Brides

Having her friends and those of her husband, for luncheon or dinner in the new home is a delightful part of a bride's experience. Of course she wants her table to be beautiful, so your gift of dining room equipment from Thiele's will please her immensely.

The taste, charm and excellent quality of a Thiele gift bring a feeling of elation. It is something choice in which she takes particular pride.

Woods Kay-oes Loughrey
BISBEE, Ariz., March 10.—Happy Woods of Tucson knocked out Frank Loughrey of Bisbee in the third round of their scheduled ten-round bout here last night. In the first round Loughrey put Woods down for the count of eight with an uppercut to the body. Thereafter the fight was a whirlwind, both men mixing it at infighting. Woods forced Loughrey through the ropes in the second and put him down twice. Early in the third he swung right to the jaw, ending the fight.

If leather continues scarce one may be tempted to take the leather coats of the family and have them made up into shoes.

It may have been noticed that however other things in life may be stinted, there is never any shortage in trouble.

THE SEVEN-YEAR ITCH (If You Get It Once You Never Want It Again)

Punk Poetry of the Thermometer
The ole thermometer is copped we know,
Because when we're sure it's thirty below,
And the whole room's as cold as the teacher's gaze,
The derved ole mercury up to seventy does raise.
We can see our own breath and we're all looking glum,
And our feet are cold and our hands are numb;
An' we cuss the ole ganitor an' say he ought to be fired,
And we don't see why such a guy was ever hired.
—By Paul.

Paul—"Oh Bill, did you notice it? Bob is very pale lately. What's the reason?"
Bill—"Oh, since Robt. Abar came over here he knows he can't get his girl so easy."

Bob—"What would a boy who swears now do when he gets big?"
Vern—"I don't know."
Bob—"He'd cuss."

Once there was a little boy
Who was always very glum;
He's never known to have a joy,
He'd never even hum;
But one day quite by accident
A Seven-Year Itch he found,
And since that wonderful event,
He's never known to frown.
—By Paul.

P.—"Why do we have to keep quiet in school?"

W.—"Aw, the ole clock's about wore out and if we don't keep quiet we wouldn't hear it and wouldn't know it was running."

W.—"Oh boy, I maue most of the kids trn green with envy."

P.—"Why?"
W.—"Oh, I gotta sit in the corner."

Say, Paul, if Chick wasn't existing there wouldn't be as big a demand for soap.

P.—"Why do the drug stores sell so much vaseline?"

W.—"Oh, Verzzkj Von Jkxzdtlst (guess who it is?) uses it all on his head."

P.—"I wonder what makes the thermometer in our room so bum?"

W.—"No wonder it's bum. Anything would be when it's so close to Xymostzxcv's (guess who it is?) seat."

We have decided not to raffle off our picture machine, but to meet the heavy cost of this paper we plan to give a show some time next winter.

Last night at basket ball practice little Verney threw a basket. I don't know the reason but I think Exams. didn't agree with him.

It's about time little Xymostzxcv started invitin' teachers to dinner in hopes he'll pass.

ANNABELLE'S ERROR

A tragedy in two acts. Initial performance given at Alliance, Neb., some time last week.

Cast of Characters
Heroine—Annabelle—just turned 17.
Hero—John—He's old (he's 20).
Villain—The Doorbell (the kind that rings on the inside only).
Time: 3 a. m. Place: Front porch of Mrs. Questionmark's home, somewhere in Alliance.

Act I
The heroine is removing her shoes, preparatory to entering the house. She leans heavily against the villain, and addresses the hero:
Heroine: Untie that knot, quick. That woman upstairs is a shew!
Hero: Gimme time! Gimme time! She leans on and off'n—sometimes off the hero, sometimes on the villain, for perhaps ten minutes, when a voice from the inside comes shrieking: "Y'idiots, lay off that door bell!"
Curtain.

Act II
Time: 8 a. m. Place: Box Butte avenue—or some other avenue.
The heroine timidly approaches a front door and—knocks. (There ain't no bell.)

Strange landlady: What is it, my dear?
Annabelle: Do you have rooms to rent, madame?
Curtain.

If you don't believe this happened, ask the girl. She'll deny it—yes, absolutely.

So general is the belief that the importation wears pink camisoles that we heard a sober-minded citizen refer to him as "Cammy" yesterday.

No Matter What You Build

Buy the Most Suitable Material

No matter what your structure is that that you have in mind for this Spring's improvement on the place, you can't afford to use any but the most suitable and the best material obtainable. If it is a hog house, a shed, a garage or a dwelling house there is a certain kind of building material out of which you will receive the greatest percentage of value.

It Is Our Business to Assist You

In our every day business experience the question comes up very frequently regarding the long life, and suitability of the different building materials that we sell. Our aim is always to consider the problem from the standpoint of the customer. We figure the thing out from your side of the fence and give your our sincere opinion in the matter—regardless of the percentage of gain there is in it for us. We know there is much building to be done in this territory in the years to come and we want our patrons to become "repeaters." We are making a play for "satisfied customers" and believe this to be one sure way to secure them.

Can we not at least give you our ideas regarding one of your building problems?
