CONGRESSMAN KINKAID EXPLAINS

Hon. M. P. Kinkaid, long time congressman from the Sixth Nebraska district, is for peace when possible but is also patriotic and wants the readers of The Herald to know it. He informs us that the controlling consideration with him in voting against the war resolution was the letters, telegrams and remonstrances sent him to the effect that the sentiment of his constituents was overwhelmingly against a war declaration, and these advices included a resolution passed by the house of representatives of the Nebraska state legislature to the same effect. Mr. Kinkaid further says that as we are now solemnly committed to war he deems it his official and patriotic duty to stand firmly and earnestly for its speedy and successful termination.

COMMENDS "SAFETY FIRST" EDITORIAL

In the issue of The Herald of April 5 was an editorial under the caption, "Making An Ounce Count," showing the importance of using care in trying to avoid accidents. A constant reader of the paper sends us the following regarding the editorial:

Getting Caught on a Crossing

"I have read your editorial about automobile accidents at crossings, and find much in same that I can agree with.

"It is going to take some hard work to break up the careless habits that so many indulge in. The trouble is that this is such a money-making age that people go along pondering in their minds the best way to make another dollar.

"Some folks are so eager for more dollars that they cannot quit thinking about them as they drive up to the railroad crossing. They should figure a little more on saving the money and property they already possess. Why would this help? Because any plan to safeguard their property would have to include some scheme for saving those good motor cars that are thrown onto the rubbish heap when struck by a train at the crossing.

"Trying to save your money and your property is all very well, but watching out to save your life is a thousand times better. We have heard of more than one person in our own time who, having lost every cent he owned, has made a fresh start and amassed more wealth than he formerly possessed. While there is life, there is hope. When life is gone, you might have a job playing on a harp, but that chance maybe is a slim one unless you are more of a musical genius than Yours truly."

A RECORD OF ACCOMPLISHMENT

When the members of the Nebraska legislature returned to their homes early this week, following the close of the biennial session, they had the right to feel that they had had the privilege of taking part in the most important session in the history of the state. Some Nebraska newspapers have taken it upon themselves to say that the sending of members to Lincoln has been a waste of the people's money and of the time of those who attended. We do not agree with them.

The session just closed lasted nearly four months, being the second longest in the history of the state and covering eighty-four days of actual work.

It is admitted that the passage of progressive legislation through the state senate was delayed for days and weeks by the hold which the unholy "machine" had on that body. And it is undoubtedly true that the eighteen senators, members of both parties, who composed the machine held back the passage of progressive bills which should have been passed.

The breaking of the hold of the "machine" came with the fight over the prohibition bill. This bill had come from the house of representatives with practically a unanimous vote for it. When it reached the senate it was attacked by the "machine" and one hundred amendments were tacked on the bill. Did the eighteen senators who voted for these amendments expect the house to accept them? We do not know. But the house, knowing that it had the support of the people of Nebraska back of it, stood pat and refused to accept those amendments which would have destroyed the purpose of the bill and made it a protection for the bootlegger and the manufacturer of "near beer."

Public sentiment became so strong that the hold of the leaders on their "machine" was lost. When it came to the final showdown the bill was passed through the senate as it was approved by the house—the "machine", leaders and all, jumped into the bandwagon and voted for it, only three senators refusing to vote for the bill on final passage. Then, the hold of the leaders having been broken, progressive legislation was rapidly pushed through—the woman's suffrage bill and others being brought out from their hiding places and passing with good majorities.

On looking over the record of this session we find that it is a new record for constructive legislation. Laws were passed which are progressive and beneficial.

The 1917 legislature enacted an effective prohibition law. It enacted laws for state hail insurance, limited woman suffrage, comprehensive building of good roads with federal aid, encouragement of irrigation, four-year terms for county officers, shortening of the ballot, non-partisan election of school officers—both local and state, for city managers if desired by cities of the state, for a vote of the people on a constitutional convention, for the better detection of automobile thieves, for the protection of the stock shipper, for the protection of the honest debtor, for improvement of the workmen's compensation and employer's liability law, for the consolidation of state departments, for double election boards in populous districts, and for greater efficiency in our state government.

Nebraska can well be proud of the legislation accomplished by her servants in Lincoln during the past four months.
