

MEXICANS ARE AT WAR AGAIN

Mexican Army Is Split and Rival Forces Fighting in Battle at Aguas Calientes

Vera Cruz, Nov. 11.—Higinio Aguilar, supported by Gen. Benjamin Arzamendo and a contingent of Zapato followers, is attacking Puebla, sixty-seven miles southeast of Mexico City, according to advices received here tonight. The party already is in possession of the outskirts of the city. Constitutional soldiers sent from the capital to reinforce the Puebla garrison are resisting stubbornly.

El Paso, Texas, Nov. 11.—War has been declared between the Carranza and Villa elements of the constitutionalist army, according to advices received at Juarez tonight from officials of the conclave of chieftains at Aguas Calientes.

A preliminary battle already has occurred at Leon, between the convention army and Querejaro, it was reported.

Gen. Pablo Gonzales, the Carranza commander, has moved his forces from Querejaro north to Silao to meet the Villa advance.

Gen. Manuel Chao, a Villa chieftain, departed today from Aguas Calientes with a strong column.

A message from official sources in Mexico City, given out today by Rafael Muzquiz, the Carranza consul general to the United States, said:

"The first chief is at Cordoba. A majority of the principal chiefs have declared in favor of Carranza. Villa has called on the people to take up arms. All the south and east is loyal to the first chief."

AMERICAN TAILORED SUIT.

This is a simple tailored suit of dark blue serge, having a jacket which combines a cutaway front with a swallow-tail back, a closely side plaited tunic over a narrow foundation skirt and a collar of figured velvet. The trimming is of large bone buttons.

INVESTMENTS

From the Hemingford Journal: (By Normal G. Palmer)

Read Matthew 25:14-46. Life is a business proposition. The true object of living is to so invest capital that it may yield the investor the largest possible returns.

It has been said that all men are capitalists. If that is true, every individual is, or should be, an investor; but is it true? Capital is productive resources of any kind. That is a general definition. In political economy, capital is that part of the product of industry, energy or thought which is available for further production. Capital is something which may be invested; something which may be wrapped within an enterprise in such a way that from it, as a natural result, will proceed gain to the individual making the investment or to some interest designated by him, or to both. It is true, then, that all men are capitalists. Are all men possessors of something which may be called capital?

There is character, good, bad and indifferent. Character is capital. It may be, in fact, always is, invested in some enterprise, worthy or otherwise. Good character is the most worthy sort of capital an individual may possess. It never gets below par; it is legal tender, both in the marts of earth and in the courts of heaven; it is the monetary standard of the kingdom of God.

Intellectual power and equipment is capital. Every enterprise, be it small or great, simple or complex, requires the investment of that sort of capital. The driving of a nail so that it will hold a board firmly in place and the organization of a great railroad merger alike are dependent upon the investment of intellectual capital, and without it both would fail absolutely.

Physical strength is capital. Fields of opportunity everywhere, of every conceivable nature, call for the investment of physical capital. The successful investor in every enterprise must have it.

The three kinds of wealth named above constitute the capital stock of every man in the sight of God. When we proceed to invest our capital stock in life, we may ask for our own guidance, two questions: First, Will it profit me personally in a financial or other selfish way to make this investment? Second, Will it profit my fellows? Will it profit the world? Will it make me a better man, a better citizen? Will it be considered profitable at that source from which the capital originally came to me, if I make this investment? The truly wise man, the highest type of citizen, the genuinely Christian man will ask the second question.

HEMINGFORD SCHOOL NOTES

From the Hemingford Journal:

An entertainment will be given in the Opera House, Wednesday, November 18, by John I. Cochran, entertainer, under the auspices of the High School. Watch for further particulars elsewhere in this paper.

Miss Huss was absent a few days last week and Miss Delsing Monday of this week, on account of illness.

Owing to so many social events the past week, our school work fell below the average in quality and quantity.

The mid-semester tests came as a surprise in some classes, and results were even more surprising.

Friday, the tenth grade Latin class finished their recitation fifteen minutes earlier than usual and teacher and pupils visited in Mrs. Angeller's room. The program was enjoyed very much.

Tuesday morning, Mr. Fisher, of the Alliance Commercial Club, and Mr. Anderson of Nebraska University talked to the pupils of grammar and High School. Their talks were along lines of agriculture and advantages of farm life and necessity for a demonstrator in each county, and advantages derived from boys' and girls' clubs. They made the statement, too, that there are any number of $50 and $60 men and women but always a great scarcity of $200 men.

STYLISH AFTERNOON GOWN.

This uniquely built black satin gown has a Persian belt which gives a bit of glowing color to the gown. It is threaded under the tunic. At the sides the tunic is finished with buttons. The short sleeves of the bodice are made long by the addition of half sleeves of white crepe de chine. The vest is also of white crepe de chine, while a sailor collar of the Persian stuff finishes the neck.
