

Exquisite Alcove In Court of the Four Seasons at World's Greatest Exposition

MONTHS in advance of its opening the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco was 95 per cent completed. The photograph above shows a stately alcove in the Court of the Four Seasons, of which Henry Bacon, designer of the Lincoln memorial at Potomac Park, Washington, D. C., is the architect. In each of the four corners of the court are niches containing fountains and symbolizing the seasons—spring, summer, autumn and winter.

MESSAGE TO LEGISLATURE

Governor Asks for Emergency Appropriation to Guard Against Foot and Mouth Disease

Last Friday Governor Morehead sent a special message to the legislature relative to the creation of road-paving districts in the rural districts of the state, and an appropriation to pay stock losses in the event that the foot and mouth disease gets into Nebraska. The latter recommendation is the one that readers of The Herald will be particularly interested in, and in regard to which they should at once communicate with their representatives and state senators. If necessary, in order to secure their unanimous support.

The executive advocates the free use of convict and county prisoner labor and declares that the time is ripe for people of the state to quit wasting their money on road building. He urges the lawmakers to enact such measures as will meet the road problem in a new and more business-like manner. He said:

"There has been enough money spent in temporarily improving Nebraska's roads to build hundreds of miles of permanent paved roads. No city or town has ever done paving without doing it over the protest of many of the property owners, and yet, after the work is done, none of the citizens who are benefitted thereby would go back to the old method of temporary improvement. The same condition would exist if permanent road work would be taken up by the district, county or state.

"If the several counties of our state could succeed in getting a few miles of paved road it would appeal to the people so strongly that they would at once see the advisability of spending their money in permanent improvements.

"I am still strong in the belief that men serving a jail sentence should be used on our public highways as well as the men in the penitentiary. We have a law now that permits the use of these men at a very low cost, and, as I have often stated, it would be better for the men to be used in this kind of work, and it would be of great benefit to the state.

"I believe that the law for good roads should be framed along the same plan as paving districts are organized in cities, so that property owners who are desirous of building good roads could form paving districts. After a few districts are formed, and some permanent roads built, I have great confidence that Nebraska can, in a few years, have many hundreds of miles of good, paved roads.

"I urge upon you the importance of giving this your earnest consideration. The importance of it will be readily seen at the present time in many parts of Nebraska. The farmers have been unable to move their stock and their grain, and have suffered great inconvenience on account of bad roads. In parts of the state they will be unable to use the public highways before late in the spring, when their farm work is demanding their time.

"A discussion of the material to be used is of vital importance in building these highways, as some of the states have made a mistake which has cost them large sums of money. I am of the opinion that the material to be used should be designated in the law, so that no mistake may occur in Nebraska, provided we undertake to build some good roads.

"Every automobile user in this state could well afford to pay a tax of $10 per annum, to be spent on the public highways of our state, and it would not only be a source of pleasure to have roads we could use all seasons of the year, but would, in the long run, be a great saving in a financial way.

"There is another matter which I desire to call to your attention. I will make no recommendation at this time, but trust that you will give it your consideration, so that you will be able to act in a well-informed way before this session closes.

"It is the matter of the foot and mouth disease among our cattle, hogs and sheep, which has put in its appearance in different states of the union. Never in the history of this country has there been an epidemic of a more malignant nature or one which has been more detrimental to business interests of the country. It has been a very destructive disease, causing a loss of millions of dollars in foreign countries, and has already caused losses reaching up in the millions in this country.

"Nebraska has been fortunate up to the present time, and the sanitary live stock board of our state is using every means possible to prevent the infection of any of the herds of this state. But it is of such a contagious form that we have grave fears of being able to escape.

Suggests Appropriation
"My object in calling your attention to this matter is so you can discuss the advisability of making an appropriation, to be left in the hands of the sanitary live stock board or some state official, to reimburse anyone who might have a loss caused by this disease.

"I am informed that the only way to control the disease is to immediately destroy the herd which has been infected. It is unfair to destroy a man's property, which would be a menace to the entire state, without paying him for his stock. In some of the other states the government has been standing half the loss, and the state, where the loss occurred, the other half.

"I hope you will give this your consideration, and, if you deem it advisable, make an appropriation before you adjourn."
