NO REASON FOR IT.
When Alliance Citizens Show a Way.
There can be no reason why any reader of this who suffers the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the pains and dangers of kidney ills will fail to heed the words of a neighbor who has found relief. Read what an Alliance citizen says:
Hrs. J. M.cott, 714 Missouri St., Alliance, says: "Though it has been some time since I have used Doan's Kidney Pills, I gladly recommend them. I have known of many people, who like myself, have found them good. I suffered from kidney disorders for quite awhile. I had backache, felt tired and languid and at times was very nervous. Then, too, my kidneys acted irregularly. Doan's Kidney Pills gave me relief from these ailments."
Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply act for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Scott had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

HER IDLE HOURS
By MARY W. FORD.
© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"Mother, do quit arguing. I'll admit she would rather have one of those 'fluffy' dresses on, as you call them and eat chocolates, than to do a stroke of housework or cooking." and John Andrews reached for his hat, and coming over to his mother, placed an arm around her lovingly.
"But Johnny boy, it's your future I'm looking for—I want you to be happy, and with your salary you can not afford to hire a cook. What's more, laddy, I'm afraid, as it is, she would just be an ornament to grace your home with, instead of a home-loving wife. If only she would give up her idle hours, and during those hours learn to cook."
"There, there, mother, dear, let's not talk on this subject again."
When John called on Margaret, or "Peggy," as he lovingly nicknamed her, a vision in lovely pink met him at the door. "Oh, Johnny, I have something wonderful to tell you," and laughing happily she ushered him into a luxurious parlor, far different from John's modest parlor. After what seemed a little eternity to John, wondering what Peggy was so excited about, that young lady appeared at the door with a huge hat box almost as large as herself, as Peggy was rather short. "Now close your eyes, John," she said, and after a moment requested him to open them again. And behold! There, before John's eyes was a beautiful creation of a hat. First it looked like silver, then held it at another angle and it looked like gold—at least that was how John later described it to his mother.
"Why, John Andrews, you don't like my new hat!" and tears filled Peggy's pretty brown eyes. John continued staring at the hat, and when Peggy thought he did not approve of the pretty hat she nearly guessed right, for John was asking himself how he could afford to buy such a dream of a hat for Peggy when they were married.
"Peggy dear, your hat is a perfect dream, and I know it must be very becoming, but—"
"Peggy, I'm awfully sorry I am such poor company this evening, but mother has been at that 'cooking' stuff again; and oh, Peggy! I've just been hoping right along that you would one day surprise mother and—"
Going over to John, she looked him squarely in the eyes and said, seriously: "John, I will surprise her, and I'll make her love me some day, I hope—love me for my very self, and not my cooking; and, oh! I don't want this hat, I hate it, hate it!" and the tears fell fast.
The following week John was sent to New York, to be gone five months on business for the firm. Peggy promised to write faithfully every week, so he went away not entirely unhappy, but looking forward to the time when he would return.
"I'm awfully lonesome since John went away, and I haven't much ambition to cook or do anything else," thought Mrs. Andrews a week after John had left. Then her eyes fixed themselves on the following ad in the paper: "Young lady about to be married would like five months' instruction in housework and cooking." Then the box number followed at the post-office. "Well, of all things—what a queer ad, but that girl sure has grit, and I admire it—now that John has gone, why can't I take her in, poor soul, and help her out?" And the more she thought of it the more she wanted to do it, so accordingly the next day a young girl presented herself in answer to Mrs. Andrews' letter.
"Why, Margaret Willis!" but Mrs. Andrews not suspecting that Peggy had come in answer to her letter, and thinking she came about John, froze up completely and stared at Margaret, but not unkindly.
"Please don't look at me like that, Mrs. Andrews—I am the young lady who—who wants to know how to keep house, how to cook. Oh, won't you help me while John is gone?" And as Mrs. Andrews gazed at this girl whom she always regarded as a doll, her heart went out to her when she saw how sincere Peggy was, and how she must love her Johnny to come and humble herself like this to his mother. Mrs. Andrews beamed on Peggy and said: "Yes, my dear little girl, I'm going to help you; and we'll give John the surprise of his life."
John arrived home around noon three days sooner than he was expected, and received the surprise of his life when he saw his dainty Peggy, her face flushed, enveloped in one of his mother's aprons, pulling a pan of hot biscuits out of the oven. "John," was all poor Peggy could say, and down went those delicious biscuits on the floor, and after picking his little girl up in his arms and kissing the flushed cheeks, he stooped and picked up the pan of biscuits rather gingerly, fearfully, and also feeling quite sure they would be like bricks. But wonders will never cease, for the biscuits were lovely and soft, deliciously browned. Mrs. Andrews and Peggy had kept the whole affair a secret from John, and at that moment his mother entered, and after greeting him, told the whole story, while Peggy laughed happily.
"And, John, she is prepared now, and I am delighted to recommend her."
"And what's more, John, she loves me for my very self," added Peggy, happily.
