"SAFETY FIRST"

The above, "Safety First," has become more than a motto for railroad officials and employees; it is being adopted as a rule of action in business affairs, as well as in matters of personal safety.

In ordering a quarantine, from February 10 to March 10, against cattle from South Dakota, Kansas and states east of the Missouri river, the Nebraska Live Stock Sanitary Board have acted upon the principle that it is better to be safe than to take chances on being sorry.

There may be some criticism of the quarantine order, by persons whose interests are directly and immediately affected by it, but the Herald is strongly of the opinion that the action of the board was the proper thing and that it was taken none too soon. Much as we wish to see blooded stock brought into this state to improve the breed of both dairy and beef cattle, we are sure that a little delay in this matter now is much better than continuing the risk of years of disaster thru neglect of proper precautions now.

The cattle men who called the attention of the State Live Stock Sanitary Board to the matter and requested the quarantine did a good thing, and they did another good thing when they appointed five representative men to act as a standing lookout committee to assist in protecting the cattle interests of Nebraska.

TRIBUTE TO A WORTHY WOMAN

All the commercial job printing establishments in Omaha, about fifty in number, stopped work for five minutes yesterday afternoon, from 2 to 2:05 o'clock, during the funeral of Mrs. Henrietta Rees, wife of Samuel Rees, Sr. It was a fine tribute to the memory of a worthy woman. Mrs. Rees passed away Monday afternoon. On Tuesday morning the city commission of Omaha passed a resolution deploring her death and extending sympathy to the bereaved family.

Mrs. Rees was a splendid type of woman, having an influence for good that will not end with her demise. She came to Omaha when a young woman, in the year 1867, and opened a private school, soon after becoming a teacher in the public schools of the young city. She was a member of the Omaha Woman's Club, the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Order of the Eastern Star, and the Nebraska State and Territory Pioneers. The pallbearers at her funeral were members of the first class to graduate from the Omaha High school, all of them at one time her pupils.

GOOD MANAGEMENT OF BLOCKADE

Two years ago, when western and northern Nebraska were covered with a heavy blanket of snow, which was blown into railroad cuts until they were filled, a number of passenger trains were stalled in the open and the passengers faced danger in the form of hunger and cold. This year, when it appeared that conditions would be the same, the railroads took the wise course and kept their passenger trains in the larger towns until the storm abated, averting any danger of freezing or starving. While this caused some discomfort and delay, it was decidedly better than the experiences gone through in the blizzard of 1913.

TEN YEARS AGO

From the Files of The Alliance Herald of February 9, 1905

After due consideration of the matter, the city council located the numbers of the wards as above shown, instead of as shown in The Herald last week. The dividing lines remain the same but the wards are numbered differently. This was done in order to keep the councilmen who hold over in the same ward numbers as at present.
