Despite the general feeling that the ex-soldiers and the citizens in general would not favor a military candidate, campaign managers are drawing some consolation from the fact that in Nebraska, fully 60 per cent of the republicans voted for either Pershing or Wood. It would be cruel to remind them that there were a few votes cast by the democrats, and that it is extremely doubtful if a majority of the voters really fancy the idea of perpetuating militarism through the election of a military man to the presidency. It may be that a military man wouldn't use his influence to strengthen the military establishments of the country, but if a lifetime of training wouldn't have that effect, something is wrong with the army.

May day, which had been widely heralded as the occasion upon which the bolshevik would show their hand, came and left a waiting country undisturbed. Hardly a ripple of excitement. If there are such enormous numbers of reds, they have decided to leave May day in the memory as a time for children to hang May baskets. We suppose now that announcements will be made of riots to come off July 4.

Everybody is talking of the desperate financial situation, but nobody wants any public notice taken of it, apparently. The adoption by the federal reserve bank board of a plan for progressive rediscounting, the effect of which will be to automatically increase interest rates, is bound to mean something, and there are all kinds of ideas as to just what is due to happen. For instance, some say that it is simply a trick of the politicians to make sure that a republican administration is elected—and it is fairly certain that a big or even a small panic at this time would further discredit the democrats. Another idea is that the financial interests are out to "get" the unions—and that sounds plausible, too. That's the trouble with explanations, they are too easily made and they fail to explain.

Random Shots

Aha! The secret is out!

Our Zuleika was a Romeo.

Love must be blind!

Love is just like lightning—you can't tell where it will strike next.

Or how much damage it will do.

Today's Best Story.

In the days when Kansas was one of the pioneer "dry" states, a venerable negro appeared at the office of the mayor of Atchison, and asked assistance to obtain some wine.

"Who are you and what do you want it for?" asked the mayor.

"Ah is de Rev. Phineas Jones, D. D.," was the reply, "and ah wants dis yere wine for sacreligious purposes. Ah done been told dat you can git it fo' dat."

"You mean 'sacramental,' don't you?"

"Yes, sah, dat's it. Do ah get it?"

"Well," said the mayor, "we can give you a permit for wine for such purposes. What kind do you want?"

"Well," answered the "reverend," "de congregation done took a vote on it las' Sunday, and dey is unanamous fo' gin."

During the latest rainstorm, one thing was apparent. The crossing with the most cinders was the least muddy.

There was one crossing on Box Butte avenue where a man could cross without getting his ears dirty.

Now that the experiment has proved successful, we trust those kindly paving contractors will get busy and fix up a couple more before the next rain.

We might vote as to which crossing should be cindered next.

Haven't had an election for a week or two.

They were watching the construction of one of the city's new buildings. "They tell me," one of them said, "that one of those bricklayers laid two bricks in one morning. And he did it all by himself, too. Didn't even have a helper."

Horace Greeley's rule for writing a good editorial was: "Write it, polish it—then cut it in two and run the last half."

We recommend this to our longer-winded brothers.

Horace was no amateur.

"Where did you get those cigars?"

"A friend of mine sent them up from Cuba."

"Your friend certainly knows the ropes down there."—Siren.

CORNER SECOND AND LARAMIE

Noah was Right

When Noah started building the Ark, everybody laughed at him. Said he'd Never Need It.

Well, you remember what happened!

And it's a little that way yet. Too many people think there's no hurry about building homes of their own.

Then come the rainy days of their old age and they realize their mistake too late!

It's never too early to start building a home. Families who haven't done so yet should begin this very year.

Alliance and Box Butte County need work for their skilled crafts and jobs for their returned soldiers.

Start something! Build! You'll never regret it.

If you don't know any good architects, contractors and carpenters, we can give you the names of plenty who are reliable, good in their work, square in their prices.

Kindly give us the chance to assist you in any way we can. We have had experience in building problems and will gladly give you our best, conscientious advice about anything you wish to know in the building business. Let us try.
