

ALLIANCE LOSES THE FOOTBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

count. Alliance tried a pass, but failed to complete it. A try for a field goal from placement also failed, and Scottsbluff received the ball, by the referee's decision, at the point where the ball was put in play instead of the twenty-yard line, a mere difference of from five to ten yards in favor of Scottsbluff. Scottsbluff advanced the ball by line plunges, Raymond making a twenty-five yard run through the line before being downed. Scottsbluff failed to gain, and punted to Alliance. Alliance had advanced the ball fifteen yards when the quarter ended. Score, Scottsbluff 6, Alliance 0.

It was at this point that a good many Scottsbluff people began to leave the field, and during the remainder of the game, the crowd was with Alliance.

In the last quarter, Alliance fumbled and recovered Scottsbluff stole the ball, and the referee permitted the steal. Coach Prince immediately ordered his men off the field, and the referee changed his decision without unnecessary delay. In fact, it was at this point that he showed the greatest speed. The umpire advanced with fire in his eye, but after looking Prince over retired meekly and piped down. Alliance failed to advance by the aerial route, punted, and Scottsbluff received the ball. When the game ended they had worked it to mid-field.

After the game the referee dropped off the face of the earth, and it was impossible to locate him. Through his work, Alliance loses the championship to Bayard, which has won four out of five of the league games and has a percentage of .300. The Alliance percentage is now .666. Due to football rules, there is no chance to appeal the game. The game, the regulations provide, is in the hands of the referee, who cannot change his decisions, although the official in the game in question did this two or three times.

At the close of the game, several Scottsbluff people told the Alliance players that they had been victims of a "rotten deal," and they said so in exactly those words. Alliance didn't have a chance, they were told and the history of the game seems to bear out this statement. The Alliance team was the lighter, but outstripped their heavier opponents at practically every turn of the game.
