DUHON CASE TRIED TUESDAY

Charges Against Four Defendants
Dismissed—Shimek Fined Ten Dollars and Costs

The case of the State vs. Henry Shimek, Jr., Will Keane, Print Keane, and Frank Bartos was tried before Judge Berry in the county court on Tuesday of this week. The charges were dismissed against all of the defendants except Henry Shimek, Jr. The complainant, Joseph Dubon, alleged that Shimek, Bartos and the two Keanes assaulted him at a Christmas tree celebration the 23rd of December, but the charges were dismissed against the latter three defendants, and Shimek was fined $10 and costs, while both the complainant and the defendant were placed under bonds to keep the peace.

The evidence tended to show that Mr. Dubon has always had more or less trouble with his neighbors in the northwestern part of the county, and that young Shimek was merely protecting his own rights. The light fine was placed on him as a reminder that the courts are the places to settle troubles of this kind.

Though it was reported that Dubon was assaulted by four or five men at one time, it was shown at the trial that this was not the case, young Shimek being the only one to touch him.

The row was the result of an old quarrel between Dubon and the father of the defendant, Henry Shimek, and has been going on for several years.
