Charles W. Pool, secretary of state, was in the city Saturday interviewing his many friends in regard to his candidacy for re-election to the office he now holds and which he has filled so satisfactorily. The Modern Woodmen of America recently initiated thirteen new candidates and others are in line for membership in the camp. A mountain lion is spreading terror among the live stock seventeen miles west of Alliance. Several ranchers have lost calves, and cows have been mutilated by the animal. A concerted effort will be made to round up the creature and put an end to his marauding. The lion is said to be a very large one and evidently has wandered into this portion of the country from the Black Hills. When he goes bounding through the sage brush he resembles an antelope somewhat, and some ranchers who have seen him at first thought it was an antelope, but a closer view revealed the fact that a genuine mountain lion was an inhabitant of the country.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS AT ALLIANCE LAUNDRY

New Addition Is Open for Work—Up-to-Date Machinery Added to the Equipment

The new addition to the Alliance Laundry is now in use, the machinery having been installed last week and the room placed in readiness for the workers Monday morning.

The new room is 25x62 and gives the laundry space that was needed in handling the large business.

Not long ago a dry tumbler was installed in this laundry, which added materially to the efficiency of the plant. The latest machine to be put in is a universal garment press which is declared by laundrymen to be the last call in machinery for laundry purposes. It is not only a labor saver but it makes superior work a regular feature of the establishment.

George G. Smith, manager of the laundry, is well pleased with the improvements which have been made and feels that he is in a better position than ever to serve the many patrons of the concern.

More than twenty employees are engaged in work in this plant and the management desires to have conditions as near ideal as possible.

GET RICH QUICK SCHEME

George Brown is in the county jail waiting for a preliminary hearing on a charge of forgery.

Brown wrote out two checks signing "John Peterson" to each. The checks called for $23 each in the coin of the realm.

Brown tackled the Alliance hotel for cash on one of the checks but the man behind the counter was not acquainted with Mr. Brown nor did he recognize the signature of "John Peterson." Therefore, there was nothing doing and Brown tramped to another place. He entered the store of E. Essay in the 100-block on Box Butte avenue. He essayed to make some purchases and tendered the bogus check in payment expecting to get real money in change. But the check was such a bum looking document that the proprietor of the store became suspicious and refused to part with chattels or cash.

The police were told of the incidents and nabbed the get-rich-quick man in short order and now he will have to explain matters to the court and jury. The work of executing the check was done in such a bungling manner that it is no wonder the writer of the checks was soon placed where the "dogs could not bite him."

Since Brown has been in jail the officers have discovered that he succeeded in cashing a check for $22.75 at Rehder's place on Box Butte avenue. To this check Brown signed the name of Clark.
