The Gossip Say-

"IF THE SHOE FITS YOU— THEN WEAR IT"

—By— ADAM LIAR

Something Like Poe—Only Worse Soon the skies will be ashen and sober. The leaves will be crisped and sere. There'll be nothing to drink but near beer.

It will be a most mournful October Of this most immemorial year. In a winter suite cold is the weather. I pause to extract a big tear. No toddy for this chilly weather. And coal will be fearfully dear!

A Poem Entitled "Hunting" Did you ever figure How many bucks You could spend this winter, Hunting ducks?

A Poem Entitled "Food" We need the blamed stuff every day. But how the dickens can we pay?

A Poem Entitled "Furnace" You cannot pay to feed it. But gracious how you need it.

Why Cut It? She's living easily these days, if reports are to be believed. I met her on the street about 10:30 in the morning and she was just going to breakfast. I said: "Gosh, but you're getting to be a regular hot one, aren't you—staying up all night and sleeping all day." She replied, "Ain't it the truth, but I am going to cut it some of these days—I think I can."

For Making Ascensions This husband proposition is sure a queer one. Take for example the stunt that was pulled off the other night in the office of a certain married man who is "supposed" to be very virtuous. Two young ladies of the city were rumaging around his desk. They were looking for something they didn't find but they found something they were'n looking for. Yeah, you know what. They didn't. They do now.

Game Anyway He had been away on a long trip. When he got home he looked much like the last rose of summer. Why? Ask him, I don't know. He looked like he needed a long, solitary rest. He's game however, for he remarked "Well, boys, I'll go through with it once, even if it kills me."

Ducks, Chicks, Husbands, Etc. Gosh, people, but it's an awful effort to get up this line-dope this week. I wouldn't get it up only if I didn't maybe I wouldn't get up to the table. You see I do this stuff in order to make a living. I have other ways of making a living, too. Yes sir.

For instance I went out hunting early this week in company with some other humans, and we were all intense on making a living. We went out to make a killing so that we'd have good living. Well, we did make some killing—among the ducks.

Talking about ducks, did you ever chance to make a killing with them. It's some jwob, you know, for some of them are high flyers, but of course some of them don't do much else but waddle around. We went after the flyers. They're always hard to get. Some of them are harder to get than others—especially if they see you coming. But it was always thus, with the birds.

Don't get these ducks we got next too mixed up with chickens. We saw one flock of chickens—scared them up with the car. We all had our guns in the car with us and it was some job to get them out and in working order in time to get the birds. Well, we didn't get the birds we only got a bird. It was some job dividing it up among us, and so we decided to give it to one of the party who hadn't been having such good luck as some of the others. I learned today that he had some time with that chicken. He had it for dinner, but it didn't remain with him long.

You know one of the hard things about going hunting is getting away. Now we went out in the afternoon and were gone until the next night. I didn't have many excuses to offer and was afraid to use them because I was saving them up for house-cleaning time.

But talking about house-cleaning makes me think of home and thinking of home makes me think of friend wife. Which calls to mind an item I read in the paper the other day. Did you read in the paper the other day about a woman in Chicago who was placed on trial for having seven husbands. She never should have been arrested. Every woman is entitled to a husband's companionship at night. And as many of the husbands in Alliance as well as in Chicago are home only one night out of seven, it naturally follows that she needs seven husbands to fill out the week.

But here's something I can't understand. How is it that this Chicago woman managed to get seven husbands, while the girls here in Alliance complain they can't get any husbands at all. There's only one way to help them. Send them husbands by parcel post.

The next time you are away from home and you see a man who looks like he didn't care what happened to him, just fasten a tag around his neck, take him to the nearest post office and start him on his "destitution"—I mean destination. You don't even have to put a postage stamp on him. You can send him C. O. D.

Don't laugh girls. You may wake up some morning and find a husband in your mail box with $66.00 collect charges. Look him over and see if you think he's worth the money. If so pay the $66 and make him work it out. If you don't think so, simply refuse to accept him and he'll be sent to the dead letter office. Any woman other than an old maid wouldn't give $66 for a 'dead one' anyhow.

And in looking him over girls, don't budge him too harshly. Fir in stance, if he has a black eye, don't form the conclusion that he's been on a spree or in a fight. That may only be a clew that some envious male post master gave him w—a cancelling stamp. And don't be prejudiced against a husband just because you happened to find him in your mail box. Not that I want to say anything against husbands, I'm married myself.

EAT LESS AND TAKE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Take a glass of Salts before breakfast if your Back hurts or Bladder bothers you.

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health. When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead, your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

Disease Under Control We are right sorry to hear that the ex-Czar of Russia is to be isolated, as we do not believe that exiling is contagious any more.—Grand Rapids Press.

Other Days, Other Ways "Who touches a hair of your gray head Dies like a dog. March on!" He said.

Stonewall Jackson, we must confess, Didn't go in for frightfulness.

Two men were hotly discussing the merits of a book. Finally, one of them, himself an author, said to the other: "No, John, you can't appreciate it. You never wrote a book yourself."

"No," retorted John, "and I never laid an egg, but I'm a better judge of an omelet than any hen."—Philadelphia Star.

A story that is going around the French papers is rather pleasant. A pretty, young actress is attached to one of the Paris hospitals, and the other day, in order to make recalcitrant patients take their medicine she promised each obedient one a kiss. All the patients were lamblike. The elderly matron was a witness to the scene. Next day she said to the men: "If you take your medicine I will allow you to kiss me." The men all made gestures of discouragement. Luckily the lady had a sense of humor. She laughed and said: "Take your medicine, or I'll order you to kiss me."

The summer schools of universities draw together many persons who have been out of practice, so to speak in such trifling matters as corrections of writing and exactness of thought. One such person at the summer school at Berkeley, California, had an experience with this weakness. The professor calling his attention to his faults, remarked: "Now take your thesis, 'The Limitations of the Human Mind.' Your logic is faulty." "Um," "Your metaphors are mixed. Even your spelling is bad." "Well the human has its limitations, professor," remarked the student in desperation.

In Hungary, where Count Tisza is as ardently hated by one faction as he is ardently beloved by the other, the opposition is wont to circulate a story to illustrate the hold the count had upon the late emperor, Francis Joseph. It is said that when the emperor crossed the great divide and landed at the pearly gates, St. Peter asked: "What has your majesty done to merit entrance here?" Tired and tottering, the aged monarch hesitated then replied: "I don't know, Ask Count Tisza."

Softening the Hands. Hands that have become hardened and stained with housework will become soft and clean by holding a little sawdust in the palm of the hand and pouring coal oil over it. Wash your hands as though it were soap and water.

SAGE AND SULPHUR DARKENS GRAY HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Restore Color, Gloss and Attractiveness.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.
