

What Does Pay Day Mean to You?

Is it a day where you have to distribute all of your income on over-due bills or does it present an opportunity to add something to your Savings Account?

To thousands of depositors in savings banks it means this opportunity.

Why don't you join them and set aside a certain percentage of your pay check for a Savings Account just the same as you would for any obligation you have to meet?

You need not make it a large portion of your salary. The feature of prime importance in this system is the Regularity. Don't allow ordinary incidentals to interrupt this routine of saving. This is what makes the totals large.

We will be more than pleased to assist you to saving. We offer you all the conveniences of modern banking methods, coupled with prompt, painstaking and courteous service.

Little problem in mathematics: How many times $2 will amount to 9 out of 10. Try this on your imagination if you can't solve it by algebra.

Hint on woman's page: "When boiling, a kettle should never be quite full, as it is apt to boil over."

A man doesn't always have to be full to slop over.

Depends on how hot he is.

Perjury is increasing, so they tell us. They ought to know.

Inside information is the best, as the champion eater at the boarding house observed.

She sang with that careless abandon that made many in the audience think that her favorite grandchild hadn't been dead over an hour.

Dr. Osler was a much abused man. The Doc is generally credited with the saying that they should be chloroformed when they reach the age of sixty. He probably never said it, but the idea isn't so bad in some cases.

The biggest joke at the boarding house isn't aware of it.

Takes himself seriously, maybe.

It's wonderful how sickening and mushy a display of affection can seem unless you are the party that's putting it on. We heard a story about a man who failed to pick out the right place—and the right girl—that may be worth telling some of these days.

"Oh, sh-h-h-u-s-h!"

Sometimes you can shush 'em!

A man looks funny when he's blushing behind the ears.

But long legs can beat a more hasty retreat than short ones, so they tell us.

The bigger they are, the harder they fall. What's that quotation about the mills of the gods?

You've heard that story about the piccolo player trying to drown out the bass drum? Well, he finally succeeded in splitting himself.

The biggest frog in the puddle doesn't always croak the loudest.

We haven't forgotten all our Shakespeare. You remember that one about: "He smiles and smiles—but still a villain."

'Nother one: "The lady doth protest too much." The sex is wrong, but the application is plain.

We'd vote for the office boy for editor every time. A real sense of humor is indispensable.

"Nine out of ten" and "eight out of ten." Some modesty, what? Reminds us of the story of the man who boasted that he had eaten forty-nine hard-boiled eggs at a sitting. A friend asked him: "Ben, why didn't you eat one more and make it a record." The egg-eater looked at him with fine scorn and retorted: "H—I, do you think that I'd make a d—d hog of myself just for one egg?"

VAUDEVILLE AT THE IMPERIAL THEATER

Saturday Night's Program Greeted By a Crowded House, Which Showed Its Approval

The Imperial gave the first of a series of vaudeville programs last Saturday night, and the performance was greeted by a crowd which taxed the capacity of the theater. The program, which included the photoplay, "The Ghost of Yesterday," featuring Norma Talmage; a "Mutt and Jeff" cartoon and five acts of Western vaudeville, was a trifle longer than usual, but easily held the attention of the big crowd until the final act.

Chase and Jains, resenting dainty bits of musical chatter, and Baker and Baker, divided the honors for the evening. Both acts were given several recalls and found it difficult to make their escape. George Turner presented some puzzling feats in magic, and accompanied his mystifying performance with a good line of chatter. Gorber and Gorber, "original nuts from Brazil," won their fair share of applause.

The Imperial plans to present similar programs each Saturday night, it is announced.

One day an important looking civilian made his appearance at a British rest camp, where there were also some Americans.

"That's Sir John Harrington, M. P.," explained a Tommy.

"Huh! Why don't your M. P.'s wear uniforms?" queried a Yank.

DAIRY CATTLE MUST BE TESTED

State Department of Agriculture Preparing to Enforce New Inspection Law

Secretary Leo C. Stubb of the Nebraska department of agriculture has issued a statement giving a digest of the provisions of the dairy law passed by the last session of the legislature, which becomes effective July 18, 1919.

One point to which especial attention should be called is that where any milk or cream producer sells his product to a concern which pasteurizes it, or to a manufacturing plant, he does not need to have his animals certified or examined.

One of the provisions of this law requires dealers in milk and cream to obtain an annual license from the department of agriculture in all cases where the product, in whole or in part, is sold to be consumed as milk or cream, when produced from a herd consisting of more than five cows. Those who sell milk or cream which is the product of a herd of five cows or less, and those who sell milk and cream produced from any number of cows when the entire product is sold for manufacturing purposes exclusively, are exempted from this provision. The fee for this license is one dollar and all licenses expire on July 1 of each year.

The law also provides that no milk shall be sold which has been taken (a) from any animal having any disease or sickness, (b) from any animal which has not been examined by a duly licensed veterinarian, and certified by him to be free from disease, within not to exceed one year previously. Milk which has been taken from any animal which has not been examined by a licensed veterinarian, must be pasteurized before it is offered for sale. This latter provision applies to the sale of all milk and cream regardless of the size of the herd from which it is produced, whenever the product is sold to be consumed as milk and cream.

The policy of the department of agriculture has been to give ample time to the owners of dairy cows in which to have the same tested. An effort has also been made to co-operate with local officials especially the boards of health, who would naturally be interested in the enforcement of the provisions of the dairy law. Members of these boards are requested to inform the department of any violations of the above provisions or any others of the dairy law so that prompt action can be taken in enforcing this measure.

The licensed veterinarians are requested to co-operate in every way possible and especially in the way of designating a certain day at which time cows can be bunched in one place, so that the rates for testing will be as small as possible for the owners of these small herds. Veterinarians are also requested to adhere to the scale of fees for such tests as recommended by the bureau of animal industry of this department. County agents are asked to co-operate by giving every assistance possible to the owners of dairy cows in bunching them at convenient places and at designated times so that the fee for testing can be reduced to a minimum and not be a burden, especially to the one cow or small herd owners. This is a subject in which everyone is vitally interested. The owners of dairy herds should be interested in knowing that their herd is free from disease; the public at large is interested in obtaining the best quality of milk possible, so that everyone should co-operate in every way possible and assist in carrying out the provisions of this dairy law.
