, this office being in the fourth-class grade. He received the highest grade of those taking the examination and is well qualified to perform the duties of the office. Mr. Walsworth came from Cambridge, Nebr., to Morrill county three years ago and fled on a homestead claim four miles west of Angora, so that he has an interest in that account in wanting to see the town prosper, as well as on account of the office which he holds.

Angora and has built up a fine trade. He carries a good stock of goods for a small town and aims to sell, as cheap or cheaper than his competitors in the larger neighboring towns.

L. L. Chambers had the benefit of a mercantile experience before coming to this place, having formerly been in business with his father at Minatare. A year ago last March he came to Angora and opened a general merchandise store. He has a nice stock of goods in a fine new building, and is well satisfied with the business which he is already receiving.

no indication that they will stop at that.

Other Kinds of Business
It is impossible to give in one issue of The Herald all of the information we would like to give about the town. A correspondent has been secured and interested parties will find hereafter a regular installment of news from Angora. A few others will be mentioned briefly now.

Mrs. Mary Bowers has been running a restaurant for about four years. She is the inventor and patentee of an adjustable metal screen door, models of which are now being made by the Newberry's Hardware Co. of Alliance. She expects to have the doors manufactured in large quantities and sold to dealers the coming year.

C. S. Stoner has charge of the cream station for the Alliance Creamery Co. A fine dairy country surrounds Angora and a large amount of cream is shipped from that point. Mr. Stoner has a photograph equipment, including a good camera, and does quite a little work in that line. He intends to erect a photograph gallery next year.

Harry Barber is the barber and has charge of a cream station for the David Cole Creamery Co.

A. D. Hull, the village blacksmith, is a busy man. Besides doing the work of his shop, he carries the mail from Angora to Lynn, ten miles southeast, and Mrs. Hull carries the mail to Goodstreak, northwest.

Schools and Churches
Angora has a good school and two churches, Catholic and Method-
