

What shall I Get You
for Christmas
Bill,
said Dad.
Get me a Brunswick
Phonograph
at Thiele's, says I.
That will be a present for the whole Family.
The Brunswick Company always made
the best
Billiard Tables
in the world and I'm betting
they make the best Phonograph.
That's a cinch,
said Dad.
Yours truly,
Bill.

Calling names is the last resort of ignorance.

Anyway, we'll bet Rufe didn't write that one about the skunk.

But some of the others have a familiar sound.

If you show him up on one statement, the Sallow, undaunted, will promptly issue another just as good.

Any means to break those up starts from Aurora Borealis.

Random Shots

More Shakespeare: "There's something rotten in the state of Denmark."

Do you suppose they had circulation audits in them days?

Who made that audit?

Only a trifle of 750 subscribers that exist only in the imagination. Pie on adding machines!

Sometimes they get away with it.

Them days ain't no more now.

Advice to advertisers: Don't pay for it if you didn't order it. There's no law under which it can be collected.

We know, and they know—and you know. Don't be afraid to tell 'em. They may try to put you out of business—but These be hard days for autocrats.

What's six months out of a lifetime?

Maybe the Sallow will take five or ten minutes off some day and wire the president what he ought to do about Mexico. We think it would be a generous act, and would come nicely from a generous man.

Mexico's getting to be a bit troublesome, but the case isn't hopeless until Ben says so.

It takes the armchair warriors to tell you all about it.

And he had nerve enough to count those editorials as "headed news articles."

That was the "most unkindest cut of all."

If Boiler Plate Ben was real bright, he'd call us Lloyd-George.

He's not.

We could tell him lots better ones than he's using.

Come around some time and we'll help you out with your thunder.

The struggle's too one sided as it is.

He might send the boy.

As grandfather used to say, Why run when you keep a dog?

Here's one time we fooled you. You thought we were going to forget it.

The sands are running lower.

Three months, one week, three days left.

But the doctor said he couldn't live!

MAY STOP AT ALLIANCE IN ENDURANCE TOUR

The secretary for the national endurance automobile contest has written the Community club for further details about the city, its hotel and restaurant facilities, as well as asking for a lot of data about roads. Last week the directors voted to extend an invitation to the managers of the tour to place Alliance on their itinerary and plan to make a stop here.

It appears that the tour is quite an extensive affair, and there will be not only a large number of contestants, but an immense caravan of cars following in their wake. It will be no easy job to take care of all of them. The directors discussed the matter and came to the conclusion that Alliance was as well fitted as almost any other city in this section of the state, and they will be informed of that fact. Incidentally, it will be a pretty difficult thing to mark out a course in western Nebraska and not touch Alliance, for about the only decent road that is marked all along is the Alliance-Chadron-Scottsbluff route.

The directors decided that it would be a good thing to take the matter up with other towns in this section, and see if united effort will have any effect.

GEORGE CLEVELAND WATKINS

George Cleveland Watkins was born May 16, 1890 and died December 14, 1919 of brain meningitis. Mr. Watkins lived at 315 Yellowstone avenue, and leaves a mother and a sister to mourn his loss.

The funeral was held at the Methodist church Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. The body was interred in Greenwood cemetery.

The ladies' auxiliary of the Baptist church met Wednesday at 3 o'clock with Mrs. Cal. Simpson, 1107 West Third street.
