

Four Billions In Annual Taxes Coming

Treasury Officials Estimate This Much Annual Expense Necessary For Years to Come

Washington, D. C.—Treasury experts estimate that government financial needs for many years to come are almost certain to run above $4,000,000,000 annually and that most of the money will be raised by taxation.

Because of this students of government finances believe the taxes imposed last year and paid in June probably will not be lightened materially by the advent of peace.

Secretary McAdoo today warned that taxes necessarily would be high for many years to pay off war debts, and that additional government loans would be requested.

Roughly, treasury officials and congressional leaders in charge of revenue legislation figure this way:

Ordinary government expenses, which ran around a billion dollars a year before the war, will now amount to at least $2,000,000,000 annually for many years, and for two or three years after the war may be double that figure.

If the $16,850,000,000 of Liberty bonds already issued are increased in volume already issued are to $25,000,000,000, the interest on this sum would amount to about $1,000,000,000 a year. In addition, it probably will be the government's policy to establish a sinking fund to pay off the bonds of maturity, and this would require about $1,250,000,000 a year. These three items would make an aggregate near $4,250,000,000.

To offset this there would be nearly a half billion dollars coming in annually from the allies as interest on their loans, which now amount to seven billions and are likely to run much higher; and revenue from customs and miscellaneous sources, which last year amounted to about $450,000,000.

With allowances for wide variations in these calculations, there would still remain about $3,500,000,000 to be raised from internal revenue taxes. Last year $3,643,000,000 came from internal revenue, including $2,775,000,000 from income and excess profits taxes. This year these figures probably will be more than doubled.

Factors which made this system of estimates highly tentative, officials point out, that the war is not yet definitely over, so far as expense is concerned, and that war debts, both of the American government to the public and of the allied governments to the United States cannot be figured until then.

The methods of applying taxes after the war also are receiving attention. If the schedule of income taxes now being framed in the new revenue bill works out well, it is considered probable that the bulk of after the war revenue will come from income levies, which next year will yield probably $2,300,000,000. Excess profits taxes probably would automatically be abandoned after the war and liquor revenue will stop if the constitutional prohibition amendment is ratified, and sooner with the passage of the "war time" prohibition bill. It is almost certain that the multitude of minor taxes now levied on transportation, insurance, admissions, club dues, and special taxes on certain businesses, now yielding comparatively little revenue and very difficult of administration, will be abandoned. Tobacco and estates taxes probably will remain, it is said.

Late Opening and Early Closing Unnecessary

The Coal Situation at Present Does Not Warrant Any Such Action—No Serious Shortage

The coal situation in Nebraska and throughout the country at present is so satisfactory that no state wide late opening or early closing orders will be made by the fuel administration this winter. This order will remain in effect unless coal conditions materially change.

State administrators and state directors of conservation are being advised by the Washington director of conservation that the fuel situation does not warrant such action. State administrators are expected to prepare orders from time to time to meet local conditions, and general recommendations along conservation lines are being sent out from Washington.

Announcement in Letter
This announcement was made in a letter to all state administrators from G. N. Allen, acting director of conservation, United States fuel administration, Washington. The letter follows:

"It has been decided that unless conditions materially change, no national order will be issued by the opening and closing hours of offices, stores and other mercantile establishments.

"While such an order would undoubtedly save considerable coal, especially during the winter, the great variation in local conditions make it practically impossible to issue a national order without working greater hardship on some parts of the country and on some classes of trade than present conditions warrant. We feel that except in the case of an acute fuel shortage, the disruption of business and inconvenience to the public caused by such an order would be out of proportion to the coal saved.

"The federal administration feels, further, that under present conditions, no state administrator would issue any opening or closing order regulating hours of offices, stores and other mercantile establishments and places of amusement, except to meet an acute shortage of fuel or power. When such a shortage occurs in any locality, the state administration should draw up an order which, in his opinion, best meets such emergency, and have the order approved by Washington before putting it into effect.

"It is desired that such orders be applied only to the localities in the state where this emergency occurs.

"While ruling against any formal 'closing order' to effect a fuel saving under present conditions, the fuel administration urges the adoption of reasonable conservation measures that can be effected by voluntary agreement of any class or class of trade or industry. Almost everywhere unnecessary practices have grown up, the elimination of which will represent a fuel saving, and which can be put into effect without injury to any one. The fuel administration is preparing some general recommendations for saving power, heat and light in the above mentioned establishments which, it is believed, can be put into effect without undue inconvenience. These recommendations will be sent to the various state administrators at an early date."
