Lloyd's Column

At John Rheinbocker's? "Don't be a hyphenate. Be a whole American. The hyphenate is as apt to be as wrong in his patriotism as in his grammar."

The speaker was Emerson Caudery, the Boston after-dinner speaker. He went on:

"Two hyphenates, a barber and a patron, got into a dispute the other day. The patron, running out to get a paper, lost his turn. He said, bitterly, when he came back and found his place taken:

"If a man koom in and go outt, has he vent?"

"The barber answered:

"Ya, ya, he vos, but he ain't."

Even the Animals

In a shop recently, a well-known actress, who is noted for her perennial youth, asked for a traveling-bag of alligator skin. The shopkeeper, who had none of that particular sort, brought out instead some of smooth leather. "Ah, you tell me this is alligator skin?" objected the actress. "Why, where are all its wrinkles?"

"Ah, assume," replied the wily dealer, who knew his customer, "wrinkles are out of vogue. The correct alligator bag is made from the skin of an alligator that has been massaged."—Christian Register.

The Same Old Story

It was a town girl—and the same story that, alas, has often been told, and checkered many a young life which had its beginning in sunshine, surrounded by luxury and the wealth of the world. Her eyes were now wild and staring, her face was flushed and her hands were nervously working. She was a deeply troubled and injured woman, and we heard her saying: "Oh, cruel one, you have injured the very foundation of my being! Day by day you have tortured me, and yet I could not bear to give you up. When we first met, how your ease and polish attracted me! When you became my own my friends envied me. But, alas, your understanding is too small for my large soul. You are opposed to my advancing myself. You have injured my standing in society. If we had never met I might have walked in peace. So now begone! We part forever!" There was a moment's convulsive breathing, a gritting of teeth and a sharp sigh. It was all over. By a supreme effort she had pulled off her new shoe.—Exchange.

Left Out

Poole—Wonder what time it is? I'm invited to dinner at 7, and my watch isn't going.

Poole—Why? Wasn't your watch invited?

Time's Changes

"You and your sister are twins, are you not?"

"We were in childhood. Now, however, she is five years younger than I."

Some Farmer

The agricultural education that we hear about should not be confined to the country. The city needs it, too. A man went into a Boston department store the other day and asked for a hoe. The young woman at the counter passed him a trowel, and, finding that it was not what he wanted, asked him to pick out a hoe from the pile of garden tools. He did so. Then the saleswoman made out the slip: "One hough, 75 cents."—Youth's Companion.

Might Need It

A rich manufacturer of asbestos took a house just across the street from a sweet-spirited old lady, and his family proceeded to enjoy itself in what seemed to her a very worldly fashion.

But the old lady was never known to speak ill of anyone, even when her neighbors played tennis on Sunday. She only said:

"Dear me. They must have great faith in their asbestos!"

It Might Happen Again

In a certain provincial town where everything is up to date and the people are always planning some new schemes, a shocking thing happened.

One of the popular society women announced a "white elephant party."

Every guest was to bring something that she could not find use for and yet too good to throw away.

The party, however, would have been a great success but for the unlooked-for development which broke it up.

Eleven of the nineteen women brought their husbands.

He Was Equal to It

A student who could not sound the letter "r" was given the following sentence to read:

"Robert gave Richard a rap in the ribs for roasting the rabbit so rare."

He studied it in silence a minute, then glibly rendered it as follows:

"Bobby gave Dicky a thump in the side for cooking the bunny so little."

MARVELOUS WHEAT

"Marvelous" wheat, a strain of wheat for which extravagant claims have been made by seedsmen, was found this year by the Nebraska Experiment Station to stool less and yield less than Turkey Red wheat.

Seedsmen's advertisements for this wheat represented that the wheat would yield more, stool more, and that less seed would be required. The experiment station found this year that it is profitable to sow more than 2 pecks, and that in any case its stooing power and yield were lower than Turkey Red, where 2 pecks of Marvelous wheat were sown the yield was 46.5 bushels; where 5 pecks were sown, the yield was 52 bushels. Where 2 pecks of Turkey Red were sown, the yield was 48.5; where 5 pecks were used, 57. This year's results indicate that many claims made for Marvelous wheat will not be substantiated.

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HAIR

She mixed Sulphur with it to Restore Color, Gloss, Youthfulness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a 50-cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

DOLLAR BILL MAY SHRINK

If paper keeps on raising in price, it may be that the postage stamp and the dollar bill will have to shrink. Joseph E. Ralph, director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, estimated he would need $68,000 with which to buy postage stamp paper for the coming fiscal year. But the price of the paper has been raising steadily ever since he made that estimate, and now he knows that the year's supply will cost $115,000. For the annual supply of paper with which to make revenue stamps, the estimated price was $91,000, and the price the government has to pay is $176,000. So that well over a hundred thousand dollars have been added to the expense of government in the printing of stamps alone. Needless to say, the Bureau of Engraving and Printing is not the only department that has been pinched by the paper famine. It takes millions of sheets of stationary every year to transact government business, and the price of most of those sheets has nearly doubled. Some of the cabinet officers have sent circular letters through their departments directing all employees to economize in the use of writing paper.

Calling cards for the ladies are printed promptly and neatly at The Herald office. The prices are reasonable. Phone 340 for samples and prices, or call at the office.
