CHANGE IN OWNERSHIP

It is with a feeling of regret that we announce to Herald readers this week a change in ownership and management of The Alliance Herald, yet it is with pleasure that we announce as our successors men of experience and ability who will give Herald readers and Herald advertisers even better service than we have been able to render during past months.

Eleven years ago, when we purchased The Alliance Herald, we were new to western Nebraska. Since that time our acquaintance has broadened and our knowledge of the city of Alliance and its surrounding territory has increased until we feel that we almost know personally every member of The Herald's great family of readers, many of whom have read this newspaper every issue during this period.

During the past year we have had other interests which required the major portion of our time and efforts. Because of this fact and because we have lately been unable to give practically any time or attention to the newspaper and the large job printing business connected therewith, we were much pleased when the opportunity came to transfer our interests to two live wires who have made good in eastern Nebraska and who now come to western Nebraska to take up their residence and to give our readers a newspaper that will grow in value and interest every issue.

We do not feel that we are leaving our hundreds of friends, and readers, for we expect to be a frequent contributor to these columns, but we do know that with the attention and service of our successors the newspaper will be bigger and better than ever before and the large opportunities in this field will be grasped quickly and in an able manner.

It is with much pleasure that we now introduce to our readers the future editor and manager of The Herald, who will take up the work beginning with the next issue.

George L. Burr, Jr., is a graduate of the University of Nebraska. For seven years he held important positions with The Lincoln State Journal, one of the leading Nebraska dailies, both in the editorial and mechanical departments.

When war was declared, George Burr enlisted in Uncle Sam's navy and for over a year was a sailor boy. After his period of service there, he went to Aurora, Nebraska, and took charge of the Aurora Register office, making a financial and business success of that newspaper, which is one of the most widely read country weeklies in eastern Nebraska.

George Burr comes to The Herald as one of the owners and as editor of The Herald. His work will keep him among the people a large portion of his time. We know that his agreeable personality and his ability to write things as he sees them will win him many friends and that he will have the co-operation of our readers in keeping The Alliance Herald "The Leading Newspaper of Western Nebraska."

Capt. Edwin M. Burr
Edwin M. Burr is a graduate of the University of Nebraska. For five years he was connected with the Lincoln State Journal and gained valuable experience there. He went to the first officers' training camp at Fort Snelling, receiving a commission as second lieutenant. After seeing service in army camps in the United States, he was sent to France and saw service there for a year, being commissioned a captain before his return to this country and his discharge from the army.

Edwin Burr comes to The Herald as one of the owners and as business manager of The Herald. We bespeak for him the kind consideration which has been shown us and assure the patrons of this business that he will see that they are given the best of service and the kind of printing that brings the repeat orders and the smile of satisfaction to the customer.

John W. Thomas, former editor of The Herald, now located at Lincoln, will continue as Live Stock Editor and eastern Nebraska representative of the business. He is undoubtedly fitted as no other Nebraska newspaper man is to give Herald readers the news regarding the live stock business of the state and to care for the wants of the advertisers who find that advertising in The Herald is a paying proposition.

E. B. Smith, who has served long and earnestly as city editor of The Herald and who has made many friends during his stay here, and who has done his part in making The Herald a real newspaper, will leave the first of this coming week for Scottsbluff, where he will become the editor of the new daily newspaper which begins publication during the coming week.

The business of The Alliance Herald will be conducted under the name of The Burr Printing Company.

In closing, I wish to emphasize my faith in western Nebraska, in its leading city—Alliance, and in its leading newspaper—The Alliance Herald. I wish to recommend to every citizen of Alliance "The Town Creed," given to us by Nelson S. Darling, which is as follows:

"I BELIEVE IN ALLIANCE. I believe in her people, in her boys and in her girls. I will make myself a committee of one to make of Alliance a good place in which to live and a mighty hard place to leave.

"I BELIEVE IN ALLIANCE. I believe in her institutions, in her churches and in her stores. I believe in the street broom and street sweeper and in the paint pot. I believe in no'er an empty can on vacant lot or plot but many a full one in the larder. Never again will I throw waste paper or rubbish in the street or alley. Never again will I spit on sidewalk or on floor.

