BRINGS HEALTHY COLOR TO CHEEKS

Many women are compelled to lie down at frequent intervals during the day. This, of course, is due to weakness, the forerunner of serious ills to follow.

At first there will be great languor especially in the morning; faintness, dizziness, weakness or sinking at the pit of the stomach. The digestion becomes impaired and appetite is gone. Then comes palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath on any slight exertion, cold hands and feet, headaches, paleness, dark circles under the eyes, a dragging pain across the hips; the memory becomes poor, the disposition irritable and nervous, the least noise or unusual occurrence upsets the nerves.

Disease quickly destroys the complexion, making it yellow or greenish looking, the cheeks become sunken and spots of a brownish hue appear on the skin.

All these symptoms are caused by poor circulation and an exhausting or wasting away of the nerve force. The blood becomes thin and watery and the nerves lack strength.

It has been admitted that ills peculiar to women, in most cases start in the stomach; that when digestion is good, the blood is good, the nerves and organs are properly nourished and strength is the result.

In hundreds of thousands of cases, Tanlac has been the means of relieving the ills of women, because it gives strength and tone to the system. Tanlac is a tonic, prepared from roots, barks and flowers gathered in many parts of the world. Testimonials from women who have used it say, "It has made me a new woman," "I feel healthy again," "I enjoy my housework" and other like expressions.

Tanlac may be obtained in Alliance at the Harry Thiele store.

For instance, in Box Butte county the taxes charged against the county in 1914 was $16,141.78, while in 1915 it was $14,256.97, a reduction of $1,884.81.

Lloyd's Column

Slam, Bang, Slam, Bang, Slam, Bang

A week ago Saturday night the editor of this column took the opportunity of securing an interview with Jess Willard, champion heavyweight prizefighter, and his manager, Tom Jones, who were in the city with the Sells-Floto circus. In company with us in the party was a reporter for the Alliance Times. However, on a big newspaper of that kind, with a verbal circulation that reaches every home in the west, it probably sometimes happens that the editor, who once himself aspired to pugilistic fame and who afterwards degenerated to the promotion of wrestling matches, cannot keep track of his subordinates and he failed to learn that he was "also there." The result was the following bit of beautiful prose regarding our report of the interview. This was given some of the valuable space occupied by "peep sites" in Friday's issue of the Times and read this way:

"When the mighty Jess Willard refused to give audience to the reporter on the incomparable Herald he did something of more national importance than he did at Havana." "I betcha Jess Willard had a good hearty laugh when that gang of small-town reporters tried to impress him with their importance while they gumshoed up and down and tried to peek into his car."

Receipt Book for the Young Lady

An Alliance young lady who prides herself on her facial fitness, dropped into this office the other day and asked us if we kept receipt books. We replied that we did and that we had several kinds, asking her preference in the matter. She replied, "I want a receipt for keeping my face straight." She got it.

Vacation Time Comes Again

Now that August is here again and vacations are in order, we are wondering whether or not all of our neighboring resort of Hot Springs will again have the courage to let "history repeat itself." Or has the fascination of the place been lost?

The Name Sometimes Bothers

George Darling, Alliance furniture man, likes a good joke when he hears one. He recently related the following: A newly rich family in a town nearby adopted the affection of calling their servants by their last names. An application for employment as chauffeur was received and the applicant interviewed the lady of the house.

"We call our servants by their last names," she said. "What is your name?"

"You had best call me Thomas, ma'am," replied the applicant.

"No, we insist that you be willing to be called by your last name. Otherwise you won't do at all."

The chauffeur said that he was willing to be called by his last name, but didn't think the family would like to use it.

"What is your last name, then?" said his prospective employer, somewhat coldly, as though she expected a revelation of international scandal.

"Darling, ma'am. Thomas Darling."

Abie Wanted Room

A careless chauffeur in attempting to drive his car over the tracks of a railroad, was struck by a train, the car smashed to pieces and the party thrown out and more or less injured.

