Before they are married she calls them "vests". After they are married while she calls them just plain "undershirts".

Do your Christmas shopping early!

The other day we noticed a photograph where a live elephant's hide had been marked into squares, so that a diamond which it had accidentally swallowed could be located with an X-ray. We know some men who would have to stand the same process on top of their heads if they were examined for brains.

And now a New York judge has ruled that a woman is boss of the household. His ruling isn't necessary, for any married man realizes the fact.

The more we see of some men, the more we are convinced that the most positive statements come from the most ignorant men.

A press dispatch states that a freight train was captured in Ohio by tramps. We'll bet it walked to the next station.

Nowadays if Diogenes were hunting for an honest man, he wouldn't use a common lantern. Not hardly! He would use one of these new-fangled, six cylinder, self starting electric flashlights. And his job wouldn't be any easier than it was several thousand years ago, either.

Everyone in Alliance co-operates during the Cleanup week, the bath tubs over town will do a rushing business.

This is the time of the year when everyone looks longingly at the pictures on the seed catalogs—reading glib tales, so to speak.

WANTED FOR LARCENY

Stolen Horse and Saddle Before Leaving Phelan Ranch Where He Had Been Working

Sheriff Cal Cox started out last Friday on the trail of Charles Drescher, who is wanted for larceny, but returned home Saturday night after a fruitless search of fifty miles west, where he lost the trail.

The last seen of Drescher in Alliance was Monday of last week when he cashed a small check. He had been working at the J. R. Phelan ranch and had always appeared honest, and for that reason the ranch hands were slow in attaching suspicion to him. When he departed he had a horse, belonging to Mr. Phelan, and a saddle, bridle and spurs belonging to one of the ranch hands.

Drescher has a brother living in Wyoming, and it was thought at first he had gone there, but it was found later that he had not. Drescher's former home was at Broadwater, to which place Sheriff Cox went without results.

Mr. Phelan was at Excelsior Springs, Mo., when he received word of the theft and returned home last Wednesday. Drescher and the outfit have been pretty well advertised over this part of the country, and it is probable that they will be taken into custody in a short time.

GUY ALLEN IMPROVING

Encouraging Letter Received by The Herald from the State Hospital

The following letter was received from the Herald Tuesday from the Nebraska State Hospital, at Hastings, where Guy Allen was taken last week on account of his mental condition. His relatives and friends here will be glad to learn that his condition is improving and that his return home will be possible in a few months. The letter follows: Mr. Lloyd C. Thomas, Alliance, Nebr.

Dear Sir:

According to my promise the other day I am writing to inform you we have concluded our examinations in the case of Guy Allen. We gave him a Wasserman test which was negative. Our diagnosis in the case is acute mania, and possibly may have been caused from mental worry, or the injury to the head which he received sometime ago, may be the foundation.

I am glad to say he is responding very nicely to treatment both mentally and physically, and we are hoping he will recover sufficiently to return home in a few months.

Sincerely yours,
M. W. BAXTER, Supt.

NOTICE

Ordinance No. 195 of the City of Alliance calls for a maximum speed of 12 miles per hour, while driving within the corporate limits of this city. My attention has been called to the frequent violation of this ordinance. In the future all drivers of automobiles and other vehicles are hereby warned that a violation of this ordinance will mean trouble. I have instructed the police department to be on the constant outlook for this violation and to arrest the offenders at once.

I hope that the city will not be compelled to take such actions. I hope that the drivers of automobiles will please bear in mind that others besides themselves are entitled to the use of the streets.

USED TO STRONG LANGUAGE

Wooden Legged Man Showed Fight When He Was Arrested by Night Marshal Kish

Frank Delany drew a fine of $25 and costs in police court Monday when he was arrested for insulting ladies and using obscene language on the streets. An additional charge lodged against him later was that of resisting an officer.

He was in the alley behind the Kish home Monday afternoon when he used insulting and obscene language. Mr. Kish, the night marshal, was asleep at the time, but he was awakened and lost no time in getting to his man. When he caught sight of him, he found that he possessed a wooden leg, and when he discovered this, Mr. Kish decided to be a little lenient in taking him to the station. However, Mr. Delany didn't want any leniency, and started right in to put up a stiff fight, with the result that the night marshal was forced to forget his leniency and use all the force at his command, and even at that he found it no easy undertaking to bring in the prisoner.

As Delany had no cash on his person, he is now working for the city, a job which he does not seem to relish and which he regards as very disagreeable to a man of his standing.

It has heretofore been thought that Chief Jeffers was the one who possessed all the fighting qualities, and who was the "man of the moment" in such cases, but Night Marshal Kish seems to be getting some of the laurels lately.

BEST PART IN HIS CAREER

During the past twelve years John G. Rae has firmly established himself in the Midwest as a comedian of big city ability. Those who saw him as Judge Howell in "Mildred", and as the tramp in "Her Son" last season will readily admit the fact. He is a host of fun in any part, but in his new musical farce, "Lend Me $200", he is more than that for he has the best part in his career. He has surrounded himself with a clever company of comedians, singers and dancers and if you can't enjoy every minute of this show you are doomed to an everlasting groch. "Lend Me $200" will be at the Phelan opera house, Saturday, April 24th, and we advise everybody to prepare for an evening of laughter, music and enjoyment.