"I BELIEVE IN ALLIANCE. I believe in trees, God's first temples, grass instead of ash heaps, and flowers instead of weeds. I will forget jealousies if I have any and treat all people with charity and consideration. May God bless the tongue that gives honest praise and commendation and may He doubly bless the ear that is dead to scandal and gossip. If I cannot speak good of my neighbor I will hold my peace. When it costs me nothing, at least, I will spend my money here, and by so doing leave a part of the purchase price to circulate in channels where its equivalent in wealth was originally created, to circulate and do good among the folks who are a part of the community of which I am a part, in the place that I call home, sweet home.

"I BELIEVE IN ALLIANCE."
—LLOYD C. THOMAS.

ANGORA BEATEN BY ALLIANCE BALL TOSSERS

that it might be necessary to postpone the match. From start to finish it was interesting and some very sensational playing was done. Pitcher Struble for the Alliance club was in good form and was never in danger. Harry Brue at third, Eugene Black at short and Catcher Hudkins probably played the more spectacular fielding plays, while Ray Butler and "Jack" Gleason had the advantage in the hitting.

James: I suppose you find us country fellows rather different from the city fellows, eh?
Miss Clitfield: Well, you make love better, but spend less money in doing it.

What is the Best Watch Made?

That is a personal question. A watch that is best for Jim Hawkins may not be the best for Sam Brown.

You ought to have the personal advice of an expert when you buy a watch. You are much more likely to get a satisfactory timepiece if you do.

You get good advice here. We realize that having you satisfied is worth more to us than the profit on the watch. We want to fix you up so satisfactorily that you will tell your friends that Thiele's is the best place to go to buy a watch.

Naturally, that means that our prices, as well as our watches and service, must be satisfactory.

The New REO SIX

"A Light Six of superfine qualities," is the verdict of all who have seen and ridden in this splendid new model. All of the old Reo sturdy qualities, combined with a scientific light weight balance, make this new car the machine you have long looked for.

Deliveries are promised us in October, so would advise placing your order early, so you may get delivery when you want it.

WHAT UNFAIRNESS BROUGHT.

A sense of fairness would have served almost as well as a genius for statesmanship in saving the Republican majority in Congress from the difficulties with which they are confronted in finding a means of reducing taxation without at the same time impairing revenues. Had they co-operated with the last Democratic Congress in anticipating some of the problems that were foreseen as a consequence of the war, they would have escaped at once the duty of formulating and passing this legislation and the responsibility for its failure, if it proved inadequate or unwise. They would have begun the work of the extra session with at least temporary relief from fiscal burdens and would have had time and opportunity to devise and enact suitable measures.

But Republican leaders in the Senate—and they controlled also the leadership of the House of Representatives—deliberately planned and executed the defeat of the Democratic bills which contemplated abolition of the so-called luxury taxes, of which this involved a breach of faith with their Democratic associates. This defeat was accomplished by a filibuster in the closing days of the last Congress.

A spirit of fairness would have restrained these Republican partisans from seeking political advantage in any question so important as that of the country's finances. A regard for their word—plighted in the repeal of the luxury taxes—would have profited them and the Government. But, having refused to be fair they were unable to be clever.

These leaders now find themselves in a quandary. They have let appropriations outrun income by some two billions of dollars, and if the luxury taxes are repealed and no equally productive sources of revenue are provided, this excess of expenditures over receipts will grow large. They sought credit for repealing these exercises in the extra session, and this design prompted them to prevent their abolition by the Democrats in the regular session. They hoped to require a chance for glory. They have inherited only a cause of embarrassment.

Plant Mentioned in Bible.
The common garden plant called coriander is found in Egypt, Persia and India. It has globular, grayish seedpods and is mentioned twice in the Bible, in Exodus 16:31, and in Numbers 11:7.

Housefly Jan Move Fast.
A housefly is not by inclination as much of a traveler. But, when it wants to travel, it goes fast. Experiments have shown that, when pushed, it can cover 100 feet per second, or about 110 miles an hour straightaway.
