Lloyd's Column

Ford Greatest Evangelist

The editorial minstrel team, on their trip and at their performances in the different western Nebraska towns, pulled off some good jokes that are worth repeating. "Doc" Tanner, of South Omaha, is an adept at story telling and told the following with good results, as far as applause was concerned. Edgar Howard, of Columbus, was interlocutor. The story follows:

Mr. Howard: "Doc Tanner, who is the greatest living evangelist?"

Doc Tanner: "Henry Ford is the greatest living evangelist."

Mr. Howard: "Why do you say that Billy Sunday was the greatest living evangelist. Why do you say Henry Ford is the greatest living evangelist?"

Doc Tanner: "Bekaws, Mr. Howard, bekaws Henry Ford's autos have shook hell out of more people than Billy Sunday ever did."

An elderly but spry lady hopped off the Denver train one day last week and was handed two suit cases by the porter. She carried them past a group of traveling men and remarked to them, "Red caps are sure thick around here." Inquiry elicited the fact that this same lady had asked the porter on the Pullman car to cash a check for thirty dollars in order that she might tip him.

A pert Alliance young man has propounded to us the following question: "Will an unattached young man catch hay fever from an alfalfa widow?" We are unable to answer this question satisfactorily and must refer it to our readers.

Keen Clippers

I was feeling sad and solemn,
Till I came upon Lloyd's column,
Then I cut up such a caper
That I almost dropped my paper.

For I found some fun so glorious
That I gave a shout uproarious.
Some of this, I haste to mention,
Was of our Friend Lloyd's invention.

While some other, it appears,
He had landed with his shears.
When his think-tank kinder slips
He just clips and clips and clips.

Of ye editor, 'tis said,
He must never lose his head;
But 'tis fatal, it appears,
If he once mislays his shears.
—EFF BEE TEE.

Appreciates Good Jokes

One of the regular readers of The Herald who seems to appreciate Lloyd's Column is an Englishman who travels but who manages to get to see his Herald every week. He sends us the following jinklets from the Hotel Fontenelle, Omaha. They were picked up by him on his travels:

An Essay on the Duck

A little school girl in Michigan has written the following essay on the duck: The duck is a low, heavy-set bird. He is a mighty poor singer, having a coarse voice, caused by getting so many frogs in his neck, and he likes the water and carries a toy balloon in his stomach to keep from sinking; the duck has only two legs, and they are set so far back on his running gears by nature that they come pretty near missing his body, some ducks when they get big curls on their tails are called drakes and don't have to set or hatch, but just loaf and go swimming and eat everything in sight if I were to be a duck I would rather be a drake they have a wide bill like they use it for a spade they walk like a drunk man side to side if you scare them they will flap their wings and try to make a pass at singing.

This is a Free Country

New York—The inalienable right of a tired business man to obtain a restful eye-fel has been upheld in the West Farms court. James Cizas, whose particular business is ice, was arraigned on a charge of looking through a bedroom window at a young woman about to retire. The court decided that a young woman about to retire should in all instances pull down the curtain of her bedroom.

Miss Mary Unger, the complainant, testified she was horror-stricken when she looked out of the window and saw James Cizas looking intently in. He explained when caught that he was just looking at points of interest generally and happened upon the spectacle of Miss Unger in her boudoir quite unexpectedly.

Too Much Work for This Farmer

A party of engineers were tracing a township line across some farm lands in Illinois. As chance would have it, the line passed directly through a large barn having double doors on each side of it, and they found they could continue their measurements through the barn by opening the doors, and thus avoiding the dreaded detour. The owner watched their progress with considerable interest, and made no comment until they had reached the farther side of the barn, when he asked:

"That a railroad ye'all surveyin' fer?"

"Certainly," replied the chief, with a humorous twinkle in his eye.

The farmer meditated a bit as he closed the barn doors behind them, when he remarked somewhat aggressively, "I ain't got no objections ter havin' er railroad on my farm, but I'll be darned if I'm goin' ter open and shet them doors for yer train to go through!"—Youth's Companion.

MOST PROMINENT PERSONS GLAD TO GIVE TESTIMONY

Prompted by Humanitarian Spirit,
Men and Women Recommend Tanlac

Men and women who have improper digestion, who are nervous and very irritable because of suffering, lack energy and ambition for their work, are easily discouraged and become melancholy over slight matters, suffer with backaches, poor memory, unsound sleep that does not really rest them, irregular circulation of the blood, dizziness and the common ailments of the stomach, liver and kidneys, many of which are caused by catarrhal affections of the mucous membranes, which long unchecked finally have weakened the vital organs, will find Tanlac a tonic, tissue builder and appetizer designed to overcome these troubles.

While it is true that the success of Tanlac in some cities has been so great as to amaze certain business men, it really, also, is true that Tanlac is no more popular in one city than another wherever it has been introduced.

Everywhere, the most prominent people will give testimony in praise of Tanlac out of gratitude for the relief that Tanlac brings, and because they believe it is their duty to do so.

It is the humanitarian spirit to help the "other fellow" if you can, that is the first thought of many men and women who voluntarily tell what Tanlac has done for them.

Hundreds of thousands have found Tanlac an ideal tonic, tissue builder and strength builder. It reaches those ills of the stomach, kidneys, liver and the common maladies of the day—the strength sapping, lethargy creating ailments that "get your nerve" whether you be merchant or artisan, employer or employe, man or woman.

Tanlac is being introduced in Alliance by the Harry Thiele drug store.

BUSINESS FOR EVERYBODY

Ease with Which a Practical Business Education Can Be Secured by Modern Methods

Under the present industrial and commercial systems that prevail in this country, everybody should have a knowledge of the fundamental principles that underlie business transactions and understand book-keeping which is a systematic record of them.

There was a time when it was commonly supposed that only a select few could know how to "keep books", but times have changed in this respect and we fully believe will change more within the next few years. There is coming to be more of a need for persons who are not professional bookkeepers, and never expect to even engage in clerical work, to be able to keep a record of business transactions and affairs that will be intelligible, not only to the persons keeping it but also to any other fairly well posted person who may have occasion to refer to it.

After all, it isn't so hard to secure a business education as some suppose. Everything about book-keeping according to modern methods is so reasonable and logical that it is a simple matter to learn, under proper instruction. Learn a few fundamental principles and, while you do not have the whole thing, you have the key to the whole situation. As for commercial law, a knowledge of which is necessary to a thoro business education, almost everybody knows something about that and almost everybody should know more about it.

Formerly business colleges arranged their courses of study to accommodate only those students who expect to become professional bookkeepers and accountants. It is a noteworthy and very important fact that a leading business college has put into its curriculum courses of study designed for persons who never intend to keep books as an occupation, short courses that can be easily and quickly learned by those who aspire to become foremen or superintendents of their departments, but the things learned in them will be valuable as the foundation for a thoro, professional business education, if the student desires to go further with his studies.

The thing that ought to impress itself most upon the minds of those who have their attention called to this subject is that anything learned in the way of a business education, whether short or extensive, will be useful thruout one's entire lifetime.