After they had been picked up and placed in a comfortable position, Abie Cohen came along and inquired the cause of the trouble.

Being advised that their car had been struck by a train, Abie asked if the company's claim adjuster had arrived to effect a settlement.

When he was told that the adjuster had not reached the scene of trouble, his countenance took on a pleasant smile and he said:

A Capital Poem

My wife went shopping this A. M. The bill came promptly P. D. Q. Box neatly labelled C. O. D. But still she gave an I. O. U. Said I: "My dear, that's not O. K. You know your credit is N. G. I'm one of the Y. M. C. A." She laughed: "O. G. I. C. U. B." (Sure enough! And the Man who wrote it is—J. G. E.) —Erie Railroad Magazine.

If You've Got the Goods
You may know the pinch of famine,
You may know the clutch of debt,
There may be but little lamb in
Any freehouse you get.

All the dubs may try to flop you,
Any trick to lay you low,
But they cannot really stop you,
If you've got the goods to show.

They may knock you down and trample
On the wares you have to sell,
They may hand you out a sample
Of a little bit of B—!

They may turn on you and thunder,
"Back, you lobster, to the woods,"
But they cannot keep you under
If you've really got the goods.

True, it's hard for you to suffer
What you know you don't deserve,
But it rather makes you tougher
And it stiffens up your nerve.

Let 'em slam, and damn, and flout
You,
Bear it all as best you can,
But the world can't do without you
If you've got the goods, Old Man.

JUDGE HOWARD'S OPINION

Leading Nebraska Editor Publishes Editorial on Advertising Offered by Political Parties

Before the primaries in April of this year The Alliance Herald published editorially its stand on the proposition of the publication of advertising for the "wet" and "dry" forces in the campaign. We stated that our columns were open for the insertion of paid advertising of this nature. Judge Edgar Howard, editor of the Columbus Telegram, recently published the following editorial on the same proposition:

Hardly Fair

If a dealer in lumber should be asked to supply material for the erection of a platform for the accommodation of a political speaker, certainly those who asked would expect to pay for the lumber.

If a bandmaster should be asked to furnish music for a political rally, certainly those who asked would expect to pay for the music.

But when it comes to asking the country editor for the use of his goods in the promotion of a political program everybody seems to take it for granted that there will be no charge.

Just now many country editors in Nebraska are being severely criticized because they refuse to turn their newspapers over to one side or the other, for or against the pending constitutional amendment. In the judgment of The Telegram it is not fair for the "wet" side or the "dry" side to demand that the country editor shall turn his newspaper over to its cause, without money and without price. The newspaper man's advertising space is the same to him as goods on the shelves to the merchant. If he gives away his goods, then he must look elsewhere for a means of taking care of his family. But some "wet" advocates say to the country editor who is opposed to the amendment that it is his duty to print all kinds of argument furnished by the "wet" committee, and the "dry" advocates question the loyalty of a country editor who favors the amendment if he refuses to turn his entire newspaper over to the "dry" committee. Surely it is not fair on part of either of the two committees to make fish out of the country editor and fowl out of all other classes of merchants. But aside from the manifestly unfair discrimination against the country editor by the advocates and the opponents of the amendment, it strikes us that the average dope furnished by the committees in the present campaign might better go unpublished. One day a so-called "prosperity League" in Omaha sends the editor for free publication a vast volume of figures to prove that prohibition in Kansas has been a failure, and the next day the other side sends him as many more figures to prove that prohibition in Kansas has been a success. If the poor editor refuses to publish the "wet" dope, then he is complained against by the home-town "wets" and if he refuses to publish the "dry" dope, then the local "drys" tell him he is in the pay of the "wets." It is a sad situation for the editor, choose whatever course he may. There is only one way out of the dilemma, and we are glad to note that many country editors are now taking that way. This way points toward dignity and honor always, and it leads the editor to become the absolute master of his own newspaper space, both advertising and editorial, accepting all acceptable advertising at regular rates, and holding his editorial space as above all price.
