Local Odd Fellows will sell tickets.

A bunch of pigs scared three horses belonging to Pat Nolan and in their frantic efforts to get somewhere they are reported to have crossed Snake creek three times. In making the creek attempt to cross the creek one of the horses fell in such a way that it was drowned. Joe Coupons, who was looking after the horses on the Nolan ranch about seven miles west of Alliance, eventually caught the horses.

Harry DuBoque, owner and manager of the Imperial theatre, was host to the boys of Company G Tuesday evening at that show shop. Seats were reserved for the members of the company and they marched to the theatre in a body. They were given a rousing reception. The place was decorated in an appropriate manner, martial and patriotic music was played, and a fine time had by all.

T. P. Lowe, who operated a skating rink in Alliance the past winter but who is now located at Sidney, was in town Monday looking for his wife. He applied to Police Judge Roberts for a search warrant, believing that friend wife was located somewhere about the premises of a certain Alliance man. However, the judge could not issue a blanket warrant and as Lowe could not give any specific location, same was denied. Lowe said he didn't want to get his wife back but he wanted to get the goods on her so he could start divorce proceedings. It seems that friend wife had left the hubby at Sidney and proceeded supposedly to this city.

CLOSE OF GREAT REVIVAL CAMPAIGN

Bad Weather Cuts Down Attendance at Last Sunday's Meetings but Splendid Interest Shown

The revival campaign at the First M. E. church, commencing Sunday, March 25, and closing Sunday night, April 15, will go down in the history of Alliance as one of the great events of the city. Never before has a public speaker attracted as much attention and created as much interest here, without arousing adverse criticism, as Rev. Cyrus S. Nusbbaum, D. D. Usually when an evangelist announces a course that excites no opposition in Alliance, public indifference towards his work is so great as to be painful to him and his supporters.

Dr. Nusbbaum is an able speaker, but a man of humble spirit, though having confidence in his own ability, and in the success of his work in which he is engaged, he is not self-centered. His greatest interest does not seem to be in his own welfare, but in the success of his efforts for the good of humanity. He is a deeply spiritual man, but broad-minded and liberal in conceding to others the right of having opinions of their own and exercising them. His usefulness is enhanced by sticking to the main line, and not going off on side issues and tangents. The meetings in Alliance resulted in more than 100 being converted, or expressing a desire therefor. Those who came forward in the meetings who were not already church members, were requested to state church preference. These preferences included nearly or quite all of the churches in the city.

Last Sunday, the last meeting of the campaign, the weather was bad but the attendance at the meeting was good. The afternoon meeting in the Imperial theatre was one of the most remarkable of the kind ever held in this city. About 250 men attended. There were a number of conversions.

As had been previously announced, the evangelist's pay consisted of the collections taken up on the last day. These amounted to $437, a sum larger than had been expected by either the evangelist or his friends. Next Sunday, Dr. Nusbbaum will open a revival campaign in St. Joseph, Mo., four churches there uniting in the movement.
