Ward B. Norton expects his new Buick demonstrator to arrive the latter part of this week. Ward saw one of these machines at Chadron the other day, and he said it was the classiest car he had seen anywhere. All the Buicks this year are "sixes", and they show a great deviation from the established models. The bodies are built boat-like, and while the Buick people do not claim the new model to be an "underslung", it comes very close to this distinction. Ward says it is a beauty, and is anxiously looking forward to the arrival of the demonstrator.

On the last page in this issue will be found a page advertisement for the W. R. Harper department store, advertising their July clearance sale. July is a month of bargains, and it will pay to study the ad and buy for your needs for several months to come. The Herald also printed a big bunch of bills for the sale.

What might easily have been termed a cloudburst visited this section last Friday night, nearly two inches of water falling in a little more than an hour. For a while it appeared as though Alliance was going to be swept away. Streets for a solid block were under water, and all the ditches over town, and especially where the grading has been in progress, looked like miniature rivers. At times the rain fell so thick it was impossible to see across the street. Accompanying the rain was a terrific electrical storm, and brilliant flashes of lightning appeared almost constantly. SILO TRIP A GREAT SUCCESS

Much Enthusiasm Shown by Business Men in the Silo Demonstration Trip Today

Twelve auto loads of business men and farmers went out this morning on the first of the two silo booster trips for this year. And twelve auto loads returned in the evening well satisfied with the work being done.

The first silo visited was that of L. D. Blair. Mr. Blair's silo is of the stave type and is of 125 ton capacity. It is built in his large barn, the door opening almost into the feed trough. 115 tons were put into the silo last year, and this lasted from September to April 12 of this year. Most of the time he uses silage instead of grain, and he stated that if the same amount of corn that was put into the silo had been fed as fodder it would not have lasted half as long. The cost of the silo complete was $550.

After Mr. Blair had made a short talk on his experience with silos and silage and had answered a number of questions regarding them, Prof. J. C. Frandsen, head of the dairy department of the University of Nebraska, made a talk which was illustrated with charts prepared by him after careful observation of existing conditions over the state. Prof. Frandsen explained the need of a slight variation of feed in order to get the best results, and more especially the lists of feed that come under the heads of proteins and carbohydrates. Under the former list he classes alfalfa hay, clover hay, pea hay, bran, oil meal, cotton seed meal, oats, gluten meal and soy beans. The food rich in carbohydrates he classes as corn, corn silage, barley, oats, timothy hay, corn fodder, orchard grass, oats straw, carrots, sugar beets and mangel wurzels. To get the best results, he explained, it is necessary to use feed that comes under both classes, that is, carbohydrates must be used to offset the effects of proteinous foods, so that no one part of the stock will be built up and another neglected. He said that in his experience he had found that the best and most economical combination is alfalfa hay and corn silage.

The front of the Rhein-Rousey hardware store has been considerably improved during the past few days by the addition of four neat signs just below the windows. They expect to make a number of other improvements in the near future.

This week the sidewalk crossings in the west part of town are being let down to conform to the newly established grade. The walks around the blocks remain the same. The recent heavy rains have delayed the grading work, but Fifth street will soon be down where it ought to be.

Last week the water in the firemen's plunge was changed three times. This is once more than usual, as two changes a week are generally sufficient. As soon as possible a sort of cornice will be built around the edges, so that the particles of cement will not be swept into the plunge when they are loosened by those walking around the edges. A railing will also be placed around the plunge to eliminate the possibility of anyone falling in and spoiling a new suit or dress.

Since the first of this week the almost nightly rains have taken a vacation, and some say that we will now have a little dry weather. It had come to a point where few people ventured down town at nights without raincoats and umbrellas, even though the sky might be as clear as a crystal when they left their homes. The practice was a good one, too, for on many occasions people who went to the shows thinking there would be no rain were compelled to receive a good wetting before they could return. Tuesday and Wednesday showed a most decided change in weather conditions. Old Sol shed his rays in profusion, and few coats were worn by the men, women appeared dressed in that garb which only woman can wear. If it stays this way for a few days more most people will be wanting some more rain.

W. B. Barnett expects to leave Sunday for New York to select the fall and winter goods for the Golden Rule store. Mrs. H. S. Norton and son came in Monday from Kansas City, Mo., for a short visit with W. W. Norton and family. Mrs. Norton is a sister-in-law to Mr. Norton. Mrs. F. N. Maybell came in from Angola Wednesday for a few days visit with her friend, Mrs. N. O. Robbins. L. A. Twilegar went to Antioch Wednesday to do some carpenter work where the recent storm visited. Miss Zeta Thistesen, who came up from Bridgeport Sunday to visit Miss Ella Stroud, returned to her home Wednesday. J. A. Farrell came in last week from Muskogee, Okla., and started work Monday as machinist in the round house.
